EXTERIOR OF GLEN BURNIE HOME which is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Waddy is located on spacious grounds measuring 120 x 160 feet.

MRS. PHYLLIS WADDY has no complaints about "her" kitchen which includes built-in intercom system, telephone and radio.

The entire house is decorated in contempory furnishings which complement their glossy hardwood floors. Walter Waddy designs spilt-level to fulfill dream of lawn and flowers

By MARIE P. COOKE

Hall Ave. in Glen Burnie, Md. is the setting of many newly-built homes which black people are occupying.

6566 Hall Ave., however is extra special because it was design by the owner, Walter W. Waddy, who says "I wanted to move to the suburbs so I could have a large lawn and flowers."

The split-level red brick house is on a 120x160 ft. lot. It has three bedrooms, three baths, a double garage, ultramodern children's room and playroom, eat-in kitchen, and spacious living and dining room.

Mr. Waddy, director of AFL-CIO No. 891, not only supervised the construction of his home in 1967, but with help from his charming wife, Mrs. Phyllis Waddy, head teller at Union Trust Bank in Washington, D.C., decorated it in contemporary style.

Mr. Waddy is the son of Mrs. Beryl Waddy of Irvington, Va. He is a graduate of A. T. Wright High School in Virginia. He has worked in the Union as director in the Maryland, Washington and Virginia for 10 years.

Mrs. Waddy, former Miss Phyllis Bates, daughter of Mrs. Esther Washington and Robert Bates, has been working in Washington for seven years. She has been married to Mr. Waddy for three years.

Also on hand to greet this reporter was Ricardo Waddy, 14, an 8th grade student at Andover Jr. High School. In addition to playing basketball, he likes baseball and football. The Waddys have two other children, Barbara, 20, June graduate at Morgan College and Anthony, 19, sophomore at Morgan.

More money for veterans when married

Veterans in training under the GI Bill were reminded today by George A. Davis, Director of the Baltimore Veterans Administration Regional Office, that they are entitled to money when they get married or have children. For example, Davis said, a full-time student in school will have his $175 a month increased to $205 when he gets married and to $230 if he becomes a father. Veterans taking cooperative, apprenticeship and on-the-job trainees get additional payments for only two dependents, while the others get them for all dependents.

Previously, veterans could be paid the additional amounts only from the date they notified the VA. of their new dependent.

Under legislation effective December 24, 1970, however, students have one year from the event to present the marriage license or birth certificate to the VA. Since the new law is retroactive, veterans who not retroactive, veteran who had a child before December 24, 1970, and failed to notify the VA, can be paid only from that date, Davis said. Veterans who are eligible for increase payments were urged to contact their local VA office.

Miss Linda Foster, Douglas Bryant wed

THE WEDDING of Miss Linda Foster and L. Douglas Bryant, Jr. took place in the Douglas Memorial Church, Saturday.

Miss Linda Foster, daughter of Mrs. Drorethea Foster and James Foster, was married to L. Douglas Bryant, Jr. in Douglas Memorial Church Saturday afternoon at four.

Mr. Bryant is the son of Mrs. Emily Bryant and Leon Bryant.

The Rev. Marion C Bascom officiated at the single ring ceremony, and Spencer Hammond was at the organ.

Miss Foster was given in marriage by her father, and attended by her sister, as maid of honor, Miss Brenda Haywood and Mrs. Carole Hicks, matron. Bridesmaids were Misses Garnetta Taylor, Hannah Cooper and Peggy Phillips.

The attendants wore charming peasant dresses designed by the mother of the bride.

The be-ruffled princess dresses of the bridesmaids were in solid shades of pink, white, blue, yellow and green and the dresses of honor attendants were prints that picked up all of the colors of the bridesmaids' dresses.

The bride's gown, also designed on princess lines, was of eyelet embroidery, trimmed with blue ribbons and designed with a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. The skirt was scalloped at the bottom and her headdress was of the same material as the dress.

Everett Marshburn was best man for Mr. Bryant. Ushers were James Diggs, James Gittings, Curtis Gibson and Paul Evans.

The reception at the Hilton Road home of the bride's mother, was attended by 300 guests.

Upon their return from an undisclosed honeymoon site, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant will be at home on Gatehouse Drive.

A June graduate of Coppin State College, Mrs. Bryant will be teaching at the McHenry Elementary School beginning September. Mr. Bryant, recently out of the service, is a student at the Community College of Baltimore where he is majoring in business administration.

Guests at the party were: Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Borum, Charles Caldwell, Carter Robinson;

Funds restored for hospitals

Congressman Paul S. Sarbanes (D-4th) has hailed the action of the House of Representatives taken Tuesday night in restoring fully all cuts which had been made in the U.S. Public Health Service hospitals' budget.

The vote to restore the money for the hospitals came on an amendment offered by Representative Paul Rogers (D-Fla.) to the HEW Appropriations bill. Congressman Rogers is Chairman of the Health Subcommittee of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Housing for elderly upheld

Congressman Paul S. Sarbanes (D-4th) has announced that revised HUD cost guidelines published Wednesday in the Federal Register will insure that Baltimore's housing program for the elderly and for low and moderate income persons can continue.

The new cost guidelines, which provided for increases approximately 25 per cent above the original proposed cost ceilings will enable the city to proceed with the construction of 10 housing projects involving about 3,000 units. Sarbanes said "the new figures are particularly beneficial for Baltimore's elderly, since many of the city's planned housing projects are designed with their needs in mind."

WHY DRIVE WHEN I CAN FLY?

by Mark Hammond

My wife and I and our two kids were all set for a two-week vacation with my aunt in Memphis. We arrived at Kennedy Airport with just about everything we had in our apartment, except the sofa. We had the baby's play pen; His and Her bowling balls, golf clubs, tape recorder, a basketball, and of course our regular baggage. With all that stuff, I didn't think they'd let us on the plane! But a ground stewardess politely pointed out that this was routine baggage for airlines.

She also told me a story about a dude who reserved a seat for his cello, just as though it was another passenger, and he only had to pay one half the Economy fare. "Thats nice to know." I answered. "Next time I'll reserve a seat for my sneakers; they're big enough."

We only had to pay a little extra for all our little do-dads. Our five bags containing a total of 350 lbs., the bowling balls, golf clubs and other things, went free. They were part of the regular baggage allowance, which is two 70 lb. bags for each ticket, in addition to any hand luggage that will fit under the cabin seat. (There are a few airlines that do make a minor charge for golf bags.) The folding play pen, which was less than 80 inches, went for a flat rate of only $6.48.

I would never have been able to have made this trip by car with all the stuff we were taking. Not to speak of the long tiring hours on the road. And as for getting around Memphis, we arranged in advance for a low-cost rental car.

When you stop to think about it, why drive when you can fly? Flying often comes out cheaper. For example, if you drive you have to pay for car maintenance, breakfast, lunch and dinner, tips, tolls, snacks and miscellaneous things in addition to taking up precious vacation time. On the other hand, flying is faster, safer; meals are included, you're a lot more comfortable than in any old car, and you're left with more time to enjoy that vacation you've been waiting fifty weeks for.

If you too are thinking of flying off somewhere this summer, see the special travel section in the August READER'S DIGEST. It's full of great tips about how to have a better time—by leaving the family sedan at home.
