Former football player declares TV pace slow

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Fred Williamson plays the role of Steve Bruce, the new romantic interest in "Julia."

While Fred is an ardent character on the show, he is a very cool bachelor away from the series.

Williamson is a former defensive halfback and flanker back in professional football having played for the Oakland Raiders, the Kansas City Chiefs, the San Francisco 49ers and the Pittsburgh Steelers.

He lives in a Beverly Hills apartment which he describes as a hornet's nest, the main theme being spider webs. Williamson built most of the furniture himself, including an 8-foot lounging cot, and a stereo and television cabinet that dominate the living room.

"To keep out of trouble, I build things," he says.

He also dabbles in oil painting, specializing in football scenes, in some of which Fred Williamson is shown crashing into a ball carrier.

After 10 years of professional football, Williamson finds acting a happier means of earning a living. But the hours are inferior.

It is not uncommon for Fred to work three days a week from 8 a.m. to 5:30 in the evening. The pace of television work finds him squirming with impatience.

"Sitting around a set drives me crazy after the activity of pro ball where you are in constant motion all the time," he says. "Even the bruises felt good the next day because you remember how you got them."

When he's not building furniture, acting or painting, Williamson can be found on the golf course where his handicap wavers between a 2 and a 3.

FRED WILLIAMSON
very cool bachelor

He is careful about dates. If a girl has a marital look in her eye, Fred keeps walking.

On dates he enjoys taking a girl to dinner for quiet conversation. He then squires her to a movie, seeing as many films as possible to improve his own acting techniques.

Williamson works to improve the lot of his fellow blacks, but says he refuses to deal in ultimatums.

black and white is green — money," Fred says. "I'm part of the Black Economic another football player who became an actor."

Williamson stands 6-feet, 3-inches tall and weighs 230 pounds.

Union with Jim Brown,

His wardrobe on the show is adequate for his role as a law student. He designs his own clothes off-screen. He leans to knit suits with bell-bottom trousers and Edwardian jackets in a variety of patterns and colors.

Williamson sees his acting career as transitory as was his football playing.

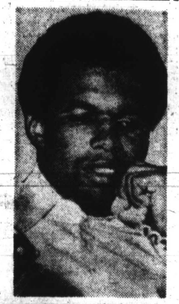
Eventually he plans to move to the San Francisco bay area where he believes there is more creative atmosphere for painting and the other arts.

Meanwhile he is working at becoming the best actor possible.

He loves steaks and salads and when he doesn't go out to a restaurant, Williamson usually talks one of his dates into stopping by to fix dinner.

FEBRUARY 12

The Johns Hopkins University Barnstormers will perform "A Streetcar Named Desire" in the Barn Theater on the university's Homewood Campus.



FASHION MODEL — Gale Sawyers of the Chicago Bears, appears as a fashion model, along with the Mets' Tom Seaver, the Dolphins' Bob Griese and Carol Channing on the Dick Cavett Show Tuesday (9th) night.

All The Kings Men, put it together

Maceo and All The Kings Men, formerly The Famous Flames whose penetrating and driving musical talents helped to catapult James Brown into orbit during the mid-fifties are currently being featured at the Chanticleer.

The group, all veteran musicians now have their first hit recording since leaving the James Brown aggregation on the market.

"I GOT TO GETCHA!" was written and arranged by Maceo Turner, leader and inspiration of the group which includes, Melvin Parker, drums; Jimmy Nolen, guitar; Elvonzo Kellum, guitar; Bernard Odum, bass; Joseph Davis, trumpet; Richard Griffith, trumpet; L. D. Williams, saxophone.

In talking about the circumstances which influenced the group to leave James Brown, Maceo told the AFRO, "there was no real hard feelings on our part when we left. We wanted more money because we felt we worked as hard and deserved it as much as he did.

"He didn't feel that way so we've got to do it on our own."

Doing it on your own in their business isn't easy but Maceo and Company have made a start. Their album "House Of The Fox," is stunning in its range. It's a reservoir of music to do your thing by, whatever it is.

The going is tough, Maceo admits but as a patron of the club said, while the group was performing, "that rhythm section is a wall and it is." You can't knock it down and it's bound to grow higher.
