Glenwood Country Club plans 'Sweetheart Ball'

Glenwood Country Club's first affair of '71, a Sweetheart Ball, scheduled for Saturday evening, is scheduled to be a "fantastic gathering," Rooseveit Nixon, president, said today.

* * *

For over eight years, the Glenwood Country Club located in West Friendship, Maryland, has been the mecca for family entertainment in the Baltimore-Washington area. Saturday's affair begins at 9 p.m. and ends at 2 a.m. Breakfast will be served at 1 a.m. Music will be provided by the hard rocking, Soul Socking "Cee-Jays."

"We're in the midst of a membership drive, and this dance will be an occasion for old members to meet new members," commented Mrs. Loretta Lassiter, social director for Glenwood. She went on to state: "It is our intention to double our membership rolls for 1971."

The Glenwood Country Club can be reached by going out route 40 ... 20 miles to route 32. Turn right 1 mile to the Glenwood Country Club.

Miss Black Teenage America pageant set for Baltimore

The Miss Black Teenage America Pageant Inc., announced recently that the National Finals to select Miss Black Teenage America for Baltimore, Maryland, September 8th, 9th and 10th. 1971.

1971 marks the first year for this national event to honor black teenage females 15, 16, and 17 years old. Local and State Pageants will be held throughout the year.

Health Council charges lead to investigation

Several weeks ago, to date has found 'enough charges were made by the Community Health Council of Maryland, Inc., that certain fund-raising organizations were discriminating against inner city health agencies in the distribution of their funds.

Dr. Eugene Byrd, acting chairman of the council, called for an investigation of the distribution of funds by the United Fund and the Commerce and Industry Combined Heaith Appeal (CICHA).

The council charged that funds collected from the inner city were going to health agencies outside the city entirely.

The Human Relations Commission accordingly began an investigation, and to make them want to dig deeper," according to Dr. Byrd.

He added that the charges "have been substantiated beyond expectation." Dr. Byrd is satisfied that the investigation will bring to light ample proof of the charges of discrimination, and that useful action will result.

The investigation will probably go on for at least another six weeks, Dr. Byrd stated, since there are over 100 agencies to be examined by the Human Relations Commission.

The Community Health Council awaits the commission's report before planning any further action in this case.

Neighborhood development program asks added funds

The Department of Housing and Community Development received Board of Estimates permission this week to ask the federal government for $4.1 million to pay for the second year of its Neighborhood Development Program urban renewal activities in three areas of Baltimore and to extend it into a fourth.

The application to the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development would permit continuation of HCD's work in the Orchard-Biddle area of West Baltimore, the Oliver area east of Greenmount Cemetery, and the Chapel area in southeast Baltimore.

In the first year of the NDP program, ending March 31, HCD will have bought and cleared 563 parcels of land in those areas, preparatory to construction of new housing.

Housing Commissioner Robert C. Embry Jr., said that in the first year of activity, Baltimore accomplished everything it had set out to do. This is one of the principal Federal criteria in deciding whether a city should continue to receive NDP funding.

* * *

If approved, the program will be extended in its second year into two blocks in the MUND (Model Urban Neighborhood Demonstration) area.

The block bounded by Calvert, 22nd Street, Hunter Street and 23rd Street would be cleared to provide new housing, and the block bounded by Greenmount Avenue, 23rd Street, 24th Street and Boone Street would provide a new playfield.

In each case, plans were developed in cooperation with the area residents, Mr. Embry said.

The application also asks extension of the Orchard-Biddle area in West Baltimore to include the entire Seton Hill Historical Preservation Area. This inclusion was requested by the neighborhood residents so that the entire area can be planned at once.

The rehabilitation funds will provide grants to enable the start of renovation of houses in the Oliver area, some 40 blocks bounded by North Avenue, Greenmount Cemetery, Hoffman Street and Broadway. In all, 409 houses in the area are to be rehabilitated.

A pilot block, at North Avenue and Broadway, will be established to test the effect of rehabilitation in the east side of the area.

Temporary playgrounds will be established on a total of two acres of land in Oliver. In each case, the land is part of a block for which planning is not complete; the playgrounds are being built rather than simply allowing the land to lie fallow.

In each of the areas, HCD is working with potential developers, Mr. Embry said.

NDP is a particularly advantageous means of accomplishing urban renewal, Mr. Embry said. It allows immediate action in areas which need assistance while further detailed planning is being accomplished, and makes federal funds available for action instead of waiting the two years it generally takes to plan an entire conventional renewal area.

"And in showing, through our first-year activity, that Baltimore can move, can show results, we feel that we have strengthened our chances of getting additional federal help in the future," Mr. Embry said.

Provident to open quarter-way house

A meeting called by a group from the 4th District to discuss with their City Councilmen their concern for the delay in placing the Provident Quarter-Way House ordinance before the rest of the City Council, was held Wednesday in the meeting room of School No. 157.

Present were City Council members, Mrs. Victorine Adams and Robert Marshall, who answered questions of the assembled residents.

It was pointed out that during the three-month delay approximately 120 male alcoholics would have been treated had the House been allowed to open.

* * *

This would have had the effect of bring thousands of dollars in Medicare and Social Services money into the community, as well as providing work for many men currently unemployed.

Additionally more than two thousand man hours worth of individual, group, and family counseling would have taken place.

It was further noted that the need for an area quarterway house has not decreased in the last three months. The quarterway houses of Johns Hopkins and University Hospitals remain full, with new admissions daily, and the situation in the affected area would be the same.

A majority of those present were in support of the project at its location 2452 Eutaw Place.
