MANDEL HONOREE — Howard H. Murphy, acting chairman of the State Board of Social Services, was cited last Friday by Gov. Marvin Mandel for his 20 years of service as a member of that board, with a distinguished citizen certificate. Mr. Murphy, AFRO business manager, has almost twice as much service and experience on the board than any other member, and the Mandel citation may mean he will be named full chairman. He is shown here accepting the certificate from Mrs. Rita C. Davidson, agency director.

Dream comes true for local BP dealer

OLIVER WYATT

To Oliver Wyatt, his BP Service Station, at 1601 W. Lafayette Ave., is more than a business to him, perhaps a dream come true or perhaps his brain child.

Maybe it was just a dream when he was in the service in Iwo Jima and in Japan, when he was assigned to the Quartermaster Corps. Even then he loved to work on any type of motor vehicle he could get his hands on.

But his dream came true when he was able to attend the American Training School, in Baltimore, on the GI Bill, to qualify as a top-notch service station operator.

Six years ago, Wyatt found the service station which offered a challenge because of its run-down condition and it was located in a lower-income neighborhood.

A bachelor, Wyatt, who is in his middle thirties, remained with his business "literally" day and night because, he actually slept there at nights so he could serve his customers until very late and would be there early in the morning.

Social Study refunded at Morgan

Dr. King V. Cheek Jr., president of Morgan State College, recently announced the refunding of Morgan's Undergraduate Social Welfare Program for its third year of operation.

The program, according to Dr. Cheek, receives 75 per cent of its funds, or $104,472.30, from Federal funds through the State Department of Social Services, and 25 per cent, or $34,824.10, from state funds obtained through Morgan State College.

Total funds for the program are $139,269.40.

• • •

The Undergraduate Social Welfare Program was begun in September 1969 under the directorship of Mrs. LaMoyne M. Matthews. It currently has three full-time faculty positions, and two part-time evening instructors.

Students in the program receive an AB degree in Sociology-Social Welfare. Approximately 100 students are now registered as majors, an increase of 100 per cent over the past year.

Turtle Derby for youngsters at Patterson

The Bureau of Recreation's 30th Annual Turtle Derby will be held on Wednesday, July 28, at 7 p.m. at the Patterson Park Playground, located at Linwood Ave. near Pratt St. (In case of rain — at the Patterson Park Pavilion).

Ribbons will be presented to first, second, and third place winners in each contest.

The first place winner from each race will be entered in the Grand Sweepstakes Race.

All entries will receive a small novelty prize.

Entry blanks are available by calling Miss Virginia Baker at MU. 5-5826 or by stopping at the Patterson Park Playground.

Teacher divorces pharmacist

Mrs. Geraldine R. Reynolds, a school teacher of the 4300 block of Liberty Heights Ave., was granted a divorce July 12 from her husband Clarence E. Reynolds, a school teacher of grounds that the couple had been voluntarily separated for more than 18 months.

The Reynoldses were married in Baltimore in religious ceremony Dec. 30, 1953.

They were separated Aug. 23, 1967 when Mr. Reynolds left their Liberty Heights homes.

The couple has no children.

Mrs. Reynolds told the court she is waiving her right to alimony.

"Band-aids" offered economy

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. — Republican Gov. Dan Evans of Washington accused the Nixon administration of offering more "band-aids" to heal the nation's ailing economy.

"Hell, we've got 12 per cent unemployment in the state of Washington and 15 per cent in Seattle and nothing but band-aids in return," Evans told the Western Governors Conference.

A strong supporter of Nixon on most issues, Evans criticized the President's economic policies and particularly his freezing of highway construction funds, including $150 million earmarked for his state which has been hard-hit by aerospace unemployment.

Governor blasts drug problem

WASHINGTON — Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said heroin addiction was "rampant in the new South," and the problem was compounded by returning Vietnam servicemen addicted to drugs.

Carter, whose state contains the country's largest military base, Ft. Benning, said in testimony to a Senate subcommittee he was "completely dissatisfied" with the military's response to GI heroin addiction.

Sinai has new parking spaces

Visitors and patients at Sinai Hospital will enjoy additional parking spaces when construction begins this week on a new parking lot. It will open in September.

The $75,000 facility, comprised of 225 spaces behind the hospital, will be used by employees to free a similar number of spaces for visitors and patients at the front of the hospital.

Bowie State initiates new work-study program

"Bowie State College will initiate a new program in Cooperative Education under the direction of Cortez V. Walker beginning September, 1971. Louis L. Goldstein, Comptroller of the State of Maryland, was one of the first employers to make an agreement to cooperate with Bowie in the program.

Cooperative Education is a form of work-study permitting a student to alternate a semester of full-time work in business, industry, government, or a social agency with a semester of academic studies on campus. The main purpose of the program is to strengthen the student academically by giving relevance to his college studies.

"The student can study one full semester, and then apply what he's learned with on-the-job training the following semester," stated Walker. The outside work assignment must be coordinated with the student's major field of study and career goals.

Students accepted into the program must have completed 24 semester credit hours with a grade point average of 2.00 (C) or better.

This type of program offers the student the added advantages of better job opportunities, including the possibility of being retained by the training companies, as well as the salary received while on the work assignment.

Some of the companies and agencies in the Baltimore-Washington area with which the college has agreements are: Maryland State Comptroller's Office, State Roads Commission, U.S. Civil Service Commission, Internal Revenue Service, N.A.S.A. Headquarters, Goddard Space Flight Center, Center for Research in Social Systems, Four Roses Distillery Company, Maryland Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and Sealtest Foods.
