The Story Of Easter-Told Today

(Ed. Note — The story of the Crucifixion is one of the most important in Christianity. What appears below is an account of that event written in modern day language, as if it had happened today (Good Friday). It is presented with reverence in the spirit of Easter).

BULLETIN

Judas Iscariot, the man who betrayed Jesus Christ, his former friend, for 30 pieces of silver, has hanged himself.

FLASH — Gov. Pontius Pilate says he has word the religious leader will rise from the dead Sunday morning, ordered the tomb sealed.

By Staff Correspondent

GOLGOTHA (near Jerusalem) — Despite Governor Pontius Pilate's last minute efforts to save the life of the religious leader, Jesus of Nazareth, a mob of more than 1,000 persons today witnessed Him crucified on a cross along with two thieves at Golgotha.

Strange circumstances surrounded His death.

Neighboring towns were thrown into panic as an earthquake shook the area for miles around.

At prestime this evening, it was disclosed that the famous Temple at Jerusalem was destroyed. Eyewitnesses state that the veil was torn in shreds by 100-mile an hour winds.

According to the latest reports, many persons believed to have been dead and buried for hundreds of years, were seen walking the streets in the Holy City. Tombstones in outlying cemeteries have been overturned.

Hundreds of citizens say they witnessed the dead still rising from their graves.

At the time the condemned religious leader died, although it was mid-afternoon, the sky was overcast and darkness of night had already come.

* * *

Early this morning (Friday) the Chief Priests and Elders handed down the decision that Jesus, 33, a carpenter by trade, should be put to death.

Nine hours later, the young man was dead.

His body hung from a crude wooden cross. His hands and feet driven through with nails. His side bled from a large wound made by a soldier's spear.

On either side were two smaller crosses set up on Skull Hill.

As he died between the two thieves, the Christian leader uttered a loud cry:

"Eli, Eli,' lama sabach" (my God, my God, why have you forsaken Me?"

* * *

Prior, to the execution, the governor made an effort to save the man whom many believed to be the Son of God.

It was reported that the governor's wife disclosed a dream she had last night about the Nazarene.

Shortly before daylight, she told this reporter: "I told Pontius not to have anything to do with that man. I had a dream last night that told me He is innocent. When the prisoner comes before him this morning, I will warn my husband again."

* * *

Jesus appeared before the governor at about 9 a.m. The crowd had already gathered Word had gone out that the governor might consider a stay of execution.

With his hands bound behind his back, He refused to answer the governor's questions.

At one time, however He made a brief reply.

Asked, "Art Thou the King of the jews?" he answered, "Thou sayest it."

"I will wrap the body in pure linen cloth."

Pilate then suggested that according to custom, the people make the choice between Barabbas, a notorious thief, and Jesus.

Led by the Chief Priests and Elders, they cried out: "Destroy Jesus, the man who calls himself Christ."

At this point, the governor evidently recalled his wife's dream and he said cautiously: "What has this man done?"

It was then that the mob got out of hand and began to demand that Jesus be crucified.

As the group of angered citizens drew near to the governor's judgment seat he took water and washed his hands in full view and warned them:

"I am innocent of the blood of this just person. See ye to it."

* * *

After Barabbas had been released, soldiers took the condemned man into the Common Hall and stripped him of His garments.

A scarlet robe was placed over His thin shoulder. Less of weight was apparent since the religious leader spent several days prior to the trial in fasting and praying.

A crown of thorns was placed on His head. Soldiers were heard jesting about His being King.

They mocked Him by placing a reed in his right hand and bowing down before Him.

As they led him from the Hall to deliver him to the people, the reed was taken from his hand and He was struck with it. The mob tore the red cloak from his shoulders, gave Him back His old clothes and led Him and struck Him.

As they led Him from the Hall to deliver him to the people, the reed was taken from His hand and He was struck with it. The mob tore the red cloak from His shoulders, gave Him back His old clothes and led Him away.

The young leader was made to carry his own cross on the way to Golgotha Hill where executions take place.

Members of the mob lined the way, jeered at Him and struck Him.

However, an unidentified man, believed to be a Cyrene named Simon, was seen at one time along the route helping Him drag the heavy wooden frame.

Jesus was raised to the cross about 2 p.m. He refused the drink offered Him. It was said the liquid contained vinegar and gall.

Members of the crowd took the man's clothing and divided them. Some sold pieces as souvenirs.

One of His followers told this reporter later that the Prophet Himself had foretold this incident, had declared that the selling of His clothes was "fulfilment of the Scriptures."

The mob did not leave the scene until Jesus was dead.

Many of them sat on the hillsides and pointed to the sign nailed to the top of the cross: 'This is the King of the Jews."

They shouted: "If He is the Son of God, why doesn't He come down from the cross?"

"He saved others. Why doesn't He save Himself?"

"If He is King of Israel, let Him come down from the cross and we will believe Him."

"He trusted in God, let Him deliver Him now. He said He was the Son of God."

Even the thieves on the crosses beside Him asked Him questions with the same thought.

* * *

When this reporter returned to the scene of the execution, the crowd had gone.

A wealthy citizen from Arimathaea named Joseph claimed the body.

He said: "I will wrap the body in pure linen cloth."

One of Pilate's soldiers arrived and ordered: "Wherever you bury Him, the tomb must be sealed."

He reported: "The governor has received the word that this man claimed He will rise from the dead on Sunday morning.

"The governor wants to take no chances on that."
