Carr's 50 points earn N. Dame win, MVP nod

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — All-America candidate Austin Carr scored 25 points in each half Tuesday night to spark Notre Dame to a 99-92 upset over seventh-ranked Kentucky before a sellout crowd of 37,245.

The former D.C. schoolboy sensation wore out three Kentucky defenders assigned to cover him in the first half, and had little trouble penetrating a Kentucky zone defense in the second half.

He won the Bernie Shively most valuable player award by unanimous vote of sportswriters and sportscasters.

Kentucky, steadied by seniors Larry Steele and Terry Mills, whittled the margin down from 53-39 at the half to 95-90 with 32 seconds to play.

But John Pelick and Carr sank two free throws apiece to lift the Fighting Irish to their final margin and their fourth victory in six games.

Another Washington (D.C.) youngster, Collis Jones, contributed 25 points and a game-high 14 rebounds to the winning attack.

Grant gives rec program to schools

Baltimore City public schools, in cooperation with the Baltimore City Bureau of Recreation, has been granted special state funds in the amount of $117,473 for a special community school center program.

The primary objective of the project is to provide increased recreational, educational, and leisure time activities to youth and adults in the communities involved. The project is to include activities based on the request of the people residing in the communities.

Emphasis will be placed upon family life, race relations, government, and law enforcement programs. Recreational activities will include instruction in instrumental and choral music, dance, dramatic arts, and craft activities.

Extensive use will be made of gymnasiums, auditoriums, shops, art rooms, music rooms, swimming pools classrooms, home economics rooms, and other school facilities.

The Department of Education and Bureau of Recreation will contribute matching services to the total project. The program will operate between Dec. 14, 1970, and Aug. 28, 1971.

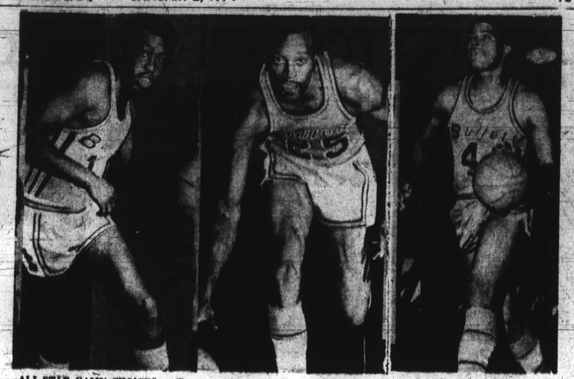
The cooperative program will be directed by the project coordinators, Mrs. Pearl C. Brackett, assistant superintendent of Baltimore's Community Schools Division and A. L. Cottrill, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation.

The following schools will be involved in various aspects of the total program: receiving assistance in programming from the Department of Recreation: No. 42 Garrison Junior High School; No. 70 Southern High School; No. 96 Clifton Park Junior High School.

2. A creative arts program will be available at the following schools: No. 16 Johnston Square Elementary School; No. 42 Garrison Junior High School; No. 87 Lombard Junior High School; No. 78 Harlem Park Junior High School.

3. A family life program will be offered at these community schools: No. 7-74 Cecil-Oliver Cromwell complex; No. 57 Lombard Junior High School; No. 78 Harlem Park Junior High School; No. 91 Gwynns Falls Junior High School; No. 229 Pimlico Junior High School.

4. Other recreational programs will be offered at: No. 41 Hamilton Junior High Recreation Center; No. 60 Gwynns Falls Elementary-Hanlon Recreation Center; No. 79 Lemmel Junior High School; No. 160 Carter G. Woodson Elementary School; No. 180 Cherry Hill Junior High School; No. 434 Carver Vocational-Technical Senior High School; Easterwood Recreation Center.



ALL-STAR GAME CHOICES — Three members of the Baltimore Bullets have been named to the basic eight for the East in the annual National Basketball Association All Star game, to be held Jan. 12, at San Diego. Earl Monroe (left) is a starter along with the Knicks' Willis Reed and Walt Frazier, the 76ers' Billy Cunningham and the Celtics' John Havlicek. Gus Johnson (center) and Wes Unseld (right) join Boston's Jo Jo White as reserves. The remaining members of the squad will be picked later by the coaches. On the West team are Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor and Oscar Robertson, Detroit's Dave Bing, Chicago's Bob Love, Los Angeles' Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West, Phoenix's Connie Hawkins and San Francisco's Jerry Lucas.

'Night-before' session plots woes for Colts

Shortly after dinner tomorrow (Saturday) evening, six of the Oakland Raiders will gather in the hotel room of cornerback Willie Brown and the subject of their conversation will be Colts quarterback John Unitas.

Brown, regarded as the premier cornerback in the American Football Conference, is a co-captain of Baltimore's opponent at the stadium Sunday. He says he and other members of the Raiders' defensive backfield hold what they call a "night before" session prior to every big game.

Joining Brown in these meetings are Dave Grayson, Nemiah Wilson, Kent McCloughan, George Atkinson and Jimmy Warren.

According to Willie, the group holds its own viewing of films of their upcoming opponents.

"We study every phase of the other fellows' offense. We look for the strengths and weaknesses, and get a fix on what the quarterback seems to favor.

"For a long time we weren't playing as a unit. Now we are. These meetings have served to give us cohesion and confidence.

"When (John) Unitas looks across the line of scrimmage Sunday, he's going to see the best defense in football, no matter what anyone says," Brown concludes.

From the Baltimore standpoint, it is obvious that a team effort will be needed in this title battle.

The offensive line, spearheaded by Bob Vogel, John Williams and Bill Curry, will have a job on its hands clearing the way for the spotty ground attack, and holding off the pass rush for Unitas.

Meanwhile, defensive Captain Fred Miller and his cohorts — Bubba Smith, Roy Hilton and Billy Ray Smith — will be occupied controlling the big, power runners of the Raiders while at the same time pressuring quarterback Daryle Lamonica. This latter phase of the defense will be needed to negate the classy receiving tandem of Warren Wells, Fred Biletnikoff, Ray Chester, etc.

"Baltimore will be tougher than Kansas City," offensive guard Gene Upshaw says. "Both of us want to avenge losses in the Super Bowl. Look what the Colts did to Cincinnati, the just kicked them in the pants (17-0).

The Raiders won't be out for a kick in the pants Sunday.

There are only three defensive starters on this year's team who didn't start three years ago in the Super Bowl — when the Raiders were kicked in the pants by Green Bay, 33-14.

Pimlico ready, expects 'best-ever' race meet

Historic Pimlico Race Course rolls out the red carpet Monday for the first of its two 30-day meetings.

Pimlico will race through Saturday, Feb. 6. Post time will be 1 p.m. daily.

"I never have seen our plant look any better," said track president Herman Cohen as he watched painters retouching Pimlico's colorful grandstand.

"We are excited about our racing at this coming meeting," Cohen said. "We have a large number of good horses on hand in Maryland—including many stables which shipped here from New York at the close of the Aqueduct meeting. Racing here will be good."

The opening day feature will bring together the state's finest newly turned 3-year-old fillies in the six furlongs of the $27,500-added Politely Stakes.

Restricted to Maryland-breds, the Politely is named in honor of the outstanding Maryland-bred mare by the same name, who raced in the colors of Mrs. Richard C. duPont.

Pimlico will offer five other stakes during the 30 days, including the $25,000-added Old Line Handicap, the $7,500-added Challedon Stakes, the $25,000-added Pimlico Stakes, the $5,000-added City of Baltimore Handicap and the $25,000-added Flirtation Stakes.

Murtaugh joins Weaver as 'Tops' top managers

Pittsburgh's Danny Murtaugh, the National League Manager of the Year, and the Orioles' Earl Weaver, whom many consider the best field general in the American League, will be honored at the 14th annual "Tops in Sports" Banquet and Dance January 8 at the Eastwind.

The two will receive their awards from the Maryland Professional Baseball Players Association, which each year sponsors the baseball banquet.

* * *

Murtaugh, who began his professional baseball career in 1937 at Cambridge, Md., returned as Pirates manager this year after leaving the post in 1964 because of health reasons.

He guided the Bucs to an 88-73 season and the Eastern Division Championship. Previously, as interim manager, he led the Pirates to an astonishing second place finish in 1960, and in 1960 he directed the club's pennant winning and World Series victory. He was named Manager of the Year both seasons.

Weaver, the peppery Oriole skipper, led the Birds to their second straight American League flag and a five-game World Series victory over Cincinnati.

Under his leadership the Orioles posted the most wins in the Major Leagues (108) for the second straight year and established an American League record for most wins in two consecutive seasons (217).
