School Board member calls paper suspension illegal

A Baltimore City school board member has called recent suspensions over the distribution of a high school underground newspaper "unconstitutional" in that they violate a recent Supreme Court ruling on freedom of expression in public schools.

Larry S. Gibson told the AFRO that a rule forbidding "distribution on school grounds of literature not related to school matters without permission" is "unconstitutional, impractical and unwise."

Three high school students at Poly and Northern had been suspended last month for distributing the underground student paper at several high schools.

Mr. Gibson declared "I believe that this is a direct violation of the first amendment right to freedom of speech."

A 26 year-old Columbia Law School graduate, Mr. Gibson referred to the Suprem Court case Tinker vs. Des Moines School District which held "that high school officials in Des Moines had violated the first amendment rights of three students by suspending them for wearing black arm bands in school in protest of the Vietnam war."

He explained: — "in addition to being blatantly unconstitutional, I believe this rule to be unwise and completely impractical in terms of its enforcement.

"In this day of national and international involvement by students in politics and social change, to believe that one could be successful in attempting to keep such involvement out of the public schools is to bury one's head in the sand and to ignore our present day conditions.

"Furthermore, I believe the public schools should encourage rather than suppress student involvement in the issues of the day.

"One of the responsibilities of the public school system is to prepare students to become fully participating adults in a democracy.

• • •

"Any democracy is dependent upon freedom of discussion and debate." Mr. Gibson asserted noting that the fear of "disruption" in distributing literature was "unfounded."

"I do not think we should teach our students that it is the prerogative of one in authority to suppress and limit the expression of opinions with which authority disagrees."

Mr. Gibson suggested that objections to the student newspaper, "The Spark,' on grounds that it would cause a littering problem 'appears to be a rather pitiful reason to limit perhaps the most important constitutional right.'

In a direct slap at school officials, including Superintendent Thomas D. Sheldon, who approved the suspensions, Mr. Gibson said:

"There is nothing to indicate that paper is a commodity with which public school students are unfamiliar and do not know how to handle. The same argument could be advanced for not returning test papers and for not issuing student newspapers.

"Of course, if what we really want is to decrease student littering, then we must make and enforce a rule against student littering. You do not use a shotgun to kill a gnat.

"The other arguments which I have heard advanced to support the rule are equally untenable and appear only to be straws grabbed to support a rule that has outlived its usefulness," Mr. Gibson said.

Reference to the possible illegality of the present School Board rule came up for discussion at Thursday's School Board meeting.

Philip Macht, another commissioner, said in his opinion the schools were operating under an unconstitutional rule. He proceeded to read excerpts from the Supreme Court decision.

Mr. Macht and Mr. Gibson agreed to serve as a committee to ask City Solicitor George L. Russell for a ruling and to make a recommendation to the board.

NEWLYWEDS — Solomon Baylor attorney, and bride the former Miss Ernestine Walker, a Morgan State College history professor, were married Saturday after a court hassel over the designation of "black" as as race on their marriage license.

Alliance declares war on Mandel judge bill

The Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance held a press conference this week in which they voiced their disapproval with Governor Mandel's action designed to discontinue the use of popular elections in the choosing of judges for the State's Appellate Courts.

In a three-page release the Alliance stated:

"We would be remiss if we did not cite without equivocation that the black community regards this as a vindictive act in response to the election of Judge Joseph C. Howard to the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City.

"This action on the part of the Legislature supports the contention of many of our spokesmen who have argued persuasively against continued efforts to participate in the process of governance and political activity.

"They have all held that once blacks learn to play the game, the establishment changes the rules.

"Pursuit of this course leads to institutional disenfranchisement which is as dehumanizing and debilitating as the de facto disenfranchisement so widespread in the South."

The Alliance went on to declare, "Those with political ambitions who are at all inclined to traffic in the administration of justice for their own political ends, and exploit the racial aspects of the issue to do so, are in for a rude awakening if they need the support of the black community.

"We hereby pledge that if this becomes the case we will leave no stone unturned to deny them this support."

$37,500 memory gift aids Provident fund

A $37,500 gift in the memory of a onetime Baltimore beauty and clubwoman highlighted the kick-off luncheon of the Provident Hospital completion campaign, at the Statler Hilton, Thursday.

The gift came from John L. Vidal, noted New York furrier, who was married to the late Mrs. Marie Lyon Vidal.

Before their marriage Mrs. Vidal was the widow of the Rev. Ernest Lyon, a Baltimore Methodist Minister who was onetime U.S. Ministery to Liberia.

World figures frequently gathered at their N. Carey St. home.

The presentation on behalf of Mr. Vidal was made by his nephew, Theodore T. Mythe, who resides with his family in the former Lyon home on N. Carey St., he said.

"I am making this contribution on behalf of my uncle, John T. Vidal of Seacliff, Long Island, who is unable to attend this meeting.

Continuing he said, "Mr. Vidal feels that his wife, and my aunt the late Marie Lyon Vidal would have wanted to have had part in this venture, since a great part of her life was spent in this city and her views on matters of this nature are well known.

In conclusion, "We both feel that all concerned with the success of this enterprise should make a concerted effort to assure the attainment of this goal."

The kick-off gifts totaling over $390,000, were announced by George L. Russell, Jr.

The Vital contribution represents the largest single contribution by a colored person to this campaign.

Several individuals and companies have already made substantial contributions to the Development Program.

Additional gifts announced among them were: The National Brewing Company, $30,000, Gas and Electric Company, $50,000, The Hearst Foundation, $25,000; USF and G, $50,000 The Rouse Company, $12,

3 veteran officers get lieutenant bars

For the first time in the history of the Baltimore Police Department there are now five colored lieutenants.

Commissioner Donald D. Pomerleau announced three new promotions, Sgt. James H. Watkins, Sgt. Bishop Robinson and Sgt. Carolyn Robinson Wednesday morning at Central Police Headquarters.

In making the announcement Commissioner Pomerleau stressed his pride that not only were the new lieutenants the highest scorers in the competitive tests for the position but they were each honored veterans of the force.

Lt. Watkins told the AFRO "We will keep our original assignments," meaning that he will stay with the Intelligence Division, Lt. Bishop Robinson will remain with Training, Education and Lt. Carolyn Robinson with the Community Relations Division.

Lt. Watkins has been with the force since 1951; Lt. Robinson, since 1952 and Mrs. Carolyn Robinson since 1942.

Board votes to unlatch school doors

In a split vote yesterday (Thursday), the Baltimore City School Board voted to adopt an open door policy for parents "who have a right and a responsibility to keep themselves informed as to the day-to -day operations of the schools."

The new policy, wording of which was suggested by School Board member Larry S. Gibson, scraps an old procedure which compels parents to visit schools only at specified times after checking-in at the principal's office.

Superintendent Thomas D. Sheldon had offered a less relaxed policy change which would have permitted "all citizens" to visit schools at "appropriate" times during the year.

The Gibson resolution was supported by Philip Macht. Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Moss, and James M. Griffin.

Mrs. Maree Farring and John J. Sweeny Jr. voted against the Gibson resolutions. School Board president Francis D. Murnaghan Jr., asked to be recorded as voting "no." Samuel T. Daniels and Sidney N. Tinley Jr. were absent.

Afterwards, Superintendent Sheldon said he had no objection to the change but was concerned about responsibility of principals.

Also during the meeting,

Court order makes 'black' a legal designation of race

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

A local attorney was forced to obtain a Supreme Bench order recently to get the Court of Common Pleas clerk to designate his race as "black" on the application for his marriage license.

The lawyer asked a Supreme Bench judge to sign the order after the marriage license clerk refused to place "black" on the document instead of the word "colored."

The clerk said the Court of Common Pleas Marriage License Bureau had used the word "colored" for members of the Negro or Black race since the 1860's, the time of the Civil War, and he had no authority to change the term.

The attorney is Solomon Baylor, 909 McKean Ave., who is also a member of the Zoning Board.

Mr. Baylor told the AFRO he applied for a license to marry Miss Ernestine Walker, 4818 Gilray Ave., a Morgan State College history professor on March 21.

He stated, "The clerk put down "colored" where it says race, and I objected. I said if you have to put anything down about race, put black, not colored.

"When he refused, I went to my office and framed a petition to the court. Judge James A. Perrott signed it the same day directing the clerk to identify me and my wife as members of the black race."

On Wednesday, Judge Perrott told the AFRO he signed the order "because it makes sense."

He stated, "The word colored could mean black, white, red, yellow or any other color.

"Mr. Baylor is a member of the black or Negro race.

"And, because the court had been putting down "colored" since the Civil

APRIL FOOLS LUCKY

Neighbor and oil stove save housewife's life

BY JOHN C. WHITE

A 67-year-old East Baltimore housewife narrowly escaped death on April Fool's day by two strokes of real luck.

A neighbor who normally isn't home during the early morning hours and a kerosene stove filled with oil, that didn't explode, in the midst of a burning room saved her life.

Mrs. Evelyn Gilbert, of the 100 block Spring St., received first, second and third degree burns on her face, hands and lower arm, when a one-alarm fire struck her home Tuesday morning.

She was taken to Johns Hopkins Hospital. A hospital spokesman described her condition as serious.

Mrs. Gilbert was found unconscious in the smoke-filled room, lying on the floor near the front door, when firemen entered the home.

Luckily for Mrs. Gilbert Mrs. Jeanette Earl, her next door neighbor was home and called the fire department.

"I was sitting in my living room when I saw smoke coming through the wall," said Mrs. Earl.

• • •

Before the fire department arrived, Mrs. Gilbert's husband Jessie, who was standing up the street, saw the smoke coming out of his home and rushed to help his trapped wife.

"The fire department was having trouble getting the door open when I got there," said Mr. Gilbert. Together with a friend he orced the door open.

Firemen are still investigating the cause of the blaze which was confined mainly to one room of the four room brick house. There was some smoke damage done to the rear kitchen.

Mrs. Earl said there was no damage done to her house even though some smoke seeped through her wall.

Firemen were unable to explain why the stove, filled with kerosene, "didn't explode.

Mr. Gilbert, a retired mrechant seaman, lived alone with his wife in the small home.

GAS IN HOME:

Mother, four children have narrow escape

A mother and her four children barely escaped with their lives when a gas stove in their kitchen was turned on with no flame Wednesday night.

Firemen told police that when they arrived at the house in the 1600 block N. Longwood St. they found all gas jets, including the oven, turned on without flames.

The mother and her children were asleep on the second floor of tha two story brick home.

Southwestern police are holding the father for questioning.

Joyce Ashford, 16, told the afro that the last thing she remembered about the incident was going to bed Tuesday night around 10 p.m.

When the firemen arrived Wednesday evening they found Joyce and four other members of her family unconscious in their beds.

Mr. Daniel Ashford, the father, was asleep on the living room couch.

Police say Mr. Ashford

WRONGLY IDENTIFIED AS TEACHER

Quantico Ave.. housewife fined; must join GI-husband in Germany

A 22-year-old housewife charged with assaulting an officer, carrying a deadly weapon, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct, was given a two-year suspended sentence and fined $250 plus court costs Wednesday, in Southwestern Municipal Court.

Judge Harold Lewis said the fact that Mrs. Arentha Grant's .38-caliber revolver was unloaded and that she is scheduled to join her soldier-husband Monday in Germany were the main reasons why he didn't send her to jail.

Mrs. Grant, of the 2500 block Quantico Ave., was arrested Monday night as she was leaving a bar in the 3100 block W. North Ave.

It had been reported in other news media that Mrs. Grant was a Forest Park High School teacher, but her attorney testified in court that she is a housewife.

A spokesman for the school also denied that Mrs. Grant is a Forest Park teacher.

• • •

Officer Paul Kelly told the court that he was investigating a report that there was an armed woman in the bar when he spotted Mrs. Grant leaving with what appeared to be a gun sticking out of her purse.

He said that when he approached the woman she "reached for the gun."

When he knocked the purse from her hand she became violent and began cursing him the officer said.

He further testified that Mrs. Grant gouged his right eye and spat in his face. And he was treated at Mercy Hospital for minor injuries.

Other officers told the court that when Mrs. Grant was taken to Pine St. Station she became unruly and finally had to be maced.

• • •

There was noticable tension in the courtroom when Mrs. Grant's attorney, Nelson R. Kendall, made repeated objections to testimony given by the police.

Judge Lewis stood up and threatened both Mr. Kandel and Officer Robert Leeman with a citation for contempt of court when the two began shouting at each other.

Mrs. Grant's husband, Sgt. Larry Grant, flew in from Germany on emergen-

Teenagers get life sentences

Given life sentences Wednesday for the fatal shooting of a bus driver were Thomas Mills, 17, 2900 Winchester St. and Ronnie Adams, 700 block W. Fayette St.

Judge George D. Solter imposed the maximum prison terms upon the two youths for the June, 1968 first degree murder of 44-year-old Charles A. Snyder, a Baltimore Transit Bus Co. driver in a holdup that netted $65.

The incident touched off a bus drivers 3-day wildcat strike which resulted in the present requirement that passengers deposit exact change for fares.

Robbery of bus drivers, a frequent event last summer, halted completely after drivers ceased carrying money.

Fireman's ladder helps win divorce

Elwood Michael Harris, a firefighter, has been granted a divorce from his Wife on grounds of adultery. Judge William O'Donnell signed the decree March 31.

Mr. Harris and his wife were married July 19, 1954 and separated Dec. 20, 1968.

The fireman testified his wife committed adultery with a married man, and moved in with him when she left on Dec. 20, 1968.

He testified when he found the address where the couple was residing, he and a friend climbed to the roof and saw them in their bedroom.

$100 bag of potato chips

Christopher Moyd, 36, 900 block Collington Ave., was fined $100 and costs in Criminal Court Wednesday for taking a bag of potato chips from a burned and looted liquor store during the riots last April.

Judge Charles D. Harris imposed the five after he found Mr. Moyd guilty of rogue and vagabond and not guilty of burglary as originally charged.

According to Mr. Moyd's attorney, William H. Murphy, his client was a former customer of the 2300 block E. Federal St. store which was burned April 6.

The lawyer told the court Mr. Moyd merely stopped inside the damaged place to look around and already had the potato chips he was munching with him.

Ham and turkey in heavy supply

This weekends food shopping will center around foods for a delicious holiday meal. Make your selection and try new combinations along with traditional favorites for meals.

Eggs for Easter are in generous supply. The demand for white shelled eggs is usually high. When hard-cooking eggs place the cold eggs from the refrigerator in cold water to start the cooking.

This helps prevent the shells from cracking. Low temperature cooking and rapid cooling in cold water helps prevent the green ring that forms around the yolk of hard cooked eggs. Hard cooked eggs in the shell will keep in the refrigerator up to one week. Make full use of dyed eggs as they are edible when vegetable dyes are used to color the shells.

• • •

Ham has become a traditional meat for Easter. This practice stems from the time when pagans put legs of the pork in sand along the sea in the fall. The winter washings of salty sea water cured the meat that was eaten in the spring. Today we are fortunate in having a generous supply of scientifically cured wholesome hams from which you may select your favorite brand and cure.

You may select one of two types of ham to serve. The first, regular smoked ham must be cooked thoroughly before eating. Allow at least 30 minutes per pound at 350 degree F. to cook the ham. The second type ham is the fully cooked.

• • •

A ham that has been cured and cooked to an internal temperature of 140 degree - 150 degree F is edible as purchased but may be heated through and glazed before serving. Canned hams are fully cooked but must be kept under refrigeration as the label directs.

Whether you buy a whole ham, half, butt or shank portion do not add the glaze in baking until the last half hour.

Turkey is in heavy supply and a recommended buy. Beside the reduced crop marketings the carry over of turkeys is well above normal. There are all sizes of turkeys to fit every family size. To serve roasted turkey as an Easter meat will be an economy yet a very festive meat course. Plan to serve vegetables and salads that has affinity for many different flavors because of the mild flavor of the light meat.

To garnish salad plates, to make tossed salads the best buys will be in the endive, Romaine and escarole salad greens.

California iceberg lettuce prices reflect the results of recent bad weather conditions. Other suggested buys are green onions, radishes, cabbage, medium size green peppers and yellow dry onions. Supplies of frozen corn, canned corn and frozen green beans are plentiful.

For the holiday indulge in fresh pineapple, rhubarb, bananas; strawberries and imported melons mostly at moderate price levels. Grapefruit is the best citrus buy.

Banana Ham Glaze is made as follows:

Mash together 2 ripe bananas with ½ c. brown sugar. Add 1 teaspoon of ground cloves, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ cup pineapple juice. Spoon over ham; baste several times.

Decorate banana-glazed ham with slice of pineapple, maraschino cherry and thin slices of ripe bananas to decorate serving dish.

Household Hints

Restore old baskets by first washing with a pine cleaner solution. Then rinse and air dry the basket and they will be ready for flowers, fruit, bread. Paint the baskets if you like, but the scrubbed, unfinished look is popular.

Chocolate tweed pie is a stylish dessert

Chocolate Tweed Pie is a fashion-conscious bit of dessert frou-frou that's really more style than skill.

No half-baked pie, this! Chocolate Tweed Pie is a totally non-bake pie designed to keep kitchen commitments it a minimum. The generation that thinks young will have no trouble translating this recipe into a sweet ending for any dinner story.

You make it from ingredients easily kept on the shelf — marshmallows, semi-sweet chocolate squares, chopped nuts, whipped topping mix. Fluffy and flecked with grated semi-sweet chocolate, it's the sort of wonderful dessert easy enough to whip up on impulse for family; fancy enough to serve to discerning guests.

Many young Mother Hubbards have found that a cupboard stocked with dessert ingredients means more homemade goodies, since the ingredients are on hand when the cooking mood strikes or when the weather turns nasty. Most dessert ingredients have a fairly long shelf life, too, so stocking them is really quite simple.

In recent years, heightened interest in gourmet cookery has popularized semi-sweet chocolate and made it a basic ingredient to keep on the shelf for the continental desserts. This is the type of chocolate most often specified in French and Austrian recipes, and once you've tasted a dessert such as Chocolate Tweed Pie, you'll understand why. Here's a perfect balance of rich, true chocolate flavor that's never overpowering or harsh.

• • •

Chocolate Tweed Pie is made with 32 marshmallows, one cup milk, one envelope unflavored topping mix, two squares coarsely sweet chocolate, coarsely grated semi-one-half cup finely chopped walnuts, one teaspoon vanilla, and one unbaked 9-inch crumb crust, chilled.

You may use one cup heavy cream, whipped, in place of the topping mix.

Melt marshmallows with milk over lo wheat, stirring constantly. Cool. Prepare whipped topping mix as directed on package, omitting the vanilla. Set aside two tablespoons of the grated chocolate.

Then add nuts, vanilla, and remaining chocolate to marshmallow mixture. Set aside one-half cup of the prepared whipped topping and fold remainder into marshmallow mixture. Pour into pie shell. Chill until firm — about three hours. Garnish with dollops of remaining prepared whipped topping and grated chocolate.

Before cutting, dip pie pan briefly in hot water to loosen crust from pan.
