—Mandel meets Gov. Mandel won't fire Pomerleau

Thursday the commissioner has a contract and he had no intentions of firing him.

Much of their anger was aroused by a Pomerleau remark that the Community Relations Commission director, David L. Glenn, had "censorted with revolutionaries."

* * *

The commissioner, however, under public pressure reversed his stand Tuesday in a statement to the AFRO.

He said he realized the agency has "a mandate to associate with all facets of the community," for improvement of relations between citizens.

In response, Mr. Glenn said he was "heartened" that the commissioner had changed his previous stand.

"Relative to our agency," he said, "we feel that many problems in the area of police-community relations can be resolved if the top echelon of the police department is aware of the nature of the problem."

* * *

Accompanying the commissioner's reversal of stand Tuesday, was announcement of several promotions and changes of command, and this action brought further adverse comments from the black community.

The Rev. Vernon L. Dobson, president of the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, stated:

"I think the promotions seems to come at a time when the community is embroiled in a conflict with Commissioner Pomerleau over matters much broader than promotions of individuals.

"For a long time we have desired a more inclusive society in the police department. Our personal regard for the men who are involved is positive.

"However, it does seem that this is a scheme to deter us from participating in police matters that affect our community.

"This is devisive and must be held in proper focus for those who are in leadership in the community.

"Col. Harris has wide experience in community relations and his promotion and transfer becomes paradoxical.

"We hope the men in their promotions will understand the rightful arena of their allegiance."

* * *

The Rev. Mr. Dobson was referring, among others, to the promotion of Major William A. Harris to the rank of lieutenant colonel, and his transfer from director of the Community Relations Division to assignment as chief of the Traffic Division.

Included also was the promotion of Lieutenant James H. Watkins to major, and his transfer STOP Squad to director of the Community Relations Division.

Also of interest to the community was the transfer of Major Clarence E. Roy Jr., who headed the for Youth Division for the past three years, to assignment as deputy chief of Patrol Area Two.

Departmental records reflect a 12½ per cent black sworn personnel, as compared to 2 per cent in 1968.

They are in this order:

Lt. Colonel — 1; majors — 2; captains — 1; lieutenants — 4; sergeants — 14; police agents — 7; patrolment — 369; cadets — 25;

In 1967 when Pomerleau took over there were no lieutenant colonels, there were: majors — 1; captains — 1; lieutenants — 2; sergeants — 7, police agents — 0; patrolmen 231; cadets — 13.

The above indicates Pomerleau has doubled personnel in most categories. (SEE AFRO EDITORIAL PAGE 4)

Mandel lashes Nixon on welfare reform bill

By VAL HYMES

Gov. Marvin Mandel, asked at his weekly press conference about the welfare reform bill, lashed out at the Nixon Administration for hindering the state budgeting process.

* * *

Mandel said he is still in the dark as to how the program would affect Maryland welfare system.

* * *

"This is a prime example of the reason why the state and the cities are having difficulties," he said. The state could receive less federal aid under the proposed plan for example, if the food stamp program is eliminated the governor said because only 50 percent of those eligible use the stamps.

These are questions that will have to be answered by the legislature and the department," Mandel added.

* * *

"We're trying to plan a fiscal program for next year but we don't have the slightest idea if the bill will pass or if it does whether it will be funded, and the state is left in a dilemma by the action of the federal government," Mandel continued adding that

* * *

"The Administration has had this same problem in the pass but that today it is more vast with unemployment and inflation under the Nixon Administration."

State officials have criticized the congressional proposal because they feel it will result in less money for Maryland's program from the federal government.

Few primary pull-outs, while deadline nears

By MAX JOHNSON

It has happened consistently in past campaigns, and it is occurring again in this primary, as the deadline for withdrawals come at 9 p.m. this Saturday.

There were few withdrawals of candidates at AFRO press time Thursday.

One reason is that filing fees are not returnable, and another is that almost everybody waits until thelast hour or so to make a move.

Actually, there were just nine pull-outs in the City Council races and none among the 17 Democrats running for the city-wide offices of mayor, comptroller and president of the Council.

There are reports that Philip H. Goodman, former mayor, will withdraw from the presidency of the Council race.

This would leave six in this field, including Paul L. Chester, clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, and John W. Douglass, 2nd District member of the House of Delegates.

Others in this race are wanting.

All of the nine pull-outs in the Council races are white, except Charles C. Tildon Jr. in the 4th District, and Leonard A. Briscoe in the 5th.

Mr. Tildon, Provident Hospital's community relations director, announced his withdrawal Thursday, and said he would direct all his efforts for the nomination of George L. Russell Jr. for mayor.

Mr. Briscoe, an attorney, said he is pulling out to work for the nomination of John B. Ferron, whom he said is the best and most qualified candidate "other than myself."

This leaves 13 in the 4th race, one of whom is white, and 22 in 5th, 13 of whom are white.

There will be three Council Democratic nominations in each of the city's six districts, in the Sept. 14 primary.

Elsewhere district-wise, there are these withdrawals at this writing:

1st — one leaving 28; 2nd — one, leaving 18; 3rd — two leaving 28; 6th—three, leaving 20.

There are seven Democratic candidates for mayor, four of them white, and four Republicans, three of them white.

For comptroller, three Democrats are running, two of them white, and one white Republican.

Baltimore And All That Jazz

ARCHIE MANGRAM JR.

Ray Charles and Bill Cosby were at the Merriweather Post Pavilion last week and played to capacity audiences.

Although we had heard Ray Charles and his orchestra, on previous occasions, it was our first chance to see Bill Cosby in person.

The show was divided into two parts: Ray, playing the first half, and Bill, doing the second half. One would be hardpressed to decide which was the better half.

* * *

Ray was at his soulful best. Anyone with the durability of Ray Charles has to be good. As would be anticipated, he romped through all or a good many of his all-time hits, much to the delight of the audience.

The orchestra, led by Leroy Cooper, was particularly good; both in backing Ray and playing on their own.

Ray even felt like doing a tune on alto saxophone, something that we have seldom seen him do at a concert.

* * *

Bill Cosby was something else again, if I may be permitted to use an overworn cliche. He has to be one of the funniest men on the face of this earth.

* * *

He had this writer literally in stitches. And he does it without getting vulgar.

He might have gotten a little blue; but it was in good taste. Good enough not to offend parents who brought their children. His own kids were in the audience, that's how innocent most it it was.

* * *

He is a master at making everyday events seem incredibly funny: Things like getting married or having kids; that was his bag.

After witnessing him in person, it is small wonder that he is in such demand as a performer.

* * *

The Crusaders will return to Baltimore, Sunday, Aug. 1, after a five year absence. They are being presented by the Left Bank Jazz Society at the Famous Ballroom.

In recent years their music has undergone a metamorphosis. After breaking up and going their separate ways, the group re-formed.

Their music now consists of a synthesis of jazz, rhythm and blues and the group's Texas roots.

* * *

Last Sunday, The Left Bank Jazz Society presented Gary Bartz and the NTU Troop. It was a benefit concert for the Activists. Gary Bartz is a locally produced musician who is doing extremely well on the jazz scene.

Gary was ably assisted by bassist. Stanford James: Harold White, drums; M Tume, Conga drums and Andy Bey, vocalist.

* * *

The first thing that struck me about this group was the glaring absence of the piano. It takes quite a fluent musician to play a flute and Gary was more than up to the job.

* * *

In fact, I think that Gary is one of the most fluent alto-tist that I have heard in many a year. He has excellent command of his instrument, rarely relying on musical cliches to get his message across.

* * *

Another thing that I really liked about this group is that they announced (or rather Gary did) every tune before they played.

This was an extremely pleasant departure from the usual group; those that play several tunes without giving the audience the names of any.

All in all, Gary Bartz and the NTU Troop turned out to be an unusually rewarding jazz evening.

DR. HARRY BARD, president of Community College of Baltimore, (CCB) who is host for the Eastern Regional Minority Group Awareness Workshop, sponsored by the Community College of Baltimore, in cooperation with the American Association of Junior Colleges, greets his guests: Samuel Yette, Clarence Gregory Coordinator, CCB, the Honorable (Mrs.) Shirley Chisholm, U. S. Congresswoman, 12th District, New York, who was keynote speaker, and Dr. Andrew Goodrich, Director of Minority Group Programs, American Association of Junior Colleges. The workshop was in session, June 25-June 30, at the Baltimore Hilton Hotel.

Briscoe out of 5th D. Council race

Leonard A. Briscoe, attorney, 3800 block Barrington Rd., announced Thursday his withdrawal from the 5th District City Council race, with the statement:

"After carefully considering a political situation in the 5th District with regard to the City Council race, I have come to the conclusion that there is little likelihood that more than one black candidate will be elected.

"While other than myself, there are several qualified liberal candidates of both races seeking election, it is my conclusion that one of the remaining black candidate who is best qualified by reason of ability, experience, integrity and [illegible] has 1 odo the type of job that needs to be done, is my friend, John B. Ferron.

"This, together with the fact that Mr. Ferron's campaign has gotten off to an admirable start, and is gaining more and more popular support, impels me to the conclusion that his efforts should not be diluted and the black community vote fragmented."

August brings quiet, silence, remembering

Sunday begins August, the month of returning home, nostalgic dreaming and recalling days gone by.

Now all Nature begins a slow down. A quietness hangs over the city where no one seems to really live. Everyone has gone lest summer slip away and in Labor Day's arrival, end the vacation season too soon.

* * *

Friday, Aug. 13 comes midway with a prediction of high winds, summer torrents and flash floods as the moon changes. The next 20 days hold prospect of record-breaking heat waves.
