'Safety City' program scheduled for summer

Safety City, the program sponsored by the Baltimore Police Department and the Mayor's Traffic Safety Commission which uses miniature street settings and cars to teach area children traffic safety, is now holding its registration drive for the months of July and August.

Children, 5-7 years old may enroll to participate in two 2 hour classes taught by officers of the Baltimore Police Department.

Class sessions will be held on either Monday/Tuesday or Thursday/Friday at both the Safety City locations.

Safety City/East is located on the City Hospital grounds and Safety City/West is in Druid Hill Park. Phone 539-5095 for details.

Children may also be enrolled by visiting either of the two locations, or by mail.

Registrations by mail should be sent to the Baltimore Police Department, Traffic Safety Education Unit, Fayette and Fallsway, Baltimore, Md., 21202.

Mose Ottenheimer 2nd, chairman of the Mayor's Traffic Safety Commission, said that "over 10,000 children attended the classes at Safety City last summer.

"We feel that we have set up a very effective program, and we hope to double the number of children receiving these important lessons this year," he said.

TEEN TALK

By MICHAEL BELFIELD

Again this week I'd like to congratulate all the graduates of 1971. May the future bring success and happiness to each one of you whatever you may do. GOOD LUCK.

On Friday night, June 11, the seventeenth commencement exercises for the Edmondson High School were held at the Civic Center.

Some 337 young men and women received their diplomas from Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro as their proud parents, relatives and friends looked on.

Sterling Keyes, acting superintendent of schools, addressed the graduates who were attired in white and red gowns.

The exercises included a brief address by Mary King, top ranking student, and a speech of appreciation from Patricia Robinson, president of the class.

I'd like to say "right on" to all my fellow classmen of 1971 at Edmondson; keep in touch.

Young Breed Enterprises is presenting a new and different contest. This new contest will start July 6th. The object of the contest will be to unscramble the title of a current song. After you've figured out the correct song title, you call John Smithwick, president and founder of Young Breed.

He will ask you some questions concerning the top records and artists, and if you answer these correctly you will win. The prize will be going to the movies for one year free.

This weeks soul name winner is Edwin Tarrant.

One of the good young groups in the B-More area, "The Fantastic 5" are now getting to "cut" a record. The record was written by their manager John Smithwick. They'll probably record it sometime near the end of July so be on the lookout fir it. It will be on the Dis Jockey label.
