AFRO Interviews Top Demo Mayor Candidates

(FIRST OF A SERIES)

AFRO editors and reporters have compiled a list of questions for the top Democratic candidates for mayor, covering vital issues of interest to this newspaper's readers.

The questions were posed to the candidates in separate interviews by Moses J. Newson, executive editor, and Max Johnson, political analyst.

Backgrounds of the candidates and their answers follow in this first set of questions.

QUESTIONS:

* What qualifications, education, experience, programs, concerns, etc., do you feel you have that make you better qualified to administer the business and welfare of this city than your top opponents in this mayoral campaign?

* Specify some areas in which you think the voters of Baltimore have a right to be disappointed in the present administration's performance, and cite examples of the kinds of priority changes the city's citizens might expect under your leadership.

* There has been considerable complaint about weak and fearful officials being afraid of standing up in times of crisis. How do you assess the merit of these complaints, and what would be your position as mayor?

* Would you favor a system of requiring a person to live in Baltimore City to be hired for a city government job, providing of course, that the city could go outside its borders in limited cases where it could show the desired talent was not available in the city?

RUSSELL, George L. Jr. — is city solicitor; 41 years old; married an attorney

with a law degree from the University of Maryland Law School; former Supreme Bench judge; a Roman Catholic, he lives at 3403 Seven Mile Lane.

1. I've been city solicitor of the city of Baltimore for the last four years.

As city solicitor I've had to handle all of the legal problems in the city, particularly involving the budget, and being city solicitor has given me an over-all view of all city departments and all of their problems.

Of course, I finished the public schools of Baltimore City, Lincoln University, Pennsylvania and the University of Maryland Law School.

I've practiced law in Baltimore City, and as a lawyer I had the highest rating in Martin-Dale Hubble. I was appointed judge of the Supreme Bench in 1966 and served in that capacity two years before becoming city solicitor.

I feel that my qualifications and my competency much better qualifies me to make the hard judgements ahead than any of my opponents.

Because, indeed in the last four years most of the major problems in which the city has been involved have been involved in the law department.

And it is there where the tough, hard judgements have been made, and I, therefore, believe that because I have had to make these tough judgements in the past, I am the best qualified to make them in the future.

2. Basically, I think the people are disappointed in the past administration primarily because we seem to be drifting from crisis to crisis, and that we have been giving the appearance of being a rudderless ship on an uncharted sea.

I think that the failure of the public to be informed of the programs and plans and to understand this has caused this disappointment.

Now some of the examples of the kinds of priority changes that the people should expect from me is one major change in the school system, and I have presented this in a detailed position paper whereby I call for a major reform in the public education field.

The second area, I believe, that's important is in the area of drug abuse.

In this area I have issued a position paper, which in detail, explains how I hope to combat this serious illness in our city. These are the two areas, the major areas, where I think people can expect real leadership.

3. Yes, I am aware of some of the complaints about the failure of public officials to stand up, but at no time have I failed as city solicitor to meet the problems and needs of the city when demanded.

And believe me I've had to make some difficult decisions, insofar as what the law reflects on many given factual situations.

In many instances, the administration has attempted to be just. Some of these complaints may have merit. But overwhelmingly I think the administration has simply failed to communicate to the people its programs nad its efforts, voluntarily, and has come out after a crisis has been created, and I think that this is the major problem of credibility in the present administration.

4. Yes, I would favor a system which would require a person to live in Baltimore City to be hired for a city government job. This of course would require a major charter revision of the whole civil service procedure and I'm definitely in favor of it.

What form this takes, whether it's a resident requirement or whether we would give preferences or an examination to city residents as we do for example with veterans, is open, but basically, I favor requiring people who work for the city to live in the city.

MITCHELL, Clarence M. 3rd — is president of a real estate company; 31 years old; married; attended Morgan State College; member of the State Senate since 1967; member formerly of the State House of Delegates, 1953-67, a Methodist, he lives at 3609 Wabash Ave.

1. I think that the best qualifications that I possess in terms of education and experience would be my years of community service, even before I was a member of the State Legislature.

The involvement in the 1960 sit-in movement, where we lead an effort to assure that places of public accommodation would be open. The 1960 voter registration drive that we helped to lead.

CLARENCE M. MITCHELL 3RD

I think also that the fact that I was involved in the picketing and boycott of the public utilities, when they refused to hire Black meter readers and black telephone repairmen, and we successfully pressured them into hiring black persons in all levels of the public utilities.

I have gone as far as three and a half years of college experience, I left college just as Julian Bond and Johnson, and other young blacks who were founders of SNICK.

To participate in the effort, we unselfishly set aside our education efforts to assure that we would be able to fully participate in the effort to liberate black citizens from the oppression of racism in this country.

I also have been involved with the State Legislature in helping to oversee the state budget and have sponsored or co-sponsored more than 63 pieces of legislation that have been designed to improve conditions for all citizens and particularly for black citizens in tis state.

Chief among them would be the Fair Employment Law, the Fair Housing Law, which I first introduced back in 1964, the law to repeal miscegenation laws here in the state of Maryland, the co-sponsor to the revision of drug abuse laws, the revision of state formula for state aid to education.

In addition to that, we have been involved in the community in fighting police brutality, fighting to get top officials removed who are not sensitive to the needs of the total community who ignored the cries for equal justice on the part of the black community.

We've been involved in helping to organize neighborhood groups who could then successfully pressure to get the full benefit of city services and the state services.

Also it is a matter of record that legislators have always made the best administrators. When there are half years in the legislature is certainly a qualification in terms of being able to bring about implementation policy and programming.

My record of community involvement as well as legislature as well as being on the front lines in the efforts to liberate the community qualifies me more so than any other candidate to serve as mayor of Baltimore City.

2. Certainly I think the citizens of Baltimore have every right to be disappointed with the performance of the present give away administration. This has been an administration that has not been concerned with human needs, but has rather been concerned with institutional and special interest needs.

You have but to look at the stripping of many of our assets by the city administration such as Friendship Airport, the right to determine priority in school construction in Baltimore City, off street parking facilities;

Even the present proposal that the city administration is considering turning over our water and sewer facilities to a multi-county commission, which would have majority representation of the county with Baltimore City only having one representative.

This is what I had considered or termed to be moving down the road toward colonization or control from the outside.

What our campaign is all about is restoring to the citizens of Baltimore our right to control our own destinies and reassert the right to govern ourselves.

Under my leadership, we would be able to reorder the priorities that place greater emphasis on the building of roads than on the building of houses for people. We are more than 36,000 housing units short in Baltimore City, and yet we are talking about building an east-west expressway.

We oppose that expressway and would redirect the funds set aside for the expressway for the building of houses in the Mulberry-Franklin corridor and on other vacant lots throughout the city. We would also establish residency requirements for city employees.

If the city is good enough to work for, it ought to be good enough to live in, contributing and controlling our resources, keeping our resources within the Baltimore economy community.

We would also stand for the police commissioner being appointed by the mayor rather than the governor, as another step for controlling our own destiny. We would assure that equal employment were a matter of reality rather than a matter of philosophy in this city.

We are for equal employment for women, as well as for the black citizens in this community and we would give special consideration to the employment of black citizens in city government in an effort to catch up because of the fact that we have been left out.

We would also be moving in the area of assuring that the Citizens of Baltimore get full benefit of city services. The city services have been in too many instances in the wrong areas and geared towards the special interest or the economic interest in our city.

We would also move toward creating a healthier climate, an economic climate in this city, helping to create jobs by offering tax incentives t the industries who would be interested in moving into the city of Baltimore, based on their ability to provide jobs for the citizens of Baltimore.

We would also take over the off-street parking facilities and make these city owned. The same power of incondemnation used by the city to establish them could be used to re-acquire them.

It is estimated that over $30 million in funds go to out of state corporations from off street parking facilities. These are a few of the changes of priority the citizens can expect under my leadership.

3. Another major problem with the present administration has been the weakness of the top elected officials, as well as, appointed officials, members of the Board of Estimate, the mayor, the president of the City Council and the city solicitor have been afraid to stand out in the time of crisis.

These officials were hiding in the Armory during the "violence in the streets in 1968," when it was out there walking the street, talking with people attempting to affect some kind of calm in the city of Baltimore.

We need leadership that will go right to the heart of the problem. I have been instrumental in helping to prevent what could have been another instance of massive violence.

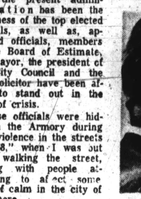
I remember last August at Pennsylvania Avenue and Gold St., when we grabbed a bull horn from a black sargeant and the police were lined up on Pennsylvania and the were down on Gold Street.

We walked down the middle of the streets between bricks and bottles and urged mothers to help get their children off the streets, and we recruited people from the sidewalk.

We were able to avoid a nasty situation there. This kind of citizenship I suggest that the citizens of Baltimore should have the right to expect.

4. I've already answered this question in my previous statement.

SCHAFFER, WILLIAM D. — is president of the City Council; 49 years old; a bachelor; an attorney with a masters of laws degree from the University of Baltimore; a colonel in the Army Reserve, he lives at 620 Edgewood St.



WILLIAM D. SCHAFFER

1. I've been a member of the City Council now for 15 years. I've represented the 5th district for 12 years. During that time, I was on every important committee that the City Council had, including the judiciary committee, the budget and finance committee, and the zoning committee.

And in addition to that, I was the vice-president of the City Council and the floor leader for the administration.

For the last three and a half years, I have been the president of the City Council, and have changed it from a part-time job to a full-time job. In addition, when the mayor is out of town, I am the acting mayor of the city of Baltimore.

So, I've had both legislative and executive experience as far as the city government is concerned. In addition, I have been the mayor's representative and liaison man for the State Legislature for the city administration policies, and have therefore been able to work and to know the state government as wlle as the city government.

I think over the long period of time, I've had all the qualifications to make me qualified for mayor.

I've held elected office and I think that's important, and won; and have been supported both on the local, and, that is, the entire city, voted for by practically the entire city.

So, I think my qualifications make me fully qualified for the position of mayor.

In addition, I've had a legal background. I have a LLB and an LLM from the University of Baltimore.

I remember last August at Pennsylvania Avenue and Gold St., when we grabbed a bull horn from a black sargeant and the police were lined up on Pennsylvania and the were down on Gold Street.

We walked down the middle of the streets between bricks and bottles and urged mothers to help get their children off the streets, and we recruited people from the sidewalk.

So, I've had both legislative and executive experience as far as the city government is concerned. In addition, I have been the mayor's representative and liaison man for the State Legislature for the city administration policies, and have therefore been able to work and to know the state government as wlle as the city government.

I think over the long period of time, I've had all the qualifications to make me qualified for mayor.

I've held elected office and I think that's important, and won; and have been supported both on the local, and, that is, the entire city, voted for by practically the entire city.

So, I think my qualifications make me fully qualified for the position of mayor.

In addition, I've had a legal background. I have a LLB and an LLM from the University of Baltimore.

2. I think the city of Baltimore is an alive city, a city that is moving forward, and I think this administration has been able to entrench amounts of good in the areas of education and housing, so that I don't think there are any real disappointments as far as the administration is concerned.

I think we might have been able to move faster in the area of a road system, and I would hope we might be able to speed that one up.

As far as priorities are concerned, there is no one priority. I think that we have to look at this as a number of priorities, and the number of priorities of course would include school, housing, economic development, job opportunities and a general upgrading of certain areas that have been allowed to deteriorate over a period of years as far as life is concerned.

The priorities that we have in the state legislature are somewhat the same. We have to get the state legislature to understand the specific problems of Baltimore City in trying to give us a better share of the money as far as the state is concerned.

3. I don't think I could ever be considered as a weak and fearful official. I take very positive stands on the things that I believe in, and have been so noted.

In my position as mayor, I will continue the leadership role. That is, a strong mayor taking stand, though they may not be the most popular stands, I will take the stand that I think will be for the benefit of all the people in the city.

I've done this in the past as president of the City Council, and also when I was in the City Council representing the 5th district.

I will continue the same type of leadership if I am elected mayor.

4. I favor a system of requiring a person to live in Baltimore City, when he is hired for the city government.

I've advocated this a number of years ago, as far back as the Grady administration, when I was criticized as being parochial in suggesting that we could find department heads and people who have city jobs that actually live in the city.

I think this is the right thing. I think top officials certainly should live in a city, the reason for this, they then get to know the problems of the city, with a much wider and a better understanding of the problems.

So I favor this.

Whenever you can't find someone that's fully qualified, then I think you should go beyond the borders of our city and look elsewhere.

If you will remember, I was the one who strongly advocated looking for a school superintendent within our own borders, and recommended a number of names. My suggestion was not followed, however. They did go outside the city.

I strongly advocate trying to have a person who holds a city job or a very high position living in the city.

FRANCIS J. VALLE

Im sorry, but I am going to have to decline your invitation for an in-depth interview about my candidacy for mayor of Baltimore City. The reasons for my decision, I feel, are specifically spelled out in the enclsoed press release of July 17, 1971.

No major candidate has ever expressed publicly and in writing, the political philosophy he adheres to in seeking the nomination for mayor of Baltimore City.

Because I believe that the philosophy of a mayor candidate regarding the method which he pursues the nomination is interwoven in the ultimate outcome of how he performs as mayor, if elected, it becomes necessary that I set forth my views and I encourage the other candidates to express their views.

In this way the electorate may know, apart from the slogans, the ballyhoo and the commercials, the political philosophy of candidates.

The first premise any individual seeking an elected office must establish is whether he intends to be a serious or a non-serious candidate.

If he is a non-serious candidate then he can prepare his campaign on the basis of (a) building up his name for the future, (b) being a gad-fly in the public eye, (c) being a voice in the wilderness on esthetic issues that a serious candidate may wish to avoid.

If an individual decides he is a major candidate, then his primary obligation is: (1) to provide meaningful dialogue on the issues and guidelines confronting the electorate, (2) getting elected.

Since I consider myself a major and serious candidate I shall provide throughout the course of this campaign, position papers and dialogue of a serious and meaningful nature upon the issues confronting the electorate.

However, for the present it is important that I make clear my strategy in the pursuit of getting elected.

In the quest for votes, and in this election in particular, I have placed my major opponents in the proper perspective, two are black and one is white. It became obvious in the election for the state's attorney of Baltimore City that the black community has become of age and discriminating.

It has adopted the philosophy which the ethnic groups of the Irish, Jewish, Italian, Polish and Germans implemented in Baltimore politics for the last century by electing one of their own, over any other qualified candidate not of their ethnic background.

Thus, in the First District, you saw the Polish and Italian politician, in the Second, the Bohemian politician, in the Third, the Irish politician and in the Fourth and Fifth, the Jewish politician, and in the Sixth, the German politician.

The ethnic groups recognized the fact that there was strength in number and by electing one of their own kind, they became a political force to be reckoned with.

Therefore, one cannot hold it against the black community for supporting only the black candidates as was very evident in the last two elections, when the black community elected a congressman, two judges, a state's attorney and a clerk of the court, elected positions all previously held by white officials.

Recognizing this, as a political fact of life, it almost becomes futile for any major white candidate in a Democratic primary to seek the support or attempt to solicit the vote of the black community, so long as the black community has an alternative in a black candidate, whom they believe to be an individual of substance.

The effort and time spent in attempting to attract votes would be better applied in areas where a white candidate knows he is likely to get votes.

It is obvious that I must direct my campaign only in the white community and I say this with regret.

In the pursuit of votes it is essential to obtain the endorsement of political clubs, the support of political groups and the backing of political leaders.

As a large part of the democratic voters participating in Democratic primaries are part of these political organizations, the support of these organizations becomes a political way of life.

In seeking that support, as a candidate, I shall avoid the quid-pro-quo theory. By that I mean, were I to promise any club, organization or political leader any jobs, any favors, or extra consideration in the city administration or to promise them any preferential treatment in any city dealings in exchange for their political support would be a violation of the Fair Election Practice Law.

I state, categorically, that although I will seek the endorsement of political clubs and political leaders, there will be no quid-pro-quo in so doing.

In our years the Democratic primaries have been controlled by political bosses.

In the First District it was D'Alesandros and the Hofferberts, in the Third, the Currans, Ricciuttis and O'Malleys, in the Fourth, the Jack Pollacks, and now the Adamses, the Welcomes and Mitchells, in the Fifth, the Irv Kovens and Phil Goodmans, and in the Sixth, the Dellas and Wyatts.

I will not accept and hereby reject, if offered, the support of the D'Alesandros, the Hofferberts, the Currans, Ricciuttis, Pollacks, Adamses, Welcomes Kovens, Goodmans, Dellas and Wyatts. Their very political being is one that is nurtured upon a quid-pro
