Ronald Watts quits school post to become State supervisor

By HARRIET VERNON

After a day in which he carried out "business as usual" last Friday at Hampstead Hill, Special Assistant Ronald C. Watts was summoned to the fourth floor of the seven story building where a large number of the faculty was awaiting him at a surprise party in Room 404.

The party was arranged very quickly when the faculty learned that Mr. Watts would be leaving his third floor assignment at Hampstead Hill where he has been in charge of all the eighth grades to accept a position in the State Department of Education.

As of March 3, he is in his new pisition as Educational Supervisor of the Federal and state programs for the state department.

This assignment is related to Title I and Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of High, the William Lemmel the Federal Government which makes posible the Head Start and 13 other supplementary programs in Baltimore and Maryland designed to strengthen and enrich the educatinal background and experiences of many disadvantaged youngsters.

Before coming to Hampstead Hill, Mr. Watts spent thirteen years in the Baltimore public schools, at Charles Houston Junior who attend this school have Junior High, and the Calverton Junior High.

Associates presented him with a key chain, a gold piece attached to it, and most significant, a gold key handmade in the industrial arts department of the school, bearing the numbers '43.'

It is this key, Mr. Watts was assured, that is the key to Hampstead Hill forever and will open all doors should re ever wish to return. The cafeteria staff presented him with a cuff link and tie pin set.

Mr Watts tld his associates he is looking forward to the challenge of his new position, but felt sad leaving a school where he had joyed his work and his associates in the last year and ahalf. "I have been impressed by the caliber of the students, their sincerity and their concern with their education now and its sincerity and their concern with their education now and its significance in preparing them for progress and good employment opportunities in the future."

"I have also been delighted with the professionalism if the faculty and the personal interest which many of them exhibit on a day-to-day basis as children They have shown their interest in what the school has to offer in its daily program and also in the extra curricular activities."

Mr. Watts concluded: "I shall miss working with young people, but I hope that through this new position, I may be able to make a contribution not only to the young people at Hampstead Hill but to many boys and girls at all levels of education both in the city of Baltimore and throughout the whole state if Maryland."

(Mr. Watts lives at 4906 Gilray Drive 21214 HA 6-6899.)

Ref abuse costs Mathis $100

NEW YORK (UPI) — Heavyweight Buster Mathis has been fined $100 by the New York State Athletic Commission for flagrantly abusing referee Harold Valan in his fight with George Chuvalo last month.

Mathis twice shoved Valan in his bout with Chuvalo. The heavyweight contender said he had been hit low by Chuvalo and that he wanted to retaliate without interference from the Referee.

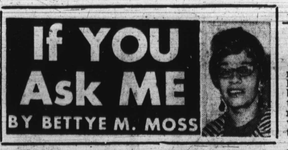
If YOU Ask ME

BY BETTYE M. MOSS



History, people and things

Cyrus W. Marshall Jr., 51, the new principal of Lemmel Junior High School, comes from old Baltimore families which have long given distinguished and dedicated service to our schools.

His father, the senior Cyrus W. Marshall, was our beloved mathematics teacher at Douglass High. Remember?

When he retired in 1969, he had to his credit 39 years in the classroom, the last ten of them as head of the math department at Douglass.

That was in the days when teachers took an abiding interest in their students, and tutored and guided them outside as well as in the school room. Remember?)

• • •

His mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hillen Marshall, still lives in the 2500 block of McCullon St., which has been the family home for over 44 years.

She is a former teacher and graduate of what is now Coppin State Teachers College, formerly called Miner Normal School.

His uncle is Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, himself a product of Baltimore public schools.

The new Lemmel principal has many more educators in the family.

His sister, Mrs. Charlotte Perry is a teacher at Matthew Henson School No. 29.

Her husband, William R. Perry Jr., is vice principal at Franklin Square School No. 95.

• • •

His niece, Mrs. Marsha Gaskins, teaches at Howard School. No. 61.

Mrs. Marshall Jr., the former Edith Woodland, is a retired teacher.

Sole member of the Marshall family not teaching is Dr. Granville Hillen Marshall, a Los Angeles dentist.

• • •

Cuff note: Yes, Thurgood Marshall's father, William Marshall, and the senior Cyrus Marshall were brothers.

That's how Cyrus Jr., the new Lemmel principal and the Supreme Court Justice are first cousins.

• • •

More history: William Marshall, father of Thurgood, was for many years a railroad dining car worker and in later life a steward at Gibson Island.

His Supreme Court justice son credits his dad for 'standing up for principle.' In a 1963 interview he said of his dad: 'Will Marshall would sleep in the streets rather than betray his principles.

The father of William and Cyrus Marshall Sr., was Thorny Goody. He called himself 'T. G.' and later shortened his name to Thurgood.

He and his wife, Annie, settled in East Baltimore until the late 1800's, when the family moved to Dolphin and Division Sts., in West Baltimore.

It was there they long operated a very fine grocery store. (If you remember, you're up there!)

In fact, it was at this site, now gone by way of urban renewal, that Cyrus Jr. the new Lemmel principal was born.

• • •

This Marshall-Hillen family contribution to Baltimore public school education is endless.

For example, Justice Thurgood Marshall's mother was our favorite teacher back at Alexander School No. 112.

She was Mrs. Norma Williams Marshall who spent 35 years in the classroom, until her retirement in 1955.

Remember how we used to refer to school by "Mrs. Marshall's class?"

The senior Cyrus Marshall had two sisters, both of whom were teachers — Mrs. Annie Bell Marshall Burns, who taught in the county; and Miss Margaret Marshall, whom many may remember from Garnet School No. 103.

Mrs. Burns' daughter, Mrs. Juliette Carter, is presently a teacher at Coleridge-Taylor School No. 122. Her husband, George is a Douglass teacher.

• • •

Mrs. Cyrus Marshall Sr., the senior member of the family is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Granville Hillen (Nellie Billingslea). They settled in White Hall, Baltimore County, where Mr. Hillen was well known as a farmer. A son, Emerson, became a Baltimore County teacher.

His daughters, Jean and Blaucher, are both teachers

• • •

More cuff notes: All of the above indicates that we have been here a long time.

And, this is what the kids are talking about. They want to read about contributions of black people in their schools.

In our city today are hundreds of people like the Marshalls, Hillens who have been "doing their thing for four generations."

More cuff note: It has been true in the past that qualified black men have been overlooked and held back too long, forced to stay in 'vice' or 'assistant' jobs in our schools.

This was true of Cyrus Marshall Jr., so his elevation this week is long overdue...

Under the new superintendent, Dr. Thomas D. Sheldon, there is hope and promise that more long suffering in our system will be recognized.

YWCA, more people, things

It is a fact that the Baltimore YWCA has taken the leadership in improving better race relations in our town, but the YWCA is made up of people with varied backgrounds so that...

The Baltimore YWCA which preaches Christianity, apparently draws the line when it is time to practice it because...

The downtown YWCA swimming pool is not available to youngsters from the Madison Ave. branch except at 6 p.m. on Saturdays, so...

The Madison Ave. YW youngsters do not swim there. They RENT the pool at the Druid Hill YMCA. Honest!!

We asked YWCA executives to comment on the above remarks and received looks of disbelief and a promise to investigate.

"We have made staff aware of our concerns. It is our aim and purpose to be one association.' Mrs. Robert Goetze, president of the Baltimore YW, told this writer.

Talented Gordan Stills, the teacher and photographer, has another challenging assignment.

This summer, beginning June 23, he will be director of the Summer Opportunity Program at Friends School.

This will be a six-week, Federally-funded program for 50-60 students.

Mr. Stills is teacher of English at Clifton Park Junior High. He is also co-owner of the thriving new photo studio and camera shop (Belvedere) out Belvedere Ave. way.

He is a graduate of Dunbar High and Morgan State College.

• • •

Cuff note: Floyd E. Jenkins, the postal worker who was awarded $250 and a gold pen by Postmaster Bloomberg (for superior accomplishment), is noted for his industriousness and cooperation with fellow employees.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Jenkins of Carney, Md.

He and his wife, Mary Kelly Jenkins, live here in Baltimore on Yosemite Ave.

• • •

People remembering: The Constance H. Moore Memorial Scholarship Committee presented the Joseph Eubanks Chorale in concert, a Sunday ago at Sharon Baptist.

This is the fund which was established in memory of the daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. James L. Moore (he's Sharon minister).

Many may remember, she was a senior at Morgan State College when she died on June 27, 1965.

The scholarship fund has given aid to three members of Morgan's graduating class; to a pre-medical student enrolled at Hopkins and to the Central Scholarship Bureau.

• • •

If you've admired the fabulous hats worn by Mrs. Mamie Jones, you'll want to meet her designer.

She is Ida of Springdale Ave.

You can see her hats if you turn out for the March

GORDON STILLS

15 noon event at the Statler Hilton or the March 16 (4 p.m.) affair at Mt. Zion Methodist Church, Liberty Heights and Wabash.

Ida of Springdale Ave. is really Mrs. Ida Williams. Mrs. Jones, mentioned above, is one of her seven models.

This column's theatre reviewer advises:—

"Be sure to see 'Don't Drink the Water,' now playing at the Morris A. Mechanic Theater until March 22.

It is hilarious comedy starring Sam Levene and Vivian Blaine and a great supporting cast. Walter Wanderman is also superb as Father Drobney.

Thinking of you cards to Sinai Hospital, Room 366, for Mrs. Aldona Marie Singleton longtime AFRO teletypist.

Sunshine please, to Mrs. Ida Bolden, in Room 162 at Lutheran Hospital. She suffered a stroke.

And, another AFRO employee, Turner Howell, is in Union Memorial. He suffered a stroke. Many know him as the faithful doorman at our plant.

Good news: Out of Union Memorial Hospital is Mrs. Sarah Bohannon, of Appleton St., whom many of us know as a good neighbor. She had surgery.

Out of the hospital, where she had major surgery, and doing so much better is Mrs. Joseph Felton (Leona). She will be in for a while so send her hellos at 3604 Dennlyn Rd.

• • •

In new cottage out Howard Park way are Mr. and Mrs. Willis (Skinny) Jefferson (Ruth).

Many know him as organist at Whitestone Baptist, and was an employee of the Department of Housing.

More about people, things

Hometowner making good: Miss Janice Tillman, senior in the School of Music at Howard University, will be presented in recital, Sunday, March 16, 5 p.m. at Sharp Street Methodist Church.

Mrs. Rubye Gill is chairman; the Rev. Forrest Stith, pastor; and Mrs. Martha Bradford, publicity. The program is being presented for the benefit of the church's scholarship fund.

Miss Tillman, a voice major, is a graduate of Eastern High School where she won a four-year scholarship to Howard from Baltimore Alumnae of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

• • •

Another youngster making good: Richard Evans auditioned for the Boston Opera Company last week and was accepted as one of its members.

He began evening rehearsals (at $3.00) an hour) last week, in preparation for spring performances. Richard remains a full time day student at the Boston Conservatory of Music in Boston, where he is on the Dean's List.

He is a former student of Lemmel Junior High and Douglass Senior High and a graduate of the Intertochen (Mich.) Arts Acadamy.

Mr. Evans is the son of Mrs. Berteal Brooks, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Mayon Matthews, (Alice), of Glen Burnie.

• • •

People being kind to others department: The Sunday afternoon reception at the Governor's Club his co-workers sponsored for Walter A. Maccubbin.

Until his retirement on Jan. 31, 1969, Mr. Maccubbin had served the Baltimore public schools for 49 years. The last six as assistant superintendent of personnel.

The beautifully written citation noted his "sensitivity to human values, creativity to approach to problem solving and integrity in staff relationships...

And, further, the citation noted:

"Gifted with a keen sense of humor and genuine interest in people, Mr. Mac's perception, patience, empathy, integrity, and friendliness have been an inspiring example to his students, his colleagues, his family and friends."

• • •

Birthday note: Joseph Quille, the grand old man of Baltimore night life, marked his 76th birthday last Wednesday at Little Joe's Inn.

This is the Pressman St. spot he manages with Mrs. Dorothy Neal.

Known as 'Little Joe,' 'Daddy Joe' and fondly addressed sometimes as 'Ole Joe Quille,' Mr. Quille has been in night life since the middle 20's when he managed Little Willie's Inn (Druid Hill and Whitelock.)

He is a longtime member of St. Peter Claver Church, where he once served on the altar.

• • •

His son is Lt. William C. Quille of the Imperial Detective Agency (He also drives for Tradar's Delivery with headquarters at Reliable Liquors);

His daughter is Mrs. Victorine Adams, the longtime Baltimore civic worker, now a city councilman from the Fourth District.

She is, you know, the wife of William (Little Willie), Adams, the businessman and golfer
