Mrs. Lucy Brown buried Wednesday

Three ministers presided at the last rites and over 100 cars formed the funeral procession for Mrs. Lucy Woodson Hawthorne Brown Wednesday.

Mrs. Brown died Feb. 12. She was 84 and resided at 3717 Belle Ave.

Services were held at Union Baptist Church with the pastor, the Rev. Vernon Dobson, pastor emeritus, the Rev. Baxter L. Mattrews and the Rev. James L. Moore, pastor of Sharon Baptist Church presiding. Burial was in Arbutus Memorial Park.

Mrs. Brown was a former member of Sharon Baptist and became affiliated with Union after losing a leg and confinement to a wheel chair.

Born June 15, 1886, she was the daughter of the late Mrs. Lucy and William Woodson of Lunenburg County, Va. Her first husband and father of the six children, Charles Eppa Hawthorne, died in 1919.

Mrs. Brown moved to Baltimore in 1926 and was employed by some of the finer Baltimore County families in order to rear and educate the children. Her second husband, James Brown, also preceded her in death.

Deeply religious, Mrs. Brown was known for her daily Bible reading and kindnesses and understanding for others. The family requested contributions to the Harvey Johnson Community Center instead of flowers.

Surviving are a son, Everette Hawthorne, a Naval Academy Electrical engineer; three daughters, Mrs. Emma Davis, housewife; Mrs. Pearl Burke, teacher at Dickey Hill Elementary School 201; Mrs. Dale Wallace, counselor at Gwynns Falls Park Junior High School No. 91.

Also surviving are eight grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren and nieces, nephews and other relatives. Among the grandchildren are Miss Lucia Hawthorne, a Morgan State College assistant professor; Mrs. Christine Worsely, an elementary teacher's aide supervisor at school 78; Lawrence Hawthorne, a Morgan present student; Miss Diane Worsley, a BJC student.

Mrs. Edna E. Johnson, 'devoted' to Mt. Calvary

Funeral services were held today (Friday) from Mt. Calvary Church for Mrs. Edna E. Johnson of 1107 Fulton Ave.

Mrs. Johnson, 75, died on Monday after a four-year illness.

A native of Virginia, she was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cousins. She attended the public schools there and worked as a domestic worker.

In 1960 she moved to Baltimore to live with her children. She joined Mt. Calvary and was noted as a "devoted" member. She served on many boards and "always lent a hand when needed."

She is the widow of John Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Blanche Jones, counselor with Baltimore Public schools; granddaughters, Mrs. Blanche Booker, great-grandson, John Booker; brother, Harry Cousins of Va.; sister Miss Emily Cousins of Va.

Mrs. Johnson is buried in Arbutus Memorial Park. Kelson Funeral Home handled the arrangements and the Rev. Lindsy Pitts officiated at the services.

rities in population would be retained in the 4th.

What the council will do with the proposal in light of the Mayor's expressed disapproval remains to be seen.

A major problem for the councilmen is whether they have 60 days to approve or reject the second plan or whether action must be taken within the 60 day period since Feb. 1 as was stipulated for the original plan.

Commission members working on the new census population of 905,759 for the city's six districts, arrived for an average or mean of 150,959 persons per district.

Acting on this, it was determined that the 1st District had a population of 138,027 or minus 8.6 percent below the 150,959 mean.

The 2nd has a population of 145,599 or minus 3.5 percent below the mean. The 3rd has 168,266 or plus 11.5 percent above the mean.

The 4th has 140,847 or 6.9 percent below the mean. The 5th has 182,321 or plus 20.8 percent above the area in the mean. The 6th 130,667 or minus 13.4 percent below the mean.

The Bard Commission plan brings the districts in line thusly:

1st — 154,964 or plus 2.7 percent above the mean; 2nd — 152,560 or plus 1.1 percent above the mean; 3rd — 147,029 or minus 2.6 percent below the mean;

4th — 154,136 or 2.1 percent above the mean; 5th — 149,853 or 0.7 percent above the mean; 6th — 147,197 or minus 2.5 percent below the mean.

What the Bard Plan does visually, however, appears to be the contention at issue with the mayor. Why is not altogether clear.

For example, it extends the 4th district northern boundaries from the old city line up to Cold Spring La. west of Roland Ave. to Dupont and Garrison Blvd.

It would extend the lower western 4th from Poplar Grove to Ellicott Driveway, and shift the 1st precinct of the 13th ward in the northeastern sector east to the 2nd district.

In addition to the 5th District losses mentioned, that district would also lose to the 6th the area west of Ellicott Driveway roughly up to Monastery and Caton Ave.

The 2nd would also gain the area in the 3rd west of Greenmount Ave. north of University Parkway to the old cityline.

The 1st would gain from the 3rd area north of Erdman Ave. and Herring Run roughly to Valley View and Frankford Ave.

Visibly, there is no gerrymandering in the latest councilmanic redistricting proposal by the Bard Commission.

General assembly redistricting bills

By MAX JOHNSON
AFRO BUREAU

ANNAPOLIS — Maryland's General Assembly will be given two separate plans Monday afternoon for realignment of the boundaries of the state's eight congressional districts, each based on a premise of a serious start of deliberations.

The measures are being brought in to meet the Monday deadline for introduction of bills at this session. After that date a suspension of rules will be necessary to introduce any bill.

One of the proposals, adoptid for introduction by the special legislative task force on congressional redistricting, was presented by Sen. Melvin A. Steinberg (D. Baltimore), a member of the committee.

The other plan will come in Monday under the sponsorship of Sen. J. Joseph Curran Jr. (3rd Balto.) also a member of the committee.

Sen. Verda F. Welcome (4th Balto.), the lone black member on the 11-member committee, strongly favors the Steinberg plan. Actually, she seconded the motion for its introduction at a late Thursday afternoon hearing on both proposals.

Roughly, this plan would give Baltimore City two congressional districts, and a portion of a third that would extend northward from 33rd St. between Charles St. and Harford Rd. into Baltimore County.

The other district area, much of which is now represented by Congressman Parren J. Mitchell, would extend from West and Northwest Baltimore eastward roughly below North Ave. through much of what is now the city's 2nd District legislative-wise in East Baltimore.

It has a population of 480,208, of which only about 150,000 are white.

This would virtually assure Sen. Mitchell of reelection.

The third city area in the Steinberg plan would embrace Northeast, East and South Baltimore at its outer boundaries in a semi-circle form.

A major portion of this area is now the 3rd District serviced by the veteran Congressman Edward A. Garmatz.

This would mean that Congressman Paul S. Sarbanes would be in trouble, and he appeared at the Thursday hearing to strongly protest the plan.

The Curran proposals, on the other hand, would give the city two congressman, but four seats for the city and five surrounding counties combined.

One would run from Reisterstown Rd. above North Ave. and later Preston St. and then drop to take the entire 6 Ward in East and Southeast Baltimore.

The other are would link the other sector of East, South and West Baltimore together.

Sen. Welcome rejected this plan on sight, holding that it would seriously dilute the black vote and take away a black conressional seat.

Both plans, however, are tentative and open to a sure big batch of amendments to come by other lawmakers and interested organizations.

Hearings will open on the proposals Thursday afternoon before the joint legislative redistricting committee, headed by Sen. Edward T. Conroy (D. Prince Georges).

There is a strong possibility also that other redistricting plans may be introduced. The committee hoping to get Assembly approval of some plan before adjournment of this session, to avoid callin a special stssion.

In addition to the Baltimore City problem, there is the complex situation in more City problem, there volving the state's 23 counties and attempts to preserve traditional areas together within some present districts, such as the Eastern Shore, metropolitan Washington area, Western Maryland, etc.

Early indications are that the biggest hassling will come over fitting counties within districts.

They are fighting for an average population of slightly over 490,000 per new districts, to comply with latest census figures.

Earl C. Jackson Jr. at 38 in Wilmington

Funeral services were held Feb. 23 in Wilmington, Dela. for Earl C. Jackson Jr., son of Dr. Earl C. Jackson Sr., former Morgan State College English professor and now Wilmington assistant superintendent of schools.

Young Jackson, a resident of Wilmington, died Feb. 19 at the age of 38 years.

In addition to his father and mother, Mrs. Mildred S. Jackson, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Richardson Jackson; two sisters, Miss Norma J. and Miss Debra E. Jackson, all of Wilmington.

Born in Elkins, West Va., Mr. Jackson received early education in various schools including public schools of Snow Hill, Md. He studied at Howard University and Tennessee State College before entering the Army in the Korean War.

He was stationed as a military policeman in Cienna, Austria. After honorable discharge, he was graduated in business administration from City College, New York.

Employed for 11 years at the Midway Store in Wilmington, he was operations manager at the time of his death and was due to assume the post of General Manager of the Downtown Store on Feb. 16.

As a member of the Management Staff of Wilmington Dry Goods, he became actively involved in the Membership and Training Committee of the Central Wilmington Business Division of Minority Affairs.

He was a member of the Silverbrook United Methodist Church where the last rites were held. He is buried in the Silverbrook Cemetery.

stored.

He also pointed out that since none of the cases could be ruled on individually, on its own merits, he would set up general rules to be followed in similar situations that would insure due process to the prisoners.

The prisoners were represented in the case by three Legal Aid lawyers, Stephen Sachs, Michael Millemanne and Joseph Matera.

Mr. Millemana, commenting on the success of the suit, told the AFRO: "We are very satisfied with the decision. It reaffirms the principle that inmates of penal institutions are protected by the Constitution."

St. James residents view 'To Kill A Mockingbird'

The residents of the St. James Terrace Apartments had a pleasant experience last Friday when they were visited by the King's Court Players, who presented the play "To Kill A Mockingbird."

Mrs. Clarice M. Brooks of the St. James Apartments, who helped to arrange the performance, told the AFRO, "It is by way of saying to our residents that we care for them and want them to have a happy stay with us."

The Players were originally formed from members of the Neighborhood Youth Corps in the summer of 1970. Tom Composto, a priest, and a friend, John King Taylor III, found that many of those signed up for the program were still jobless near the end of the summer.

They felt that these youngsters might enjoy forming and working with a theatre group. Thirty-three of those asked responded to the suggestion, and the King's Court Players were started.

Since that time, the players have performed several plays for a variety of audiences, including the ladies at the Maryland Correctional Institute for Women in Jessup, the residents of the St. James Apartments, and the public, at the Calvary Educational Center.

The Players rehearse at THE St. Francis Neighborhood Center on Whitelock Street, where Tom Composto lives and works.

Plans for the future include a new lay to begin p work in March, and extended membership in the Players taken from the rolls of the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

"Our regent idea," remarked Tom Composto, "is that we are in service to the people of Baltimore And we shall perform anywhere there is hope of building a bridge between people."

AFRO that Lt. Font is, indeed, about to receive an honorable discharge from the Army, a discharge the lieutenant asked for last year when he filed a request to be relieved of active duty because he is a conscientious objector.

The change in commanding general, then, may be just the impetus needed for the Army to let both the charges against him and Lt. Font himself go.

ing the trial. Mr. McAllister also claimed Conway's photographs were shown to police officers in such a way that identity was certain.

In addition he charged that Assistant States Attorney Peter Ward had had conversation with a key witness although witnesses ha been excluded from the courtroom and orered not to talk with anyone.

Following the sentencing, Judge Myer Cardin heard Conway in a request that he and other City Jail inmates be privileged to have Panther newspapers and literature made available to them.

Judge Cardin denied the mandamus suit filed in Baltimore City Court since Conway is now required to leave City Jail for a maximum security prison.

Provident Savings promotions

The Board of Directors of the Provident Savings Banks has announced that, under the bank's retirement plan, Mr. Charles M. Miller retired as Chief Executive Officer on March 1, after 25 years' service. He will, however, continue as a Director and Chairman of the Board.

The new Chief Executive Officer is Harvey B Kershaw Jr., who was elected President of the bank in April, 1970.

Also at this meeting, Mr. Ronald L. Mason Sr. was elected Executive Vice President.

DRAMA — Left Panel: Part of the audience at the production by the King's Court Players of the play "To Kill a Mockingbird" given for the residents of the St. James Apartments last Friday.
