Troy Brailey to head D.C. labor conference

The National Afro-American Labor Council at its executive board meeting held in Pittsburgh, Pa. recently named Delegate Troy Brailey as national coordinator for a conference to be held in Washington, D.C. on Monday, June 14, 1971.

Brailey said that the purpose of this conference "is to bring to bear on our national leaders demands for meaningful jobs and meaningful wages for black workers."

Delegate Brailey, who is also national vice-president of the Afro-American Labor Council, the nation's largest organization of black workers, also said "This crisis needs the mobilization of all civil rights organizations."

He also stated that they are setting up appointments to meet with the president, congressmen, Secretary of Labor, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, National Chamber of Commerce, National Association of Manufacturers and AFL-CIO president, George Meany.

Brailey states that the conference will conclude by making plans for a previously announced national day of observance on January 15, 1972 — Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday. "On that date, we are calling upon all black workers in America to stay home from work to protest all forms of discrimination. We will ask them to attend their favorite churches," he concluded.

DMV set to open local office

After nearly a ten-year absence, the Department of Motor Vehicles will return to Baltimore City on Tuesday, May 18, when Maryland's Secretary of Transportation, Harry R. Hughes, cuts the ribbon officially opening the new DMV Branch Office at 610 N. Howard Street.

Both state and local officials are expected to attend the 10:00 a.m. ceremonies, marking the opening of the department's fifth branch office.

• • •

The Department of Motor Vehicles currently has branch offices in Salisbury, Cumberland, Waldorf, and Rockville, with additional offices scheduled to open in Hagerstown and Cecil County in the near future.

The Baltimore office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. week days and will offer full services including: tag sales, title transfers, driver's license applications, driver rehabilitation clinics and license review hearings.

Rudolph Walker is the manager of the new Howard St. office.
