In endorsing the Oppenheimer Committee's recommendations, Governor Mandel said:

"It is essential that the proposals of the committee be adopted as soon as possible to maintain public confidence in Maryland's Executive Department officers and employees.

"I commend the committee members for the sound approach they have taken in their recommendations to assure the public that its officials and employees are acting in their best interests and in the best interests of the State of Maryland."

Members of the committee that drafted the proposed Code of Ethics were: Henry Bosz, Commissioner of Personnel; Francis B. Burch, Attorney General; Russell B. Davis, former Commissioner of Personnel; Louis L. Goldstein, State Comptroller; Herbert L. Hubbard, of the Maryland Classified Employees Association; John R. Jewell, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles; Blair Lee II, Secretary of State; Edmund Mester, Executive Director of the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges; Jerome Wolff, former Chairman-Director of the State Roads Commission; Judge Oppenheimer; and Walter Waetjen, of the University of Maryland.

studied at Morgan State College, hoping to become a doctor.

"As I approached the time of application to medical school, the realism of finances became apparent and I began to search for a career that might enable me to help people to reach their potential through education," he wrote Dr. Bard.

He chose teaching and after graduating from Morgan in 1948, began a teaching career in science. He was named as Director of Guidance at Dunbar in 1956 and—was later appointed Placement Counselor in the Division of Guidance and where he found jobs for persons with limited skills.

"In this position, I experienced one of most exciting, rewarding experiences of my school career. The high school graduate, who often is not oriented toward college or the world of work can have another chance to receive guidance and direction," he recalled.

Mr. Davis has been Special Assistant to Hampstead Hill Junior High and Vice Principal of Patterson.

Besides his studies at Morgan, he received a Masters degree in student personnel administration and guidance from Columbia University and has studied at Loyola College, Coppin State, the U. of Md., and Johns Hopkins.

Mr. Davis's wife, Mrs. Jeanne Davis, is a counselor with the Neighborhood Youth Corps. He has a daughter, 17, at Northwestern High and son, 14, at Pimlico Junior High.

Mr. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Davis. His father is a retired steel worker. He has a brother, Curtis, and a sister, Mrs. Pauline Teal, both of Baltimore.

He is a deacon at Madison Ave. Presbyterian Church and a member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, and the John H. Holmes Chapter of the Prince Hall Masons.

He was recently elected to the Johns Hopkins Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, a national professional education fraternity. Initiation ceremonies are scheduled for Tuesday, March 18, in the Clipper Room of Shriver Hall at Hopkins.

HOUSTON, Texas — Dr. J. Reuben Sheeler, head of the Department of History and Geography at Texas Southern Univ. in Houston, has just returned from the newly opened Valencia College in Orlando, Florida, where he was consultant for the planning of Afro-American studies. Dr. Sheeler, an internationally known expert on Black History, also served as a guest lecturer on Afro American History at Valencia.
