News in Brief

Support own firms, says Webb

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Albert S. Webb, executive vice president of the American Federal Savings and Loan Association, spoke to participants in a minority business seminar held at A and T State University.

He said, "Blacks need to support their own businesses. This will permit greater employment of our own people and give us a chance to gain knowledge about the economic system.

"We are the only people in this country whose money is handled by others."

Swanns pleased at court decision

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — The family for whom the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school desegregation case is named sent a letter from Landour Mussoorie, Uttar Pradesh, India, telling their reactions to the Supreme Court's April 20 ruling.

The Rev. Darius L. and Mrs. Swann wrote: "The unanimity of the Supreme Court and the breadth of its judgment in the case did surprise us; much more was accomplished than we had believed possible and we are joyously grateful . . ."

The Swanns also wrote that they were looking forward to returning to the U.S. in a few weeks; at which time their children James and Edith will again enter the public school system.

John Mitchell won't push busing

ATLANTA — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell indicates the Justice Department plans no major moves to force Southern school districts to use busing to accomplish desegregation.

Asked at a news conference if the Justice Department would file suits to bring about more busing in line with the Supreme Court decision centering around the Charlotte, N.C. school district, Mitchell said:

"We are only involved in a certain number of these cases; I would anticipate that the local school boards will work out their plans through their counsel to comply with the law."

Panther lawyers face charges

NEW YORK — Now that the 13 Black Panthers have been found not guilty the contempt-of-court charges levied during the trial may be dropped.

"I haven't given any real thought to it as yet," Justice John M. Mustagh said.

But only two formal contempt charges are still outstanding. Both are against Panther lawyers, William Crain and Sanford Katz.

Stuyvesant rent decision near

NEW YORK — The battle over rent increases for Stuyvesant Town's 8,000 tenants to be resolved after a Board of Estimate hearing.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., the owner of the East Side, tax-abated, housing development, has been seeking permission from the city to raise rents.

The present average of $87.72 a room would rise to an average of $56.61, roughly a 50 per cent hike.

'Brotherhood' vowed in Harlem

NEW YORK — Dr. Thomas Matthew, head of a self-help group in Harlem, ceremonially broke bread with Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the Jewish Defense League.

The ceremonies took place in the self-help organization's Harlem factory. The meeting was prompted by the racial fighting that broke out between students at Brooklyn College on May 4.

The two men pledged a "brotherhood relationship" between their organizations.

'Rhetoric' seen cause of riots

PASADENA, Cal. — The Nixon Administration's chief of internal security says that a prime cause of racial riots in 1965-69 "was the rhetoric of prior Administrations."

At the same time, Robert C. Mardian, assistant attorney general, leveled a blast at the nation's news media for its reporting on the Nixon Administration's school-desegregation policies.

Mardian accused former Administrations of promising "instant solutions to all of the complex problems of race" without plans for fulfillment.

Unions 'a mixed blessing'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Prof. Ewart Guinier, chairman of Harvard's Afro-American Studies department, says that the growing unization of the municipal civil service is "a mixed blessing."

Even in New York City, he says, minorities "are still excluded from better-paying jobs and their participation largely limited to the lower-paying positions because of restricted procedures supported by the trade-union movement."

He makes his statements in an article on "Impact of Unization on Blacks" for a study on "Unization of Municipal Employees" of the Academy of Political Science at Columbia University.

No FBI informer, Branche says

PHILADELPHIA — Stanley E. Branche, former civil rights firebrand, flatly denied allegations that he had been a confidential informant for the FBI.

The charges were made by the Citizens' Commission to Investigate the FBI office in Media on March 8.

Branche, of Devon, was formerly chairman of the Chester Committee for Freedom Now and former executive director of the Philadelphia Black Coalition and the Greater Chester Movement.

Mafia a myth, says Albini

DETROIT — Dr. Joseph L. Albini said he spent four years on research for his book, "The American Mafia: The Genesis of a Legend," and has concluded that the mafia is a myth.

[illegible] to lay the blame for organized crime on an outside source than on American society," Albini said. "We don't like to air our own dirty linen."

He said his book will force "Americans to look at organized crime as a part of the American society and not as something that was imported from Sicily."

African history real, Dike says

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Dr. Kenneth O. Duke, distinguished author and a native of Nigeria, says American blacks have a stake in convincing the world that the continent of Africa from which they originated, has a long and honorable history.

In a lecture at A and T State University, he said, "Africans have no doubt about the reality of African heritage. They must convince the rest of the world that this history exists."

"There are still many people who raise an eyebrow when you tell them the black man has a history."

Wonder Bread boycott supported

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Judge G. Johnson, ACTION'S vice-chairman, says the group's month-old boycott against Wonder Bread has received overwhelming support from community retail stores.

ACTION called the boycott against Hostess and the Wonder Bread Co. because they said the companies refuse to "hire and upgrade a sufficient number of blacks."

Johnson said, "Nine out of 10 retailers in the black community are no longer stocking or selling Wonder Bread." He added that about 100 stores outside the community were refusing to sell the bread.

All previous U.S. marshals in Arkansas have been white.

Principal fears racial violence

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Oscar Bowles, principal of Baker High School, one of Georgia's largest, announced that the school has been indefinitely closed because of the fear of racial violence.

The principal said he closed the school as white pupils staged a demonstration outside the building protesting his decision to appoint two cheerleaders who integrated one squad.

The school has 2,050 pupils, of whom 82.8 per cent are white.

Stevie Wonder offers reward

GARY — Stevie Wonder, nationally known blind singer, musician and composer, who appeared at West Side High School, has offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a thief who stole articles from his hotel room.

He is mainly interested in the return of a coat he valued at $2,000. It is brown and white double breasted cowhide. It took him a year to have it specially made in Mexico.

The Gary Police Department is investigating the case.

Tuition-free Pa. schools urged

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A group of educators recommended an eventual tuition-free higher education system in Pennsylvania.

The proposal was contained in a report by 150 educators who formed the Conference on Black Higher Education. The report was presented to K. Leroy Irvis, House majority leader, who originally called the conference.

Although Irvis and conference leaders agreed that a tuition-free system was not feasible now because of current economic conditions, they thought the state might be able to have tuition-free community colleges in the next six years.
