R. McLean Campbell elected Museum of Art president

R. McLean Campbell, executive vice president of Nottingham Properties and a member of The Baltimore Museum of Art's board of trustees since 1963, was elected president, at the board's annual election meeting last week for a term beginning in October.

Mr. Campbell, a native Baltimorean and a graduate of the Gilman Country School and Princeton University, is also a trustee of the Peabody Institute of Baltimore and Gilman School, Inc., and a past trustee of Morgan State College. As president of the Museum board, he succeeds Richard L. Steiner, who has served as president since October of 1969.

The other members of the executive committee elected at its meeting are: Mrs. Arthur U. Hooper, who succeeds William C. Whitridge as vice-president; W. Cameron Slack, who continues as treasurer; And J. Paul Bright Jr., who succeeds Mrs. W. Pennock Keyser as secretary; and also Mrs. George V. Parkhurst and Richard L. Steiner.

The seventh member of the executive committee will be Calvert C. McCabe Jr., who was elected last year to a 3-year term.

In presenting the slate to the board, Mr. McCabe, nominating committee chairman, said the committee's recommendations represented a sincere attempt to provide the greatest strength and maximum continuity to support the museum's new director, Tom L. Freudenheim, who began his service to the museum July 1.

Members of the museum's board are elected for three-year terms. At each annual election, the terms of approximately 1/3 of the members expire.

Today the following new members were elected to serve three-year terms beginning in October of this year:

Mrs. Pearl C. Brackett, Richard W. Case, Dr. King V. Cheek, Mrs. Richard T. Cox, Mrs. Leroy Hatfberger, Charles G. Hutzler, 3rd, Mrs. Lewis Rumford 2nd, Dewitt L. Sage and Warren W. Weaver.

Also elected to three-year terms were the following members whose present terms on the board expire in October:

Fred T. Archibald, John W. Avirett 2nd, Edward M. Benesch, George W. Constable, Mrs. C. Ellis Elliott Jr., George D. Hess Sr., Mrs. Arthur U. Hooper, and Robert G. Merrick.

Baltimore And All That Jazz

ARCHIE MANGRAM JR.

Welcome back to Baltimore And All That Jazz. For those who missed seeing this column, think you for your loyalty. The face of the matter is. I have to get away from Baltimore more ever so often, especially around vacation time.

A lot of things have happened since I went away.

Lenny's whole line-up has changed. Tuesday and Thursdays the Eddie Gough Trio has returned, and, on weekends, the Earl Wilson Trio has taken over.

While I was away, I checked out the jazz scene in Dallas, Texas and found out that their problems are very similar to our own.

In Dallas, just as in Baltimore, there are a dwindling number of places where you can really hear jazz. It seems as though the jazz fan everywhere just won't support, on a sustaining basis, his favorite art form.

The Rock and Roll artist does not have this problem, seemingly. Their fans come out in ever increasing numbers to hear them. Even result the promoters get rich, the artists get rich (some of them), and everybody is happy.

Of course jazz hasn't had the benefit of the hard sell guys to promote. I have no doubt that jazz would be better accepted if it were drummed into our ears and shoved down our throats, like rock and roll, day in and day out.

The James Moody Trio appeared for the Left Bank Jazz Society last Sunday before a modest crowd.

He has the same swinging unit that appeared with him the last time, he cookin Bobby Pierce on organ; the very facile percussionist, Roy Brooks on drums; and the scat singer, Eddie Jefferson, vocals.

James Moody, for the unhip, plays alto sax, tenor sax, and flute.

In fact he was voted the top flutist in jazz on a recent Down Beat poll.

The group swung through three sets and although they sounded good, they did not seem to play up to the level that I have heard on previous occasions.

Of course it is difficult for a Trio to really groove in such a large place as the Famous Ballroom.

Don't get me wrong, there were some very high spots in the performance. They just didn't sound as good as they did at the Royal Roost a few months ago.

The Left Bank Jazz Society recently elected a new slate of officers: Benny Kearse, president; Vernon Welsh, vice president; Elford Jackson, Eunice Jones, financial secretaries; James Dorsey, treasurer and Judy Webber, recording secretary

Next week LBJS will present the James Spaulding Sextet. James is one of the top altoist on the jazz scene today. This shoul prove to be quite an interesting concert.

The sessions at Lenny's have begun to smoke again. Come out Saturday afternoons and join the festivities.

Aretha Franklin coming to C.C. Sunday, July 25

The "Queen of Soul," Miss Aretha Franklin, will appear at the Civic Center on Sunday, July 25 at 8 p.m. for the first time since 1967.

What's Happenin' On the Eastside

by GEORGIANNA MOODY

In every human life there comes a time when life seems to be at its very end. It's a time when one must make a choice which way to redirect or rededicate life.

Which road the high or the low road must one take?

Some, of course, choose no road, they choose to stand by the wayside, vegetate and block the way of others.

Many choose the low road and travel down that road to destruction.

Others, in their darkest hour, are able to choose the high road.

They are able to realize that life is so very real. When in their darkest hour, when a small beam of light begins to shine through they redefine life, they rediscover themselves and the world around them.

They then find their environment more interesting. They travel along life with more discipline for themselves and more strongly dedicating their life to the usefulness for others.

Our neighbor for today is one who has definitely chosen the high road to life. She is concerned about others.

Mrs. Sallie P. Johnson is a senior citizen living in Perkins Homes, has come to discover the world again.

After the death of her husband and her retirement from work, Mrs. Johnson was less active in her immediate surroundings.

She wondered what to do with her life. She searched for an outlet and decided to enroll in a sewing and reading class at nearby Lombard Community School.

As a result of her involvement and interest in the development of the community school, Mrs. Johnson became a community aide in the basic education program, and encouraged others to learn to read, write and spell.

Always, she is looking and talking to people she feels can use some assistance. Daily, she visits the elderly in Perkins and encourages them to return to school. She believes that everybody can learn, all they need to do is try.

Mrs. Johnson needs no encouragement to be involved. She is more than a congenial community person. She is sensitive not only for herself but for the needs of the neighborhood as well.

Lombard Community School and Perkins Homes have proved the right place to enrich her own life and the life of others.

Miss Olive Caulk, Social Service Counselor, and Mrs. Elaine Howard, Housing Manager of Perkins Homes, feels that Mrs. Johnson is a God-send to the Perkins Homes.

N.Y. Soul group here Saturday

Plans have been finalized for the appearance of The Soul and Latin Theater in Baltimore, on Saturday, July 17.

The theater group from Harlem will be giving two free performances on the streets of the inner-city.

There will be a performance at 1:30 p.m. in the 200 block of N. Amity Street and one at 3:30 in the 2200 block of Callow Avenue. The performance lasts approximately 40 minutes.

The group performs on a flat-bed truck and these blocks will be closed off to traffic.

That evening, the group will give a special indoor performance at the Langsdale Auditorium of the University of Baltimore at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $2.00 and $1.00 for students.

The appearance of SALT is being made possible by the combined effort of the University of Baltimore, The Maryland Arts Council and Equitable Trust Bank.

Last rites held for ex-AFRO editor

NEW JERSEY

Samuel A. Haynes, Sr., Ruling Elder of the Weequahic Presbyterian Church and a former AFRO news editor, died suddenly last week. His death came less than three weeks after a testimonial banquet in his honor was held in recognition of his years of service as a layman and civic leader in Essex County.

* * *

Elder Haynes served as chairman of Presbytery's Church and Society Committee, and Chairman of Synod's administrative commission on freedom of the pulpit and ministry, and was with the Afro-American Newspapers in Baltimore for 14 years.

* * *

Mr. Haynes was also a former president and board member of the Newark branch NAACP; state co-chairman United Negro College Fund, Inc.; charter member, Newark Chapter Frolleers International; former committee and board member of the Essex County Urban League, the Leaguers, Inc., The YMYWCA, the ICBO and vice-president of the PTA at Peshine Avenue School and Weequahic High.

* * *

He served as administrative assistant to the N. J. Commissioner of Labor and Industry for 11 years, and as a commissioner of the Newark Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for six years.

His funeral was held at Wiequahic Presbyterian Church July 6. Surviving are his wife, Frances; a daughter, Iris G. Haynes; two sons, Samuel Jr., and Ronald C. Haynes; and a sister Carolyn Haynes.

Funeral rites for Bishop Dickerson

NEWARK, N.J. — Final services will be held on Thursday, (July 15) for Bishop John Wesley Dickerson, of 53 Girard Pl., executive head of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, one of America's oldest black denominations, who died at Beth Israel Hospital on July 10, at age 95.

Services are being conducted at the Memorial Temple, Church of God and Saints of Christ, at New York Ave. and Pacific St., Newark.

The deceased prelate was the private secretary of the late denomination founder and first Bishop, The Rt. Rev. William S. Crowdy, and rose through the ranks to the executive leadership of the church in 1935. The international denomination has churches throughout the USA, West Indies and Africa.

Ordained in 1903, and after 12 years of evangelistic travels throughout the nation and overseas, he established scores of churches that still thrive as monuments to his work.

In 1916, Dr. Dickerson came to Newark and in a few years built a new church on Sheffield St., near Orange, and in 1940, his followers purchased the present headquarters of the organization.

In 1941, he lead his denomination in the purchase of a large tract of farmland in Galveston, Ind., which serves as a source of food and produce, and maintains retirement and recreational facilities for the membership.

Bishop Dickerson is survived by his sister, Mrs. Willa D. Scott, many relatives and friends.

Local Witnesses attend 5-day Bible seminar

Local Jehovah's Witnesses have just returned from Greensboro, N.C., where they attended a five-day Bible seminar. Attendance rose to 22,992 on Sunday, the final day of the convention.

Louis R. Beda, representative of the world headquarters of the Watchtower Society, spoke on the subject "When All Nations Collide Head on With God."

Stating that the nations are on a collision course with God, he said. "For a head-on collision, the two things involved have to be moving in the same path, but in the opposite direction.

"For them to be on the same path, there must be an issue, a common point of dispute at stake.

"The two parties must be at odds over this issue and there is no way to compromise. There must be a confrontation."

Mr. Beda also explained that the issue involved was that of world domination, and that is why the nations will collide head-on.

Mr. Beda concluded the all persons needing financial discourse by showing the nations as on the march to Har-Mageddon, described in the Bible book of Revelation as the "war of the great day of God the Almighty." (Rev. 16:14-16).

He said this "battle will end with Jehovah God and his military forces of heaven victorious. The issue of world domination will have been settled forever, in favor of Jehovah!"

Delegates attending the convention came primarily from the four-state area of North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, and Kentucky, although some 25 other states were represented.
