Who is your choice for Woman of the Year?

Who is your choice for Baltimore's "Woman of the Year?"

She could be your mother, your sister, a worker in your community or in your church.

The AFRO-AMERICAN and the Greyhound Lines, in their annual search, will name a "Woman of the Year" for 1971 on February 6.

She will be honored at a luncheon, and will receive an award.

The awards contest is the outgrowth of an idea that there are undoubtedly many women in the Baltimore area who possess outstanding qualities and have made substantial contributions to various aspects of community life, but have not received public recognition.

And who is better qualified to find iris outstanding person than our readers?

Now it is up to readers to send in their ballots for the woman who they believe deserves the title of Baltimore Woman of the Year.

Enter as often as you like. Remember that each entry must be on an entry blank from the AFRO-AMERICAN or on a reasonable facsimile.

The winner will be selected by qualified judges and be notified.

The awardee and two honor at the Woman of the honor at be Woman of the Year Luncheon, at which time she will receive an award. Other finalists and feminine civic and social leaders will also be invited to attend this luncheon.

The host for the luncheon will be Joe Black, Vice President-Special Markets, The Greyhound Corporation. The AFRO-AMERICAN will co-sponsor the luncheon.

3,000 at Martn Luther King tribute sponsored by schools

By ADAH K. JENKINS
(AFRO Music Critic)

The classic walls of the Lyric echoed to the immortal words of Martin Luther King, Jr. as educational forces of the city joined to commemorate the birthday of this great leader. At the Lyric close to 2,000 people bridged the gap of race, class and age to pay tribute to King.

Adults and young people participated in the concert which included the Baltimore Symphony, the glee clubs of Douglass and Patterson High Schools, the Baltimore Community School, Goucher College and Johns Hopkins University, all under the dynamic direction of Dr. Elliot Galkin.

Featured were works by black composers William Grant Still, Harry T. Burleigh, and two compositions by local musicians, Edward M. Dow of the Model Cities Cultural Arts faculty and William Cummings. "Something Beautiful" and "Free Am I," sung by the Community School chorus were conducted by Dow and Thomas Delaime.

Joseph Eubanks, bass baritone from Morgan College's music faculty was soloist in "Deep River" and narrator for Copeland's "A Lincoln Portrait." An ovation followed the singing of "Song of Democracy" by massed chorus and the symphony.

Excerpts from Dr. King's speeches were read by Lillie Patterson, the Rev. Sidney Daniels, Paul Hjelmerelk, Thomas Cash, Anthony Davis and Cong. Parren Mitchell.

Donald Shaefer, president of the City Council and Dr. Thomas Sheldon, superintendent of public education, extended greetings.

The tribute was the brainchild of Mrs. Margaret Armstrong coordinator of cultural arts in the Baltimore Public Schools.

Mrs. Pearl Brackett, director of Community Schools, Dr. Galuin and Thomas Delaime headed the committee in charge of the tribute which was organized and conducted admirably.

Phillips on state board of embalmers

AFRO BUREAU
ANNAPOLIS — Governor Mandel has announced the appointment of Arlington S. Phillips, veteran Baltimore mortician, to the State Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers.

Mr. Phillips will fill out the unexpired term of the late Charles R. Law, former board secretary who was to have served until May of this year. However, Mr. Phillips is expected to be reappointed in May.

The Phillips appointment was among several sent down by the governor late Wednesday, of most of which included county post. The appointments have no relation to the governor's traditional "green bag," which will come later.

MTA pledges fair employment practices

At its public meeting Wednesday, the Metropolitan Transit Authority Board agreed to give more attention to minority employment.

The resolution was presented by Henry J. Parks, local businessman and a member of the M.T.A. Board.

It calls for a special effort on the part of the General Manager and staff to include minority group, individuals and companies in the construction of the proposed Metropolitan Rapid Transit System in the Baltimore Area.

The resolution makes reference to encouraging minority group enterprises to compete for supply, service, and construction contracts connected with the building of the Rapid Transit System.

It calls also for the hiring of "qualified minority workers in the planning and engineering" of the System, and for the development of a "program to train disadvantaged minority workers" to take part in the construction and operation of the System.

An M.T.A. spokesman said that most of the resolution is a restatement of the M.T.A.'s current policy on hiring of minority workers. However, the development of a training program will be a new innovation which will apply, primarily to the Rapid Transit System, rather than to the bus operation now in effect.

The spokesman added that the Authority has not yet begun most of its hiring for the new System, and emphasizes its intention to use fair employment practices when hiring does take place.

HEAD TABLE at Founder's Day luncheon which marked 34th anniversary of Lambda Kappa Mu Sorority, in Baltimore, Saturday seated from left: Mrs. Imogene B. Douglas, civic leader and past basileus of Iota Chapter, who received the sorority's highest award, the distinguished service key; Mrs. Margaret Yates, first antibasileus of Iota Chapter; Mrs. Elizabeth Proctor of Washington, grand basileus; Mrs. Grace Hunt, director of Greater Baltimore YWCA branches, who received the sorority's community service award; Miss Jacqueline Fleming, Mrs. Camilla Williams, Mrs. Dorothy Stone, David L. Glenn, director of the Community Relations Commission of Baltimore and speaker, who received a distinguished service award; and Mrs. Louise G. Turks, chairman of the Founder's Day committee, who presided.

Gadabouting in Baltimore

Fashionable Lamba Kappas spark week with luncheon

with Lula Mackay

The Colonial Room of the Sheraton-Baltimore Inn was filled to capacity with smartly gowned women and a sprinkling of interesting men, Saturday, as Iota Chapter of Lambda Kappa Mu gathered in and out-of-town sorors and friends to celebrate the sorority's 34th anniversary. The afternoon wasn't, of course, devoted only to the couture fashion showing, but was also the show case for persons of achievement who were cited by the national sorority as well as Iota chapter.

For example, the national office's highest award, The Distinguished Service Key, went to Soror Imogene B. Douglas, past basileus of Iota Chapter, civic leader, church woman, etc. . . . and the national basileus, Soror Elizabeth Proctor of Silver Spring, Md. came here to make the presentation: Iota's basileus, Mrs. Thelma Addison, presented Mrs. Douglas for the award.

To Mrs. Grace Hunt, director of Metropolitan area YWCA branches, went the Community Service Award from Iota Chapter. And David L. Glenn, director of Baltimore Community Relations Committee, was recipient of a Community Service Award.

And then, Soror Louise G. Turks, chairman of the Founder's Day Committee and presiding officer, paid tribute to "Unsung Heroines," citing 10 chapter members and presenting to them certificates in recognition of their services and support to the chapter.

The 10 were Sorors Geraldine Smith, Arabella Ross, Betty Shelton, Bertha Sembly, Alma Redden, Veta Grieg, Myrtle Jones, Fannie Ewell, Mary Mitchell and Marguerite Wilkens.

A thrilling facet to the program was the magnificent voice of Roslyn Wood, who was soloist for the luncheon, and the background music of the Haithcock Ensemble

But back to the clothes line:

Mabel Byrd swerped in a chic knit and leather creation (it had to be an import, picked up on one of those jaunts abroad). The dress in beige knit with white trim, including huge frogs down the front . . . the full length leather coat also beige and edged at collar and cuffs with white.

Olivia Bates, who presented the honorees for awards, chose a pink knit two-piecer . . . topped it with a saucy mink hat. But the mink hat to top mink hats was the wide-brimmed chapeaux worn by Ida Wroten, who under-pinned it with a forest green ensemble. Margaret Yates was in classic black and ropes and ropes of pearls. And Mrs. Turks was a neat number in blue silk dressmaker suit and off-white hat. Mrs. Henry Johnson was a pretty one in two shades of purple, a blouse, ruffled at neckline and wrist in orchid worn with a purple suit and white mink hat.

Grace Hunt was handsome in a double tweed knit, a matching blue blouse, white hat, pearls and a lush corsage of roses pinned on her by her hostesses. And Madam Basileus (Thelma Addison) in red . . . the only color relief tiny blocks in white and blue that decored the top of her knit ensemble,

If I had a fairy godmother and she offered me a choice of gifts I'd immediately say "Give me some of that flair for doing almost anything that Bernice Monroe is endowed with."

Her party on Sunday evening was a beaut. Guests gathered at 6-ish for cocktails on the second and third levels of her four-level house in Morgan Park. Towards eight they tripped to the first level clubroom for supper at cleverly decorated, large circular tables.

The affair was basicly a meeting of the Baltimore Chapter of Gay Northeasterners. It specifically honored Mrs. Monroe's special guests, her sister, Camilla Coverdale of Philadelphia Willabelle Bullock of Washington and Carmav Brooks, also of Washington.

But Bernice had a potpourri of club folks from the Gays, the Links and the Girl Friends, chiefly.

Her club members (the Gays) included Mae Peck, Helen Lee, Hilda Higgins, Emma Bright, Grace Burkett, Lillian O'Daniel, Edna Campbell, Jeanette Christmas, Dottie Hughes, Carol Diggs, Beth Walker and Verda Welcome.

Links on hand included Etta Phifer, Catherine Adams, and Jimmy Laforest. And there were Girl Friends Margaret Driver, Doris Wheeler, Theta Wilson, Gaynelle Spaulding and Lula Mackay and a batch of charming ladies who are scattered within a number of popular organizations, including Wilhelmina Garner, Hazel Fleming, Jacqueline Smith, Otyce Froe, Margaret Harmon, Josephine Brown, Arnetta Lottier and Mae Fortune.

And returning to "flair," the hostess set a pace in a brilliantly flowered floor length cotton satin quilted skirt, worn with a body shirt and chunks of silver jewelry, including a hund-

MISS ANGELA PECK and James O. Williams were married in the New Shiloh Baptist Church, Baltimore, Saturday afternoon.

Miss Peck bride of James Williams

Miss Angela Theresa Peck and James O. Williams Jr. exchanged vows in a double-ring wedding ceremony in New Shiloh Baptist Church, Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Harold Carter, minister of the church, officiated. Music was by Victor Myrick, organist; and Miss Margaret Lindsay, soloist.

Miss Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Peck, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white peau de soie, with a pearl motif down the front and pearl trim on the ring neckline and cuffs. The gown featured a chapel train, and her veil was shoulder length. Her bridal bouquet was of white carnations interspersed with tiny pink roses.

Her sole attendant was her sister, Miss Ellen Catherine Peck, who was gowned in burgundy velvet, had a headpiece of a velvet Dior bow and attached veil, and carried white chrysanthemums.

Irving Dixon was best man. The men of the wedding party were dapper in morning trousers and Prince Edward coats.

Mrs. Peck wore a hot pink silk ensemble for her daughter's nuptials, and the mother of the bride's groom, Mrs. James O. Williams Sr., was gowned in a blue and silver brocade suit.

A reception for 200 guests was held at Mardel's West Wing following the wedding. Among out-of-town guests were Mrs. Mamie Vincent of Richmond, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. David Andrews of Washington.

The new Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Douglass High School and Coppin State College, is a teacher at Public School No. 64. Mr. Williams, a product of Edmondson High Schools and Morgan State College is a clerk in General Motors Parts Division.

The couple is at home on Moreland Ave.
