

DELEGATE STORM: Thank you, on that point.

Now, referring back to section 4.03 in reference to the lieutenant governor, I have been wondering about the qualities we would seek in a lieutenant governor.

Should he be a good administrator?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: Not necessarily. I do not think a governor necessarily needs to be a good administrator if he can appoint people who are good administrators.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: What would be his qualifications? His political attractiveness?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: I think that is one.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: How about section 4.01 requiring the executive power of the state to be vested in the governor?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: He has only such powers as the governor wants to confer upon him and he is directly under the control of the governor.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: I believe the legislature can grant him powers as well as the governor but I was wondering, do you think that there might be a danger as they had in Kentucky when a lieutenant governor tried to vie with the governor for the love and affection of the people and started to run for office as the next governor while he was just lieutenant governor?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: I suppose there is always that danger. I think you have that same danger today with respect to the attorney general and comptroller.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: Delegate Morgan, that is what I wanted to have brought out. We are really pluralizing this executive and I just wondered if you agreed on it.

Now, evidently you do.

Will this lieutenant governor have to run for office in a political campaign?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: He will run along with the governor.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: Would you say then that this man will be seeking the office and the office not seeking the man?

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Chairman Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: I could not answer that question.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: Do you think we can get the best lieutenant governor possible if we are going to make him stoop to running and going through the rigors of a political campaign?

(Laughter.)

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Morgan.

DELEGATE MORGAN: I believe that question carries with it its own answer. We certainly get good governors by making them go through the rigors. I do not know why it would not work with lieutenant governors.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: In the past many of our governors have prepared for the governorship by being attorney generals and comptrollers.

DELEGATE MORGAN: Only half of them have been since 1900.

DELEGATE J. CLARK (presiding): Delegate Storm.

DELEGATE STORM: I think that I have one more little question.

I understand that New Jersey and Maine now lead the eastern seaboard and in fact all the states in the short ballot. I understand that they only elect a governor.
