Blount urges basketball playoffs

ANNAPOLIS — Senator Clarence W. Blount (Balto. City, 10th) asked Wednesday for the exactivation of the Maryland Scholastic Association basketball playoffs and the continuation of the present mixed league.

In letters to Sterling Keyes, newly appointed superintendent of schools and Hugh Armstrong, president of the Maryland Scholastic Association, Senator Blount said:

"I do not think we ought to allow one incident caused by a small group to destroy a program, which for many years has provided an athletic and recreational opportunity for many."

Senator Blount, who is principal of Dunbar Senior High School, on leave to serve in the Legislature, stated that the disturbance after the Dunbar-St. Joe game last Wednesday was very unfortunate, and that every possible step will be taken to prevent a reoccurrence.

He considers the abandonment of the playoffs, and the threatened alterations in the league structure to be an overreaction.

"For one thing, the wrong people are being punished by cancelling the playoffs," he explained.

"The players who worked all year to qualify for the championship were not participants in the disorder. The Dunbar team attempted to protect the St. Joe players," he pointed out.

"We are disgarding 14 years of healthy participation because of one incident.

"This is not the first disorder that has ever occurred after an athletic event.

"Three or four weeks ago we had an altercation following a University of Maryland-South Carolina game, but nobody suggested abandoning college basketball nor breaking up the League or Association.

"The extreme statements on the part of some following this incident smack of racism," he said. "The intensity of their remarks after an incident where no one was seriously hurt leads one to question whether these men were looking for a way out anyway."

Mitchell calls for more 'honesty' in redistricting

Cong. Parren J. Mitchell (D-7th, Md.) spoke last week before the Governor's Select Committee on Redistricting in Annapolis. He directed his attention primarily to how Baltimore County and Baltimore City would fare in the redistricting which will be completed this year.

He pointed out how difficult the committee's job would be, since there was no clear-cut right or wrong, but "many difficult alternatives."

"In redistricting," he continued, "we must deal with urban-rural population shifts as well as with urban-suburban population shifts. We must also deal with political realities.

* * *

"If we are going to be honest with each other, we must address ourselves to the problem of redistricting in relationship to minorities, with especial reference to black Americans.

"We must acknowledge that historically redistricting has operated to diminish the political power of black Americans by creating gerrymandered districts, which have made it either impossible or extremely difficult for blacks to seek and win elective offices.

"The courts have made it clear that gerrymandering of districts to weaken minority (black) political influence is an abuse of the spirit of the landmark 1962 decision in Baker vs. Carr.

* * *

"All that we ask is a fair and equitable drawing of congressional district lines so that any person, even a black citizen, has an even chance to compete and win in a congressional election.

"The same applies to other minorities.

"I urge that this committee does not perpetuate the sins of omission and commission found in other redistricting plans, and which resulted in the situation to which I just alluded."

Rep. Mitchell went on to offer to the committee his own alternative plans for redistricting, and to make available on request of the committee "some of our own resource people."

* * *

State Senator Verda Welcome last Sunday commented on the proceedings of that session of the committee.

In an exclusive statement to the AFRO, she praised the testimonies of Cong. Mitchell and Cong. Clarence D. Long (D-2nd, Md.), saying that of the six congressmen who appeared, "Each seemed unwilling to acknowledge personal interest and specific changes" except these two.

Cong. Paul Sarbanes (D-4th, Md.), Senator Welcome said, "stated that he did not think any congressman should present a plan or plans for the committee's perusal because it would naturally be biased in a particular congressman's favor."

* * *

Rep. Sarbanes was asked if, under the system he was proposing, he thought black people would be considered at all.

He indicated, according to senator Welcome, "his confidence in the changed hearts of people today."

* * *

This Wednesday, Cong. Mitchell's office released the following statement:

As a follow-up to my statement made before the Governor's select Committee on Redistricting, on February 11, I wish to reemphasize my position regarding redistricting.

I will institute court action if the Congressional Redistricting is done in such a manner. to preclude the exercise of black political power.

We cannot permit the disenfranchisement of blacks which occurred in 1870 to be repeated in 1970 by the redistricting process.

We have many friends in Annapolis. I know that the black caucus of The Maryland General Assembly will act as a unit to protect minority interests.

However, if it becomes necessary to go to the Federal Courts as a last resort, I am fully prepared to initiate such action.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Abortion bill faces fight in House

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — That new abortion bill now before the House of Delegates is facing far stiffer opposition than the similar one passed by the General Assembly last year and later vetoed by Gov. Marvin Mandel.

The governor, however, has said the bill does meet his earlier objections to the former one.

Having come out of committee where it faced rough going for a time, the bill is now before the House as a whole.

Essentially, it provides that the operation be a decision between the patient and the attending physician, that it not be performed after 20 weeks of pregnancy, and that the medical profession will have tighter controls.

* * *

Also, such operations could only be performed in a duly licensed hospital by a licensed physician.

It sponsors are two physicians in the Assembly, Delegates Aris T. Allen (R. Anne Arundel) and Torrey C. Brown (2nd Balto.)

One of the key arguments of the opponents is that its passage would open up the state to what could be called an abortion mill.

Proponents say no, and the legal authorization is needed to save lives and aid the poor.

Mandel bill asks faster trial adion

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — Gov. Marvin Mandel sent to both chambers of the General Assembly Wednesday a bill designed to provide speedier trials or clearance for persons accused of criminal offenses.

The bill, among other provisions, would require a pre-trial conference within two weeks of arraignment, in the presence of a representative of the state's attorney's office and counsel for the accused.

And the date of trial would be not later than six months after that conference.

The governor also sent to both chambers a bill to prohibit any of the state's subdivisions from imposing a local sales tax, use tax or exercise tax on the issuance of motor vehicle certificates or titles.

The bill would also terminate any such tax imposed prior to the coming July 1.

* * *

Among the other bills of note introduced Wednesday was one by Del. Robert E. Latshaw (R. Baltimore) to give the Real Estate Commission the power to require each applicant for a broker's license hold a high school degree or its equivalent.

The law now requires graduation from an elementary school.

The HB 461 was referred to the House's Constitution and Administrative Law Committee.

With slightly over a month passed in this 90-day session, 468 bills had been introduced in the House of Delegates Wednesday, and 291 in the Senate, aside from resolutions in both cambers.

However little of any controversial or noteworthy action has been completed or published in either chamber.

Douglass asks equalization of state aid to education

By DEBBIE BROWN
AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — "I'm interested in the areas of education and greater State aid to education. My overwhelming interest is relative to developing financial programs benefiting Baltimore City."

These words were spoken by Del. John W. Douglass (2nd Balto.) at the swearing in ceremonies of elected members of the House of Delegates.

In keeping with his expressed concerns made known to the AFRO Jan. 13, Del. Douglass urged Gov. Marvin Mandel to include in his forthcoming supplemental budget additional funds to be earmarked for more substantial state assumption of public education.

In a letter to the Hon. Mandel, Del. Douglass stated that "the inability of your own commission on State Aid to propose that the State assume the cost of new school construction greatly suggests the need for an updated e-evaluation of the state's responsibility for public education."

* * *

Del. Douglass stated further, "I am convinced that subdivisions would be better served through a program under which they could apply increased state funds at their own discretion, based upon needs as seen at the local level."

He commended Gov. Mandel's proposal as being a step in the right direction; however, Del. Douglass felt that the governor's proposal is "clearly inadequate, as judged by his own commission, as well as by my own study of the needs of Baltimore City."

Del. Douglass told the AFRO that on Jan. 19, in a letter to Sen. Hughes, I proposed a new distribution formula for State aid to public education."

* * *

Under this formula, the primary consideration for aid to a subdivision would be a subdivision's wealth, and its financial effort. "As a percentage of it's total budget" to meet its education expenses.

Del. Douglass' proposal would have the state assume 70 percent of a basic $800 per pupil cost for education each year. It would provide for increased educational funds for nearly every Maryland county and Baltimore City.

His proposal would make available approximately $220,000,000 in additional aid. More importantly, the Douglass formula would provide for a true equalization of state aid based upon the relative need of each subdivision.

Del. Douglass said, "while costly to the state, such an improved educational program combined with an appropriate accountability system, would provide the kind of educational upgrading and support that are so urgently needed at this time."

Sen. Welcome airs death penalty bills

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — Sen. Verda F. Welcome (4th Balto.), as during previous General Assembly sessions, again made a strong appeal Wednesday afternoon for abolition of the death penalty in Maryland.

And again, outcome is a doubtful factor at this point.

Occasion was a hearing before the Senate's Judicial Proceedings Committee on Sen. Welcome's SB 137 to abolish the death penalty in convictions of criminal assault.

Her companion bill aired at the same time, SB 145, would abolish the penalty in all crimes.

The committee will reconsider both bills and pose them for a vote probably within the coming week.

Most likely to get a favorable report, if any is forthcoming, is the measure involving criminal assault.

There is strong objection seeping down from the governor's office on removing the death penalty in cases involving killing of police officers, heinous kidnappings, etc.

* * *

Sen. Welcome explained that her SB 137 raises the minimum sentence for criminal assault when life is doomed in its present form, quite possibly in any form.

This obvious death knell was sounded by Major Gen. Edwin Warfield 3rd, National Guard commander, who told the committee the bill is not needed, and that it would make a difficult job more difficult.

* * *

"One reason," he said, "it would make mine the first resignation. We can't legislate war, riots, sex or religion. We are better prepared now than we have been."

Sen. Mitchell said he recognized "this is a heavily strong bill," and pointed out amendments would be welcomed, but that he wanted some safeguards against tragic occurrences on campuses in this state that have happened elsewhere about the country.

He was supported, in the lengthy hearing, by Miss. Rikki Fleisher, of the New Democratic Coalition of Maryland, who displayed news periodicals showing the tragic occurrence at Kent State and at Jackson State Universities.

However, hearing Warfield made a considerable point of revealing row well trained the National Guard here is now, and stated that the outfit operates on recently established uniform army guidelines.

A further hearing on the bill may be set next week. — MAX JOHNSON.

Public Computers see redistricting

A computer programmed to watch out for the political interests of black and other minority voters will be looking over the shoulders of Md. and Virginia lawmakers working on Congressional and Legislative redistricting this year.

Census Data Corporation, a new company formed to use 1970 census results to advise both public and private clients on political and social problems, announced Thursday it will monitor redistricting efforts in the two states as a demonstration project.

Ford T. Johnson, president of the firm, told newsmen that the company will develop computerized maps and statistics for districts in the two states that will seek to assure Blacks and other minorities of voting strength proportional to their numbers in the overall population.

The firm will both analyze districts proposed by members of the legislatures and produce its own alternatives where the pending plans appear to be short-changing minorities through gerrymandering.

* * *

The company will make the results of the 60-day Maryland-Virginia study available free to citizens and minority groups interested in the redistricting process.

It hopes to expand the project to other states where minority representation is at issue, charges for its services after the initial project.

Johnson said at a news conference that while blacks make up about 12 per cent of the U.S. population, there are only 12 blacks in the 435-member House Of Representatives.

Johnson and Dr. Stuart S. Nagel, a member of the project team, conceded that the diffusion of black and minority population across the country probably would make perfect proportional representation — about 65 black members — impossible within the limits of the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote rule and other laws.

But Nagel said the application of computer technology to redistricting on a national basis might double or triple the number of Congressional Districts which might elect blacks.

Green Bag out Monday

AFRO BUREAU

Annapolis — Governor Marvin Mandel said Thursday he will send to the General Assembly Monday the chief executive's traditional green bag of political job plums.

It will not contain, however, any appointments for Baltimore City and a couple of the counties were recommendations have not reached him from the Democratic State Central Committee.

Gov. Mandel said he would hold off on these appointments until the Committee had a chance to meet and forward recommendations.

This means, for example, in Baltimore City the governor's appointments to the Board of Supervisors of Elections and the Liquor Board will be delayed and still remain unclear.

Rumors are that the governor would again try to integrate the Board of Supervisors of Elections, but this has not been confirmed.

He sent down the name of Marshall W. Jones Jr., a Republican minority member, for re-appointment last year, but this was killed by a 2nd District member of the Senate.

Later, he sent down the name of Archie Jones, GOP state official, but during a dispute on this between the 4th District's two black Democratic senators, the Senate adjourned without acting on it.

Speculation is high that the latter Mr. Jones will again be nominated by Gov. Mandel.

MAX JOHNSON

Nonresident workers would face income tax

ANNAPOLIS — Four delegates introduced in the House of Delegates Tuesday a bill to provide that any political subdivision in the state would be authorized to levy a local tax on nonresidents earning income within the subdivision.

Actually, the HB 445 repeals a section of the law prohibiting this by proposing:

"Any political subdivision in the state may levy a general local tax on the income of nonresidents or commuters earning income with the subdivision."

Sponsors of the bill are John W. Douglass, Macklin McCarty, Floyd B. Adams and Joseph A. Chester (all 2nd Balto.).

* * *

The measure is sure to stir considerable controversy even in the House's Ways and Means Committee to which it was directed, and should it reach the House floor it will be in a much mangled version.

Gov. Marvin andel has already stated his opposition to this form of taxation, as has Dale Anderson, Baltimore County executive, many of whose constituents work in Baltimore City.

However, Mr. Douglass said he feels the bill has a fair chance of passage by granting such authorization to all of the subdivisions, rather than just to Baltimore City as has been proposed before.

Guard on campuses bill faces committee death

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — "My intention is to try to move in a meaningful way prior to a disaster that could end up for some of the young people of our state."

Sen Clarence M. Mitchell 3rd (4th Balto.) was speaking Wednesday afternoon before the Senate's Judicial Proceedings Committee, explaining his reason sfor sponsoring his bill to limit and set standards for use of the National Guard on campuses.

Occasion was a public hearing on the SB 103, which indicated it is

Year Award" of the Baltimore Cossocks Inc.

The occasion will be a dinner dance at Martin's West in Woodlawn, beginning at 10 p.m.

The Baltimore Cossohks is an organization of young men working for the betterment of the community.

Some of their endeavors have been support of the Maryland Council of Churches, the Urban League, NAACP of which the organization is a life member, and sponsors of the Little League Baseball Team.

Also, they have supported the Falcon Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Provident Hospital Building Fund.

William H. Mason is president, and Councilman Robert C. Marshall is an official.

Bill would tighten insurance cancellation

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — It will be unlawful for insurance companies to cancel fire certain liability insurance policies without a good valid cause, if a bill now before the House of Delegates is passed by this General Assembly.

Del. Isaiah Dixon Jr. (4th Balto.) and three co-sponsors introduced HB 426 this week, which would prohibit cancellation of such policies except for default of payment by the policyholder.

Other sponsors include Dels. Hildagardels Boswell (4th Balto.), Alan M. Hernick (5th Balto.) and Charles A. Doctor (D. Montgomery).

The bill was referred to the Economic Matters Committee.

Del. Dixon is the author of several insurance bills calling for tighter controls for protection of the public.

Senate okays Baltimore police probation bill

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — The Senate passed Wednesday and sent to the House of Delegates a bill which would require that all appointments of officers to Baltimore City's Police Department be probationary, during the first year of service following entrance level training.

The SB 185, introduced by Sen. Joseph A. Bertocelli (4th D.), also provides that an officer may be discharged during this period, if not certified by a police physician, without necessity of a hearing.

* * *

The Senate also gave tentative approval to a bill which would authorize every county in the state to establish a Citizens Nursing Home Board.

Bill provisions are the board would consist of ten members to serve without compensation, who would establish, maintain and operate a nursing or convalescent home in the counties for the aged, convalescent and chronically ill residents of such counties.

The SB 208, introduced by Senators William S. James (D. Harford) and Rosalie S. Abrams (4th Balto.) is expected to be passed either today (Friday) or early next week and sent to the House.

Domestics' wage bill faces House committee

AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — Domestic workers will be brought under the state's wage and hour law, if a bill now moving in House of Delegates committees survives.

The HB 409, introduced by Dels. Joan K. Lee (4th Balto.) and some co-sponsors, moved Wednesday from the Ways and Means Committee to the one on Economic Matters.

Should it come out of this committee with a favorable report, chances of House passage would be brightened.

Delegates Hildagardis Boswell and Isiah Dixon Jr. (both 4th Balto.) are black members of the Economic Matters Committee.

* * *

The House also gave tentative approval, tantamount to passage in this case, of a joint resolution to give a second look to attrack betting in the state.

The resolution, which would require Senate approval for final passage, asks that the Legislative Council appoint a committee to study the feasibility of instituting such betting, and report to the House in the next year's session.

The Legislative Council is the working arm of the General Assembly between sessions.
