Drank dad's methadone orange juice

Two small children of the Tynes family of the 1700 block Llewelyn Ave. went to the refrigerator on June 7 for orange juice about 1:30 p.m.

What they got instead of orange juice was a similar liquid mixed with the synthetic drug, methadone.

Police state the man-made drug was in a plastic jar for the use of the father who is under treatment of a drug program.

As a result, the little girl, Juanita, 2½ years, felt a little strange, was treated at Hopkins Hospital and released a day later.

However, the boy, Kenneth, age 4, is still under care at the Children's Center at Hopkins and will possibly be there throughout the weekend.

• • •

Meantime, three Eastern District police officers are jumping for joy that Kenneth is recovering.

Officer Leonard Santivasci told the AFRO, "That little fellow actually died four times Monday. We would revive him and then he would stop breathing again. The fourth time, the doctors at the hospital brought him back to life."

Officer Santivasci told the AFRO the whole story in his own words:

"Mrs. Lois Tynes looked out her door and called Officer Larry Whitfield to come in. She said she could not wake her baby up. He was on the living room couch.

"Officer Whitfield looked at him and thought he was not asleep but unconscious or even dead. He wasn't breathing.

"Officer Whitfield noticed the little boy had swallowed his tongue. He got a spoon and tried to hold the child's tongue up and tried to give heart massage.

"Officer Robert Cohen and I went to assist him in trying to revive the child.

"We worked hard but I kept thinking with his breathing gone, oh, he's dead.

"The boy was dead! His tongue had gone back in his mouth. He had expired again.

"We kept on working. But when he revived, he would slip away again and his heart would stop completely. Three times he went away like that.

"The third time I pulled the plain clothes vehicle around to the door and we ran with the baby to the car. I drove.

"Officer Cohen and Officer Whitfield were in the back working on him when I heard them say, 'He's gone again. We can't find any breathing.'

"I suppose we all were praying.

"We had 10 blocks to go to Hopkins Hospital. I was at the wheel. We made it in a minute and a half flat.

"But for the fourth time, the little boy slipped away. We turned him over to the doctors in emergency. They gave him oxygen and everything else. We're mighty happy that little kid lived.

"He is doing nicely now. He'll probably get home over the weekend."

Dunbar has $1 million in awards

"There is no way you can compare this with any school in the country. Note I said not the city, the state, but the country."

This is the proud assertion of Clarence Blount, principal of Dunbar High School and state senator from the 5th legislative district who displayed for the AFRO a packed list of scholarships alone, on a collective four-year basis, totalling $1,362,000.

Said Mr. Blount: "And this is from a school where the kids are said to be backward, don't know how to act and just don't have it."

• • •

Tuesday evening at the Civic Center was Dunbar's biggest night of all for the 273 graduates. "This is the night I've been waiting for all my life," one graduate said.

Of the total number of graduates, over 240 have been accepted into colleges and universities.

Institutions range from the traditional area schools as Morgan State, the University of Maryland, and Coppin to such schools as Vassar College, Cornell, Dickerson and Jones College in Florida.

Over 100 students alone will be attending a campus of the University of Maryland at either College Park or the Baltimore County branch.

The Dunbar High School Band presented the musical arrangements for the closing exercises which were attended by school and city officials, Mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro, III and Acting Superintendent Sterling S. Keyes.

The mayor awarded diplomas followed by a selection from the school chorous "Onward, Ye People" and "Let Every Voice and Sing."

Valedictorian of the class, Miss Daphne L. Felder, gave an address which charged the graduates to continue in the future with what they have learned in

Pomerleau claims 'active' search for more officers

Promoted to the rank of sergeant is STOP Squad (Taitical) Officer Norman J. Parker.

Sgt. Parker was moved as of Thursday from the STOP Squad under Lt. James Watkins, to serve at Northwestern District.

When asked by the AFRO why so few black officers are among recent promotions and why he does not take steps to make proportionate promotions, Commissioner Pomerleau responded with the following nonded with the following statement through Public Information Officer Dennis Hill:

"The Department is actively seeking black officers and it will continue its program of recruiting black officers.

"The policy of the Department in promotons remains the same. Officers will continue to be promoted from the Promotion Register. As the officers move to the top of the list, they will be promoted."

Police identify corpse in park

Homicide investigating officers said today (Friday) the body found in Gwynns Falls Park off the 3700 block Winterbourne Rd. on June 6 has been identified through FBI fingerprints.

Police state most persons identify the area as Leakin Park without accurate knowledge that Gwynns Falls Park runs through that district of Winterbourne Rd.

Sgt. William Kearney reports that the 25-year-old man is George Douglass Newton of the 1700 block Pedee Grove St.

Police reports also state that he had been dead since May 30. Autopsy reports state he was fatally wounded by a gunshot to the back of the read.

Mr. Newton, a married man, had been listed by police previously on charges which they refused to disclose while investigation of his death is in progress.

IN COMA — Ralph J. Bunche, under-secretary of the United Nations, was reported this morning (Friday) to be "seriously ill again," by a spokesman for the U.N. press office. Other reports indicate the veteran statesman is in a coma and that his condition is much worse than it was when he entered New York Hospital a week ago after he fell and broke his right arm in a home accident.

NARCOTICS IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore has several drug abuse treatment centers funded by city, state and/or federal funds. Persons who need advice and/or help may call the following agencies.

• Sinai Hospital—Northwest Drug Alert — 367-7800
• Man Alive — 837-7800
• Project Adapt (Provident Hospital Agency — 523-3230
• Druid Sinai (600 N. Paca St.) 523-3000
• Hopkins Hospital Drug Abuse Center—955-5325

IF YOU WANT TO KICK THE HABIT YOU CAN

CONCLUSION

The AFRO's exclusive, informative series on Narcotics in Baltimore has jolted some citizens to realization the growing, ever-widening problem of drug abuse deserves everyone's concern. Hopefully, all citizens will become alert and help find solution.

As one Supreme Bench jurist said recently, "The greatest danger society can come to is that of being so naive and complacent, we actually fail to see what is happening under our very noses."

Seeing the problem is one step toward doing something about it. The next step is help and rehabilitation for drug users.

As to bringing to justice the distributors who reap a gold mine hourly, more citizens can do little except assist the police department or any other law enforcement agency.

Narcotics agents welcome valid clues and good, solid reports on addresses, names, locations, car licenses and other pertinent information.

• • •

"What you see and observe is what we get," one officer puts it. Well-meaning citizens can be the eyes and ears of the Police Department in its search for narcotics law violators.

HELP FOR THE ADDICT

The drug addict helps cure himself and helps erase the distributor when he makes up his mind he is going to get off the habit.

If suddenly all addicts would kick the habit, the distributor could make no more money and the death-filled world he controls

FROM MORGAN TO THE AFRO—Miss Paula M. Brooks received her bachelor of Arts degree in English Sunday at Morgan State College, from Victor Frenkil, member of the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges. Dr. King V. Cheek is in background. The next day, Miss Brooks started as director of the AFRO Clean Block Campaign at the AFRO building, 628 N. Eutaw.

AFRO Clean Block Campaign gets new director this year

The AFRO Clean Block office has a new face this year. She is the attractive and petit Miss Paula M. Brooks, a June graduate of Morgan State College.

The 23-year-old Miss Brooks is the new director of the Clean-Block Campaign which is sponsored by the AFRO-AMERICAN Newspaper every year.

The Clean Block Campaign is the AFRO's way of helping Baltimoreans keep the city clean.

For 36 years, thousands of young people throughout the city have entered their street in the campaign with everyone in the block working together to keep it clean.

At the end of each campaign, blocks are awarded prizes, and each block gives a block party to celebrate its hard work.

• • •

Paula has been with the AFRO for a week. Already, she and her assistant, Miss Michelle McRay, are putting the wheels into motion for a dynamic and fun-filled campaign.

The slogan for this year is "With a Little Help from Our Friends."

With a little help from every Baltimorean, our Miss Brooks is looking forward to a spotless city.

• • •

Paula describes herself as an ecology nut. As a result of so much reading on what pollution is doing to the animals, Paula set her rabbit free.

She has always had a pet of some kind, but she felt that, "Shipley" was getting too big for his little home, so she gave him his freedom.

She wants to make her contribution to preserving the environment now before it is too late.

Paula wants her children to be able to see the world and its beauty in a non-polluted environment.

• • •

Our director believes that the beauty of our world and community begins with respect for the home.

Because this is Paula's first year with the campaign, she is not planning to make too many changes.

But, she does have an idea for a picnic in the making. It is a "get to know" picnic where all the Clean Blockers will get to know each other and Miss Brooks.

When participants get to meet and know her, they will find that she has multi-talents.

In her spare time, Paula swims, horseback rides,
