Brown. After I identified myself, he told me there had been an accident.

"I didn't hear anything after that, because I was screaming and unable to go and identify the body at University Hospital. Someone else from the house identified my husband's body," Mrs. Brown recalled.

"I went to the City Morgue this morning (Tuesday) and as I looked down on his face . . . I thought of all our unfulfilled plans and dreams."

Tuesday morning, after she left the morgue, Mrs. Brown went to University Hospital to claim her husband's personal effects.

"Only through the help of an AFRO reporter was she able to overcome a second entirely total blow—an emotional blow—an attendant can't have his belongings because you are divorced."

Mrs. Brown broke into tears and told the nursing attendant "we just got married last month."

"We can't give anything to divorced persons without permission from the next of kin," the attendent replied.

The AFRO reporter then insisted the attendent check with Ft. Meade.

The attendant's check brought the discovery that Emergency Service was responsible for the "mix-up."

She said, "I'm sorry," and gave Mrs. Brown her husband's belongings.

"For some reason he was determined to go home to Bostwick . . . now I'm going to take him there," Mrs. Brown said when she returned home.

She was referring to the funeral which will be held in Bostwick, Ga. Mr. Brown will receive a full military service.

He was one of 14 children born to the Rev. and Mrs. George Brown of Bostwick. The Rev. Mr. Brown is pastor of Mount Vernon Baptist Church.

Mr. Brown was the lead singer for a local group called "The Continentals."

A friend, Miss Mildred Tyler, recalled, "he was very neat and clean and could really sing."

His landlady, Mrs. Margaret Huston added: "He was the nicest person.

Everett Seaborne was roofer

Funeral services were held recently for Everett Seaborne, 53, 3000-A Seabury Rd., Cherry Hill.

Mr. Seaborne died unexpected March 4.

Mr. Seaborne was identified by his twin brother, Wilford Seaborne and another brother, Harold Seaborne, both Baltimore city school principals, and his daughter, Mrs. Zelda Robinson.

Born Aug. 1, 1916 in Baltimore, Mr. Seaborne was the son of Samuel and Mrs. Sally Seaborne. He was graduated from Douglass High School and was employed as a roofer.

In addition to his parents his two brothers and his daughter, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Zelda Orange and Mrs. Carolyn Carter, both of Baltimore.

thing to them. They are a small group but they account for a lot of trouble.

"But there are some good kids out here."

Officer Stanley insists that the problems he has as a policeman will not force him to quit. He plans to make his work his life career.

Often commended — 30 commendations and two Bronze Stars — he says "looking back over the past 12 years with great satisfaction, I know that I have given the citizens of Baltimore City the type of service I was sworn to give.

"I vividly recall my first night on patrol. I was investigating an accident in the 1300 block of N. Broadway about 3 a.m., when I heard a woman scream for help.

"I took off in the direction of the scream which was coming from Ellsworth and Broadway, when I observed a man and woman struggling. I ran after the man but was unable to apprehend him.

"When I returned to the woman I learned that the man had tried to rape her. I felt very bad at not apprehending this man and made a promise to myself to try not to let another get away.

"The man was later caught and convicted of rape and murder."

During the 12 years he has been a policeman, Officer Stanley has seldom lost a suspect. He is one of the most commended policemen on the force.

He told the AFRO about some of the cases he's handled that are called in police language, "good grabs."

His first commendation was for rescuing three people from a burning two-story house and "apprehending the culprit who set the house afire."

That was May, 1957, in the 1400 block of E. Monument St.

Officer Stanley was also commended for the following cases: the Bolton Hill Rapist in 1963; a gang of five men who stole cars and drove around the city attacking old ladies and taking their purses in 1964; a young rapist in East Baltimore who attacked two young sisters in 1965; and his participation in the apprehension of a man who killed one man and seriously injured another in 1964.

His first assignment was the Northeastern District in an area "around Gay, Caroline, Ashland Ave. and Monument Sts. to patrol on foot," he recalls.

"This area was at the time one of the worst in East Baltimore.

"It was common place to have several shootings on the same shift."

Officer Stanley is now working with the Eastern District with Operations, a special squad used to "beef up patrol units especially in vice and narcotics."

He is ranked as a patrolman but is on the list for promotion to sergeant.

Officer Stanley attended the Police Academy and was graduated with an average of 90.3, the second highest in his class.

A native of Baltimore, he attended Booker T. Washington Junior High but had to drop out of Douglass in the 11th grade "to go to work to help my widowed mother."

He went to night school and took the high school equivalency test and earned a diploma. He also attended Community College of Baltimore to study criminology and criminal psychology. He is currently taking a course in public speaking and police administration hoping for an A.A. Degree in Law Enforcement.

He is married to the former Miss Estelle Larkins. The couple has three daughters, Karen, Deborah, and Marie; and a son, Benjamin, who is in the army, stationed in Germany.

The family attends Sharp Street Methodist Church.

Canty held on dope charges

In Western District Court Tuesday morning Judge Sewell Lamdin ordered David Canty, 18, of the 1800 block Riggs Ave., held for action of the grand jury in lieu of $5500 bail on charges of possession of narcotics, narcotic paraphernalia, and assault upon an officer.

Police charged Canty with possession of suspected heroin, five hypodermic needles, two syringes, three improvised syringes, and two cookers.

Police report that Canty was being escorted to the patrol wagon, he broke out of the grasp of Officer August Nuchert. A brief chase and a warning shot was fired before Canty was apprehended.

Thomas faces five charges

In Central Municipal Court Tuesday morning, a 31-year-old Anthony Thomas was ordered held for the grand jury under $24,500 bail on five charges after a woman testified that he tried to stab her.

Thomas is charged with assault by threatening with a knife, Mrs. Martha Brown of the 900 block Newington Ave., assault by striking with his fist, two charges of assault upon an officer, and resisting arrest.

others without water.

"The Furnace Beach area has a similar problem . . . and the Freetown area, right outside of Glen Burnie, that's an area where the same thing has happened.

"The water always comes right to the black community and stops."

The Brownswood Villa section is one of the oldest sections in Annapolis and is comprised mainly of black land-owners.

"There are $18 and $23 thousand dollar homes put in on red clay in Brownswoods Villa," Mr. Gilmer explained.

"Right now the people get their water by wells, but some of the wells are in bad condition. One man called and said he would have to pend $300 to get his well repaired."

Many of the heating systems in the area depend on a water supply that is often "down to a trickle."

Mr. Gilmer said that a petition was drawn up in 1967 by over 150 families in the county demanding a water supply. The petition was submitted to Joseph W. Alton Jr., the county executive whom Mr. Gilmer says ran on the promise that he "would insure water and sewage."

Mr. Alton told him the petitions had been lost. Mr. Gilmer said, "but now he's backed down from that position."

Charles C. Hartman is the councilman for the 5th district of Anne Arundel County and represents the Brownswoods area.

"I just received a letter from Hartman," Mr. Gilmer told the AFRO Thursday. "He still wants a public meeting with us and the entire area.

"You know how the political arena works when you are leveling segregation charges.

"After we had gone through so much, we should be able to have an emergency bill drawn up to move funds from one project to another."

The Brownswoods community and the NAACP insist that they are entitled to a private meeting with Mr. Huntman.

In the private meeting a bill would be drafted to get water into the black communities, Mr. Gilmer said.

"Other people have done it, the've come befor their councilman and had a bill drawn up then took it before the entire council.

"We want to draft a bill and then we will have public hearing . . . but he wants to have the hearing first," Mr. Gilmer stated.

The NAACP has been working on the water problem since Dec., 1968. Mr. Gilmer recalled that the people in the area who have gone without running water "have just been neglected and discriminated against by the county.

"They've had a lot of promises but no action."
