MRS. GRACE HUNT, executive director of the YWCA's of the Greater Baltimore area, will be cited when Lambda Kappa Mu Sorority observes Founder's Day on January 23rd.

YWCA open houses usher in season

New classes and facilities are being offered and new clubs organized in the YWCA for the winter season.

Samplings from the many new offerings from the four YWCA centers in the Greater Baltimore Area include a musical comedy which will be produced during the Spring season by children, ages six to twelve, in the music classes of Harold Stern at the YWCA at 1912 Madison Avenue.

A new "Health Spa" has been opened at the Central Center YWCA, 128 West Franklin Street, with an exerow and three bikes. Half hour sessions can be scheduled during the day and evening at a minimal charge. New classes at the Harford County Center in Bel Air are all being taught by young in structors, the "under thirty" set. A commercial artist, a modern artist, a young service wife, and a young dancer make up the staff of instructors.

In the North Area Center a new photography course will be taught by Claude Kendall, of the Department of Education photography department. Also, the Photo Guild of Baltimore, a club founded by the late A. Aubrey Bodine, has recently moved from International Center to the Towson Center.

International Center has been closed and the programs formerly offered there are now administered by "International Services" and are held at Central Center 128 West Franklin Street English and Citizenship classes are on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 12 noon to 3 p.m., and Italian and Spanish Club dances are on Saturdays.

Registrations will be accepted by the YWCA at 1912 Madison Avenue from January 6 to 19 when a registration card party will be held. An open house and registration will be held at Central YWCA Center on January 18; at Glen Burnie, January 12; at Linthicum Heights, January 13; at Catonsville, January 28.

Registration coffees were held for the Harford County Area at Joppatowne on January 7 and at Bel Air on January 12. Registration coffees will be held by the North Area YWCA on January 20 at Cockeysville; January 21 at Towson; January 26 at Northwood; January 28 at Maryland Presbyterian Church. Call the North Area YWCA for information about registration at the Village of Cross Keys.

Brochures listing classes are available free from each center. To receive a brochure or for information, call the center most convenient. Addresses and phone numbers are as follows: North Area Center, 21 West Susquehanna Avenue, Towson, 823-8011; Central Center, 128 West Franklin Street, 685-1460; Madison Avenue Center, 1912 Madison Avenue, 669-1881; and Harford County Center, 10 North Main Street, Bel Air, Md., 879-0780.

Teacher heads musical tribute to King Jan. 28

Mrs. Margaret D. Armstrong, a school music teacher leads a citizens committee for "A Musical Tribute" to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Mrs. Armstrong has been assisted by Mrs. Jacquelyn Hardy, Dr. Don Regier, Mrs. Pearl C. Brackett, Paul R. Budny, Lloyd G. McDonald, Roosevelt Hobbs, Jerry Hynson, J. Roland Sullivan, Oscar Jobe, John Mohamed, Ike White and Edward Z. Watson Jr.

The program will be held at the Lyric Theatre on Jan. 28, at 8 p.m.

NAACP installation on Sun., Dr. King V. Cheek, speaker

The Baltimore Branch of the NAACP announces that Dr. King V. Cheek, president-elect of Morgan State College, will gave the keynote address at the branch's Installation Service for new officers, Sunday, January 17th, 5 p.m., at the City Temple Baptist Church, Eutaw and Dolphin Sts.

Musical accompaniments will be furnished by the Morgan State College Choir and the City Temple Baptist Church Choir. Admission is free.

NAACP President, Mrs. Enolia P. McMillian, requests that add officers and Board members be present for the installation and for the first meeting of the Executive Board on Wednesday, January 20th, at 4:15 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Ave. branch of the Pratt Library.

The regular monthly meeting for the membership, notes Mrs. McMillan, normally scheduled for the 4th Tuesday in the month has been cancelled.

Black Assembly members get these committees

ANNAPOLIS — Baltimore City's 12 state senators are scheduled to caucus here today (Friday), in another effort to determine who will head the delegation.

The long time reign of Sen. Joseph A. Bertorelli (1st D.) is strongly being challenged by Sen. Julian L. Lapides (2nd D.), who has demonstrated far more liberal tendencies as a lawmaker.

Standing as one third of the city delegation, Baltimore's four black senators will play a major role in the selection, and could hold the key.

General belief is that at least three of them favor Sen. Lapides.

However, the city's Mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro 3rd is pressing for the retention of Sen. Bertorelli, with whom he long has had political ties.

The mayor contends he is more receptive to his administration's programs.

There is a possibility that, to ease the problem, there might be created the post of vice chairman.

Mitchell has openings for academies

Congressman-Elect Parren J. Mitchell is accepting applications for appointment to the U.S. Military Service academies through Jan. 31.

Mr. Mitchell said that he still has open five nominations for the Naval Academy, 10 for the Merchant Marine Academy, an indefinite number for the Air Force Academy and an unlimited number for the Coast Guard Academy.

Other nominations, including all of those for the Military Academy at West Point, were exhausted by outgoing Congressman Samuel Friedel, he said.

Nominations to the Naval and Air Force academies are on a congressional district basis. Those for the Merchant Marine are on a state-wide basis and for the Coast Guard a nation-wide basis.

The congressman recommends a number of candidates to the academies for their final selection.

Candidates should write to Congressman-Elect Mitchell, expressing their interest and their preferred service. Candidates will receive applications from his office and later will be subject to written and physical examinations.

Letters should be addressed to Congressman Elect Mitchell's Washington, office, 1228 Longworth Building, Washington, D.C.

Iota Phi Lambda initiation brings five to Kappa chapter

with Lula Mackay

Sorors of Kappa Chapter, Iota Phi Lambda, zipped through an important business session, Saturday, to get to the important and greatly anticipated ceremony that inducted five young women into the chapter. The new members are Mesdames Dorothy Baker, Lucy Davis, Deloris Davenport, Gwendolyn Richardson and Margaret Wicks. The initiation ceremony was conducted by Soror Blanche Pettiford, dean of pledgees and Soror Maude Parker, assistant dean of pledgees and followed by a gala friendship session.

Early in the evening the sorors had gathered for the formal installation of officers by the president, Soror Vivian Young, who along with Soror May Ames had been installed at the December meeting of the chapter in Washington, when Soror Evelyn D. Wilkey entertained the group.

Installed Saturday were Sorors Eloise Taylor, second vice president; Geraldine Hooper, recording secretary; Evelyn Faulk, corresponding secretary; June Brown, financial secretary; Blanche Williams, treasurer; Isabel McConnell, journalist; and Blanche Pettiford, dean of pledgees.

These, along with appointed officers: Sorors Claudine Harden and Emma Brown, sergeants-at-arms; Sandra Ray, parliamentarian; Christine Frazer, historian; and Marion Ransom, assistant recording secretary, will guide the chapter during 1971.

Highlights of the business meeting was the announcement by the scholarship committee chairman that the College Entrance Examination Board applications will be submitted to the scholarship board in February.

Applicants will be young women from the business departments of high schools who are planning to continue in business education and administration and allied subject. Sorors Blanche Pettiford and Hazel Hyman are co-chairmen of his committee.

I was also announced that the observance of Negro History Week will be Feb. 7-13. Theme for this year's national program is "African Civilization and Culture, A Worthy Historical Background." Sorors Lenore Anderson and Geraldine Hooper are co-chairmen for this observance.

All of the activities were held in the Elsinore Avenue home of Soror Gladys L. Ball, who was joined by Sorors Mary Ames, Lenore Anderson, Gladys Ball and Vivian Bird as co-hostesses.

Present were Sorors Mary Ames, Lenore Anderson, Gladys Ball, Vivian Bird, June Brown, M. Elizabeth Carter, Mary Ervin, Evelyn Faulk, Christine Frazer, Geraldine Hooper, Hazel Hyman, Isabel McConnell, Lois McDowell, Maude Parker, Blanche Pettiford, Ethel Poindexter, Fannie Poulson, Sandra Ray, Eloise Taylor, Mable Waters, Blanche Williams, Vivian Young, plus the new sorors Dorothy Baker, Lucy Davis, Deloris Davenport, Gwendolyn Richardson, and Margaret Wicks.
