All need counsel, judge tells Chi's

By LULA MACKAY . . .

Not that the audience needed kindling . . . but Judge Robert L. Watts warmed them up with a batch of jokes, and when they were solidly chuckling, threw some hard facts at them, Sunday night.

The time was Sunday night. The place was The Tail of the Fox. The occasion was the Founders' Day banquet of Iota Chapter of Chi Delta Mu Fraternity.

• • •

After-dinner speaker for the banquet, Judge Watts said that young militants need to know that theirs is not the only push for freedom that the American Negro has made. They have been fighting for their freedom since the first slave ships reached these shores, he said. Because all black Americans do not picket and carry signs is no indication that they have abdicated from the civil justice movement, Judge Watts added.

On the other hand, the speaker said, "It is our job to be articulate concerning the black militant."

"When faced with the question, 'What does the Negro want?', we must be articulate about our grievances. For though we have made progress, only about a half of our children are in high schools, and less than a third of us have family incomes of as much as $5,000. There are more of us on the poverty level than 10 years ago.

"We must be articulate in showing them that what we must have geographical and social mobility, and equal educational and political opportunities. We must also remove estrangement between Whites and Blacks. We must have the white establishment understand that we must not only want, we must have," said Judge Watts.

• • •

Master of ceremonies at the banquet was Dr. Joshua Mitchell. The invocation was by Dr. Cyril Ashby.

Dr. Eugene Byrd, president of the chapter, introduced Judge Watts. He also presented others at the head table, including Mrs. Joshua Mitchell, Mrs. Percy White, president of the Washington Chi Wives; Mrs. Jerry Luck, president of local Chi Wives, Mrs. Robert B. Watts and Mrs. Byrd.

• • •

New members were also presented by Dr. Byrd. Receiving certificates of membership were Drs. George Woodland, William Russell, Elroy Young, Walter Hackett and Fabian Desbordes.

The Founder's Day banquet, a black-tie affair, was arranged by a committee headed by Drs. Harold Holmes and Edward McDaniel, and including Drs. Joshua Mitchell, N. A. Harris, Bernard Christmas, Jerry Luck, Stanley Madison, Irving Henderson and Benjamin Gordon.

The opening Cocktail Hour was followed by dinner and the program. Tables were then rearranged for champagne and acompaniments, and Bobby Felker and his Combo moved in to provide music for dancing the remainder of the evening.

The affair drew many out-of-town guests.

Among them were:

Miss Janice Hollis, Mrs. Alice Arrington and Hutson L. Lovell, attorney, were here from New York.

From Washington were John N. Yater, Miss Joan Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Albin A. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. McMurdock Sr., Dr. H. Cleora Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Burton and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Tarrer Jr.

• • •

In addition to Dr. Byrd, officers of Iota Chapter of Chi Delta mu are Dr. Robert Phillips, vice president; Jerry Luck, recording secretary; Edward McDaniels, corresponding secretary; William Ross, financial secretary; Gilbert Banfield, treasurer; Samuel Owins Jr., sergeant - at-arms; Cyris Ashby, chaplain and Bernard H. Christmas, custodian.

Hosts, accompanied by their spouses, were:

Drs. Bettye C. Jones, Richard Rosser, Harry Bruce, Ruth Richardson, Arlington Phillips, Willis Pete, John Rodgers, Paul Johnson, Sherrell Cooper, C. H. Grant, Charles Thompson, Dr. Charles Campbell, Roland Williams Jr.

Nayaree Coates, age 11, sixth grader, is dead

NAYAREE SHARICE COATES

"I rode in the ambulance with her to Lutheran Hospital. I was with her when she died. Twenty or thirty minutes later, my mother Mrs. Carrie Graves, and a neighbor, met me at the hospital."

"She had Hong Kong flu and has been very sick since January 5, but I didn't expect anything like this . . . Her doctor told me she could return to school on Monday, now . . ."

Mrs. Eralee Coates, 2906 Chelsea Terrace, was telling the AFRO about the death of her daughter, 11-year-old Nayaree Sharice Coates.

• • •

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Union Baptist Church. The Rev. Vernon Dobson presided at the services and at graveside rites in Baltimore National Cemetery.

Other survivors are her father, Ralidean Coates; and a brother, Ralilidean, Jr.

Nayaree was a sixth grade student at Hilton Elementary School at the time of her death. A group of classmates, teachers, and former teachers attended the services.

Nayaree entered the kindergarten of Mordecai Gist Elementary School No. 69 in 1962, went to the third and fourth grades at Windsor Hill No. 87, transferred to Hilton.

• • •

She was remembered as "a sweet and aggressive child who loved to go to school, who was well liked by her classmates, the teachers, and the administrative staff of each school she attended."

Besides her parents and brother, the youngster is survived by three grandparents; Mrs. Emma Dixon, Chester and Carrie Gravesandee; an uncle, Irving Dixon; two aunts, Mrs. Brenda Caillet and Mrs. Delores Cotton, and godmarents, Clifton and Camilla Sheppard.

Major appointee resigns post

One of the first major appointees during Mayor William E. Washington's administration has resigned to accept a position in private industry.

Sherrill D. Luke, director of program development for the District, is one of the highest paid officials in city government at $30,329 per year. Luke, who resigned on Feb. 14, plans to leave on April 1.

Mayor Washington accepted his resignation with "regret."

In his position, Luke, who was appointed Nov. 14, 1967, was in charge of social and economic planning programs in addition to program coordination for the Government.

He oversaw such key functions of Government as the Mayor's Youth Unit, which planned summer recreation programs and the Model Cities program.

Robert Bolling was former steel worker

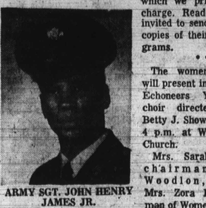
Funeral services, tentatively set for Monday, are being handled by Locks Funeral Home.



ARMY SGT. JOHN HENRY JAMES JR.

'I can't understand how she choked to death . . .'

"They knew she had seizures—I can't understand it. There is supposed to be a nurse on every ward and nobody knew about it. I can't understand how she choked to death out there."

Mrs. Willie Mae Davis, 753 Lake Drive, was asking the AFRO to help her determine the circumstances surrounding the sudden death of her sister, Mrs. Lillie R. Wells.

Mrs. Wells, 45, died in Springfield State Hospital Friday, Feb. 21.

"They called me about 12:30. When the death certificate arrived it said she was asphyxiated and died unexpectedly," said Mrs. Davis.

"I just want to know what happened. I would just like to know why she was off there alone and there was no one back there with her. She had seizures on her record."

• • •

A hospital spokesman told the AFRO Thursday that the superintendent and acting superintendent were attending budget hearings yesterday in Annapolis and the medical records were unavailable in their absence.

They could not be contacted before AFRO press time.

Mrs. Davis said she had taken her sister to the hospital last fall and that she had been in and out of the hospital for several months.

Mrs. Wells' funeral will be held Sunday in her native Lexington, S.C. She is survived by two sons, Irving, 20, who is the army at Ft. Bragg; Robert P., 15; Pamela R., 11; and Linda A., 4.

Her husband, Robert Wells, died in 1960

Mrs. Lillian F. Williams, retired teacher, was 82

"She was a loving mother and was endowed with compassion for the people of the community."

These words expressed the sentiments by the family of Mrs. Lillian F. Williams, 82, who died in her sleep on Monday.

Funeral services were held on Thursday at John Wesley Methodist Church in Glen Burnie, where she was a lifetime member.

Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery with the Rev. Norman N. Goolsby officiating.

• • •

For the last six years of her life, Mrs. Williams lived in the N. M. Carroll Nursing Home, at 822 N. Carrollton Ave.

A native Maryarylander, Mrs. Williams was born on April 15, 1886, in Ferndale, Anne Arundel County.

Her parents were William and Mary Brooks.

• • •

She was a graduate of Morgan State College and taught school in Anne Arundel County for a number of years until her marriage to the late Milton C. Williams.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Corrine Sarton, Mrs. Alline Brooks, both of Baltimore; and Mrs. Alma Dalton of Marietta, Ohio; and four sons, Herschel, Raymond, Ralph and Singleton Williams, all of Baltimore.

Other survivors include four daughters-in-law, three sons-in-law, 12 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren.
