But what of the racial crisis? Has it been lost in the shuffle?

It seems. It is certainly less pressing an issue with the entertainment media than it was when, say, Bill Cosby was starring in "I Spy" or Sidney Poitier in "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?" Were the rage.

Like a camp follower, entertainer goes where the money is and television reflect the American condition for the most part, rather than setting trends.

Motorcycle pictures were taken off the road, crime dramas follow criminal activities, war pictures are drawn from battlefields. Black pictures were exploded from the tragedy of Watts, as did the addition of black faces to television.

It is not television and the home viewer alone who is responsible for the entertainment media that has stayed away from films with all black casts or those in which blacks are featured.

An example is the disappointing receipts for "The Great White Hope," despite the fact that James Earl Jones was nominated for an Academy Award.

Other films that are failing to hit the jackpot are "Cotton Comes to Harlem," "Dutchman," "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song," "Call Me Mister Tibbs," "The Landlord," "The Grasshopper" and "Up Tight."

• • •

While caucasian betrayal or backlash may be responsible, the failure of these pictures to make money, the fact that they were not good entertainment to start with, no matter the subject matter.

Whatever the cause, the future if black actors, directors, comedians and personalities is less rosey than it was two or three years ago.

It is not conclusively but it seems have a short attention span, when it comes to difficult issues requiring decisive or dedication — which Vidal addishon.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Program integration of blacks on television appears to have been set back or a leg of two or three years, which is now on the wane.

Profitable business, one of the major bigoted industries in this nation, apparently discovered it was too far ahead of viewers.

Gone are the easy, fewer black regularsscheduled for the tube than any time in the past four years.

CBS airs a brides tournament, a golf and a professional basketball playoff game Saturday.

The new version of Al Capp's comic strip character, "Li'l Abner," via ABC Monday, has a full slate of movies, feature films and golf specials Sunday, and a Tom Jones musical special on Monday.

• • •

NBC repeats "A Storm In Summer," a hallmark hall of fame drama Sunday. Monday, King Hassan of Morocco is the week's "Meet the Press" guest.

NBC World Premiere Movie encore", at 9 screens "The Intruders," starring Edmond O'Brien and Don Murray, and "Ride Beyond Vengeance," starring James Stewart and Richard Boone.

Only Flip Wilson, with his own show, Clarence Williams III, "Mod Squad" and Rupert Crosse in "The Partners" co-starring with Don Adams will be especially visible on the tube in the coming season.

An example is the disappointing receipts for "The Great White Hope," despite the fact that James Earl Jones was nominated for an Academy Award.

Other films that are failing to hit the jackpot are "Cotton Comes to Harlem," "Dutchman," "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song," "Call Me Mister Tibbs," "The Landlord," "The Grasshopper" and "Up Tight."
