Summer Lunch Program Aids 30,000 Children

Miss Peggy Brooks, director of the Summer Lunch program, run by the city for eight weeks with a $1 million dollar grant from U.S. Department of Agriculture, says of her work, "It is really a great experience."

At 27, Miss Brooks is a veteran in administering service programs for inner-city residents.

After her graduation from Goucher College in 1961, she served as an aide to former Gov. Agnew in drafting legislation for the reorganization of the executive branch of the state government.

She also served as Assistant Youth Co-ordinator for two years in the office of the Mayor.

In her current assignment, Miss Brooks is responsible for providing the smooth operation of the delivery and consumption of more than 30,000 lunches to inner-city children participating in summer recreation programs throughout the city.

The pretty young director co-ordinates her work with that of the Department of Education, the Department of Recreation, the Community Action Agency, the Community Schools Division and the Maryland Food Committee in seeing that the lunches are nutritionally balanced and shipped daily from Cockeysville to more than 185 sites in the city.

A typical lunch for the children on a given day, the director told the AFRO, would be: fried chicken on a soft roll, crisp salad with french dressing, an orange, one pint of milk, and as a special treat, a bag of peanuts.

Miss Brooks explained that with the help of professional food economists from the city health department, Morgan State College and other colleges, a well-balanced menu was provided.

"We try to make the lunches colorful. They are pretty lunches. They taste good and contain protein and vitamins," she said.

Lunches are trucked to centers as the Brooklyn Recreation Center, the Greenmount Ave. Recreation Center and the Curtis Bay Recreation Center from 10 a.m. until noon daily.

"Site co-ordinators" at each facility are responsible in seeing the lunches are counted; that each child receives a lunch, and the total number lunches received and consumed is sent to the director.

Any person 4-21 years of age, participating in summer program is eligible.

Tight scrutiny will be maintained this year, the AFRO was told, because of the number of lunches which were eaten by adults last year and some which were stolen from the centers and sold on the streets for a profit."

Miss Brooks is currently a graduate student in public administration at Johns Hopkins University.

When present assignment is over in September, she will be entering the Center for Urban Affairs at Hopkins as a student and an aide in the program.

After Hopkins, who knows what is in store for the lovely and brilliant black woman. She is still debating whether to attend Howard Law School to specialize in health.

Politics, she feels, may be her forte in the future. And, she has not disavowed her interest in a possible future career in the city and state political jungles.

$50,000 for Cherry Hill drug abuse

Receipt of $50,000 in grant funds for the Cherry Hill Drug Abuse Program was announced today by Maryland Health and Mental Hygiene Secretary, Dr. Neil Solomon.

The grant, according to Dr. Solomon, was awarded by the Governor's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administation of Justice, from its Federal Safe Streets Act funds.

The money will be adm- Dr. Solomon has designated by the Department's Inner City Community Mental Health Program, according to the Secretary.

Dr. Solomon has designated the Cherry Hill Drug Abuse Program as one of his high priority projects.

He stated that the money will be used for salaries for two counsellors who will work directly with addicts in the project's Total Abstinence Program.

In addition, it will help pay for a mini-bus to be used in transporting patients from the Cherry Hill health facility to State hospitals; urine testing of patients; salaries of a part-time physican and psychiatrist; and administrative costs such as postage and tilephone.

The $50,000 amount is being augmented by $34,700 in additional state funds.

CORE gets $500,000 for job project

"Because of all the internal hassling over CORE's Target City Youth Program during the past nine months, we have had to delay getting federal funds. Now that's behind us."

This statement was made by Marvin Peay, chairman of the Baltimore Chapter of CORE.

Peay announced at a Tuesday kick-off affair, that the local chapter was granted $500,000 by the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department.

The kick-off program was led by National Director of CORE Roy Innes.

The project will train approximately 100 students in three components; office technology, — building maintenance repair and pre-apprenticeship printing.

For further information about the program, contact Marvin Peay, director Target City Youth Program, 822 N. Gay Street. Phone: 338-1900.

Southwestern police officer, accident victim, buried here

Southwestern District Officer Eric A. Rogers, 28, a six-year veteran of the Baltimore Police Department of 4009 Eldorado Ave. (formerly of 928 Claymont Ave.), was killed in an automobile accident on July 3.

He was the husband of the former Miss Roberta Wiggins and father of Russell, age six, and Erica, 17 months.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Evans Rogers of 2229 W. Fayette St

Other survivors are three sisters, Misses Estelle, Arlene, Audrey Rogers and two brothers, Ernest and Arnold.

A grandmother, Mrs. Mary Rhodes, grandfather, Evan Rogers Sr., also survive.

Officer Rogers served in the U.S. Marines for four years. He attended Douglass High School and Baltimore Community College.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 11 a.m. at Ames Methodist Church. He is buried in Arbutus Cemetery.

Officer Rogers was first appointed as a clerk in the police department on Sept. 24, 1964. He became a patrolman on Aug. 25, 1966 and was assigned to Southwestern District in November, 1966. He and Mrs. Rogers were married July 20, 1968.

SOUTHWESTERN DISTRICT Officer Eric A. Rogers died July 3 as result of an automobile accident, as dawn was breaking, coming into Baltimore on the Baltimore-Washington Parkway at the Westport underpass. Following funeral services at Ames Methodist Church Thursday, he was buried in Arbutus Memorial Park. The photo by passing cab driver James C. Caldwell, shows ambulance crewmen bearing the stretcher to the awaiting vehicle. Another man and two young women were also fatally injured.

Turco says trial was longest bail hearing in U.S. history

Arthur Turco, the New York attorney accused in the torture-murder case of Black Panther member, Leroy Anderson, is free on $10,000 bail pending possible retrial at a future date in Criminal Court.

The first trial ended just before the July 4 holiday. The jury, out nearly 20 hours, was dismissed Saturday night as Judge James Murphy declared a mistrial.

In a press conference Wednesday, Mr. Turco said he and his attorneys, William Kunstler and Harold Buckman are terming the trial "the longest bail trial in the history of America."

Stating that he had filed many legal documents since his incarceration at City Jail in December, 1970, he noted that those efforts had failed.

Terming the trial of the murder and torture indictments "a farce," he said the state's aim was to "try any and all schemes to blackout the Panther Party and persecute those who seek to defend poor white and black persons."

He also accused the state's attorney's office and police of "using scare tactics so that lawyers will stay away from those people."

Mr. Turco noted that 10 of the 6-man, 6-woman jury panel were for conviction while two of them, one black and one white male juror, were for aquittal.

He stated in questioning jurors, most of them failed to understand what the law says about, "Reasonable doubt" and "testimony must be coroborated."

Reviewing the witnesses who were found to be testifying falsely, Mr. Turco said if the transcript of the trial could be made public, it would "speak for itself."

One of the witnesses placed on the stand by Assistant State's Attorney Hilary Caplan, was discredited by Mr. Kunstler's cross-examination and subsequently Judge Murphy ordered that his statements be stricken from the re-

MRS. GEORGE PHILLIP McKNIGHT, married in Baltimore, Saturday, is the former Miss Mirriam Cynthia Jones.

Miss Jones bride of Mr. McKnight

Gospel Tabernacle Baptist Church was the setting, Saturday, for the wedding of Miss Mirriam Cynthia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones, and George Phillip McKnight of San Francisco, Calif.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McKnight.

The Rev. Edgar Reid officated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Mrs. John Kekkers, as matron of honor.

Her bridesmaids were Miss Dandra Jones, another sister; Mrs. Lenore Wilson, Miss Tina McKnight and Miss Rachael Ballard.

Richard Wilson, cousin of Mr. McKnight, was best man.

The wedding reception was held in Mardell's West Wing, and the newlyweds honeymooned in Mexico. They will be at home at 2136 Greendale Drive, San Francisco.

Mrs. McKnight is a graduate of Forest Park High School and attended the Community College of Baltimore. She studied at Peabody Preparatory and Conservatory of Music for six years.

MR. AND MRS. HUGO EGGLESTON celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage, Sunday, at the home of their grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence E. Early of Hillenwood Rd.

3 at CCB take top art prizes

Three top prizes and three honorable mentions have been announced for the Tenth Annual Student Art Show at the Community College of Baltimore.

The top awards were received by Eva Shapiro and Marley Simon, freshmen art majors at the college, and William Cook.

Three honorable mentions went to second-year art majors, Carol Sandgren, Eleanor Edgeworth and Bill Yanuk.

"The prizes were the unanimous selection of seven members of the Art Department Faculty, whose choices were made from a group of more than 30 student art displays," said Prof. Bennard Perlman head of the CCB department.

The Community College of Baltimore student exhibits were inaugurated in 1962 to show the community and the students the broad range of creative expression which can be produced in ceramics, sculpture, printmaking, drawing as well as in painting and photography.

Patricia Rodgers, a sophomore art major at the Community College, served as chairman and co-ordinator of this year's Student

THE ENGAGEMENT of Miss Joan Attlease Wood to Frederick Phillip Tayree, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Jones, has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Allen Wood. Miss Wood is a graduate of Forest Park High School and Coppin State College. Mr. Tayree, a graduate of Dunbar High School, served four years in the U.S. Marine Corps and is now attending Morgan State College.

Radiation may be killing infants

Metro gathers 700 guests to romp through evening of fun

with Lula Mackay

Friday was the night for the Metros (Democratic Club) and their guests to howl . . . and howl they did, to the tune of seven hundred-plus, who came to dine from a laden buffet in Martins West, to dance to the hot licks of the Rados, who even swung "We Shall Overcome," and to woo Lady Luck, who may have snubbed a lot of 'em, but who was indulgent towards Alma Arden, who was around garnering three fifths for a quarter in a five-minute play! Can you imagine?

A brief introduction session was presided over by Ken Wilson, new chairman of Metro's Board of Directors . . . during which they heard the City Solicitor and Mayoralty candidate petition them to "Hustle for Russell" . . . and from the applause he got it looked as if they were doing that already. A score or more of candidates was introduced . . . but the evening was one for seeing and being seen, chiefly. From every angle one looked, the pants got hotter and hotter. Even Councilwoman Victorine Adams was in a pants dress (I should add "very mini" in front of dress). She was a strawberry blonde for the evening, and her brief frock, underpinned with pants, was in melon. Believe me she was an eyeful, and never cuter. Stunning Janet Davis, here from Philadelphia (along with her fiance, Cecil Rogers) wore black lace hot pants. Josephine Brown was in a chic brown and white print pants suit. Smart black and white pants ensemble, sculptured at the sides and also underpinned by hot pants, was worn by Diane Kane. Top scorers, adopting the uni-sex ideas, was that handsome couple, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Johnson, who wore identical white flannel trousers and navy blazers.

Otelia Brooks Taylor, Havre de Grace mortician, and her group from that Maryland town, who came down, added $1,000 to the kitty. Mabel Proctor of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Pam and Bernard Taylor were other out-of-towners about. They are relatives of Ethel Rich, who executed the affair, and who had garnered for that evening a two-tone lingerie lace from the top of tiny rows of val lace and the skirt of black Valencia lace over white.

Following the dinner dance, Isaiah Larkin Jr., president of Metro, and Mrs. Larkin held forth at a breakfast party in their home.

Incidentally, Metro's retiring chairman, Henry Parks, named Tuesday to a directorship of First Pennsylvania Corporation, was vacationing in Morocco . . . is in Paris, this week. First Pennsylvania owns the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Company, the largest commercial bank in Metropolitan Philadelphia and one of the 20 largest banks in the United States.

Guests invited by Mr. and Mrs. Medford Reynolds, Saturday, spent a long afternoon with them with less than half of them ever discovering that the elegant dinner party could have marked their wedding anniversary. Verniece and Medford were telling though the anniversary date had been the day before.

Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morrow of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tartar, Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard, Dr. and Mrs. Lonnie Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock Grinnage, Mr. and
