Barber, beauty shops under law on Accommodations

In its last session, the Maryland General Assembly passed a new section of the state Public Accomodations Law which brings under its jurisdiction all businesses and firms licensed by the Maryland Department of Licensing and regulation.

This new section of the Public Accomodations Law contains a provision prohibiting discrimination because of sex as well as for race, religion and national origin.

Numerous businesses are licensed by the department. The most important establishments covered under this law are beauty parlors and barber shops, which heretofore had eluded the stipulations of equal public accomodations.

'No excuse to be a nobody'

Juvenile Court Judge George B. Raisin placed a 16-year-old youth in the custody of the Department of Mental Health because he "did not want to return the boy to the same environment" which brought him into conflict with the law.

Judge Raisin advised the youth Tuesday that although he came from a problem home like thousands of other young men, it "is not an excuse to be a nobody."

The youth had admitted before the court that he was sometimes a habitual user of narcotics, although not an addict.

Judge Raisin told the youth that although he was not at present an addict, he would become one if he continued to use the drugs.

The judge also advised the teenager he would probably continue to commit burglaries and other crimes to pay for his drugs.

The 16-year-old of the 1100 block of E. 20th St., was charged with breaking and entering a neighbor's house, Mrs. Odessa Johnson, with a friend, and stealing personal items, a radio and other things, valued at $902.

Tragedy twice, 2nd son dies in 3 months

Tragedy came for the second time within three months to the home of Tobias and Mrs. Juanita Blagmon, 4302 Connecticut Ave., when they lost their second son, Darren, age 3 months.

The infant died on Aug. 13, after he developed pneumonia overnight.

This is the second son that the Blagmons have lost recently.

Their first son, Bryan, age 2, died in a freak car accident three months ago, when a truck jacknifed and crushed the top of the Blagmon car at Pennington Ave.

Funeral services were held for the three months old at the Elroy Wilson Funeral Home, Ritchie Highway, on Monday, Aug. 16, at 11 a.m. He is buried in Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

Liberian ship is still here

A Baltimore police boat filled with Tactical Squad patrolmen and two United States Marshalls on a Coast Guard boat were dispatched to quell altercations aboard a Liberian tanker, "The Kingsland Trader," anchored in the harbor between Dundalk Marine Terminal and Fort Carroll.

Radio dispatched helicopter reported that they saw a man on the bow Wednesday waving a light blue square flag. The waving of any flag vigorously can be interpreted as a signal of distress.

Earlier, the helicopter reported there were eight men on the bow and one man perched on a ladder.

The police boat returned to shore at the foot of Broadway with two prisoners from the ship.

It was indicated that crew members could have been Chinese. The message from the radio dispatch said a Chinese interpreter was aboard the police boat.

A Coast Guard spokesman reported Thursday that another member of the crew was removed from the ship and taken to City Hospitals.

The tanker is still anchored in the harbor and is scheduled to dock at the American Oil Company terminal at Wagners Point. It started from Colombo, Ceylon. No sailing date has been set.

William DeCoursey, handsome, still young at 76 years

By MARIE P. COOKE

A young, handsome man of 76 lives in the Poe Homes, 207 Amity St.

He is William DeCoursey, Jr. who believes in beautifying Baltimore which is best expressed by his lovely backyard garden which contains the rarest of roses from the Southwestern states.

Mr. DeCoursey is careful his garden receives ample care, which includes watering, pruning when necessary.

On the other hand, Mr. DeCoursey is not the only one in the unit who's backyard exemplifies beauty.

There is a yard in the block which has fully-grown cabbages and young tomatoes.

Others have summer flowers and tasteful shrubs.

As Mr. DeCoursey looks back over the past 76 years he recalls, "I can remember when Carl Murphy (the late president, publisher and chairman of the board of directors of the AFRO) used to play together.

"We used to shoot marbles. I also remember one of his brothers, John. That was a long time ago.

"I also used to sell AFROs. They were only five cents."

A native of Baltimore, he was born to Mr. and Mrs. William (Molly) DeCoursey Sr. in 1892. His mother died when he was six months old.

"I went to the old school that was on School and Carey Sts. I can't recall the number of the school. Then I went to Douglass High School and only stayed for six months. I had to go to work."

"I was a domestic worker. I was a chauffeur, houseman and gardner. My last job was at the Pennsy

Also allegedly manhandled and arrested along with Mr. Dorsey and his wife, 27, were Mrs. Jean Kenny, 40, of this city and James R. Dyson, 31, of New York.

Mr. Dorsey claims he and his wife and the other persons suffered cuts and bruises as they were subjected to what he reported as "unnecessary force and brutality."

However, police offense reports state a cab driver, Gentle Victor Thompson, 30, 700 block Appleton St., said he was driving south late Friday night in the 3300 block Garrison Blvd. when two men in a car called him names.

He stopped, police say, at the intersection of Forest Park and Garrison Blvd. near Liberty Heights. According to Mr. Thompson's statements to police, the two men pulled him from his taxi and beat him. The driver is said to have called for assistance from his dispatcher.

Police arriving on the scene arrested both men, one of whom first identified himself as "John Doe." Later he said his name was Homer Dorsey. Reports say he broke loose, fought with police and knocked the glasses off an officer.

Further it was noted, Mrs. Dorsey allegedly interfered with police as they tried to arrest her husband. She is said to have

Elegant wedding, parties mark busy social week

with Lula Mackay

Charming and elegant are words for the wedding and reception in which Miss Peggy Ann Parker became the bride of Hiram E. Ammons, Saturday at 11 a.m. in the Metropolitan United Methodist Church.

The Rev. E. P Clark officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Parker, wore a street-length eyelet Venice lace original dress, designed with long sleeves accented with ruffles at the wrist and with double ruffles at the hemline. A bib effect, front and back enhanced the bodice. Her headpiece, the forward look, was attached to a veil of illusion arranged blusher-style. She carried a bouquet of white mums.

The ensemble worn by her sister, Mrs. Luther T. Ford, matron of honor was a Mr. Mort original of imported silk, apple green in color. Her headpiece was a veil of illusion in the same shade of green. She carried a bouquet of pink and green mums.

The reception, a sit-down lunch, was at the Baltimore Sheridan Inn, with a color scheme in pink and green. After an undisclosed wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ammons will be at home on Maine Ave.

The new Mrs. Ammons is employed by Good Samaritan Hospital as a medical social worker. Mr. Ammons, son of Mrs. Joseph Brown, is an art teacher in Baltimore City schools.

Mrs. Mabel Boardley and Chica Jacobs gave a bon voyage party for Mrs. Leon Sterling, originally from Kingston, Jamaica and now residing in Baltimore.

Mrs. Sterling will be vacationing in the Islands for three weeks. Attending the party was her husband, Leon Sterling.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Casilda Brown, Wong Johnson, Miss Trora Johnson frim Jamaica, and Mrs. Elaine Mareau of Trinidad.

Local guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Gwathney, Mr. and Mrs. Glover Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Collins, William Reddick, Mrs. Carolyn Lee, Mrs. Gladys Waddell, Mrs. Carrie Bridges, Mrs. Luvinia Martin, Carl Green, Earl Parker, Miss Evelyn Joyner, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Douglas, Lemuel Clemons, Jimmy Kates, and Charles Smith.

With the ladies: Miss Celestine E. Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman J. Anderson of Ellamont Street, has been appointed to the faculty of Wittenberg University's Granville H. Marshall of College of Liberal Arts.

Miss Anderson will join the faculty this autumn as an instructor in history. She received her bachelor master of arts degree from Virginia State College, and is currently a teacher in the evening college of the University of Cincinnati as well as being a legislative assistant to a Cincinnati councilman.

Peregrinators: Mrs. Cyrus Marshall Sr. has been having great fun with her grandchildren, Dauna, Granville Jr., and Derek, children of Dr. and Mrs. Los Angeles, Calif.

Dr. Marshall flew from Los Angeles to Houston, Tex. recently, for the fight, came to Washington for the Dental Convention and then to Baltimore, where he had the children meet him for the visit with his mother.

The children left Friday by plane to visit their maternal grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Spencer in Cleveland, Ohio, where Mrs. Granville Marshall joined them for a vacation with her parents.

Mrs. Louise Hines was in Puerto Rico, last week along with the party from the Heritage United Church of Christ. Fifty members, including the pastor, the Rev. Wendell L. Phillips and Mrs. Phillips flew down Monday on the trip arranged by the Heritage Women's Guild, of which Mrs. Beatrice Nixon is president.

Medford and Verniece Reynolds' were in Paris, France, this week. They had been in Amsterdam, Manheim and Heidelberg, and were enroute to London.

Back home, this week, is Mrs. J. Logan Jenkins of College Ave., Morgan Park, and much improved in health. Mrs. Jenkins spent three weeks in Union Memorial Hospital recently. She was scarcely home when the tragic death of a young woman and man occurred practically on her doorstep — which sent her scooting to the Shawangunk Hotel in Lake Minnewaska, N. Y. to get her nerves quieted. Also on this trip was Mrs. Jean Turpin.

In Puerto Rico, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Sheffey were having a great time — but not so much so that they were not thinking of friends, here. They send greetings to the staff of Lafayette Square Community Center, of which he is executive director; and to the Morgan College community, where she is chairman of the English Department of the college. They are discovering Old San Juan, with its cobbled blue-green stones (adoquines) brought from Spain a 100 years ago. They have been entertained by the Matthias family, old established settlers; and by Maas Delemos, executive assistant to Governor Melvin Evans. Governor Evans, you recall, received an honorary degree from Morgan State College in June. The Sheffey's children, Ilena and Renata have swum so much—they are practically water breathing animals, say the parents. And simply seeing the lovely flamboyan trees a-bloom is worth the trip to the islands, says Ruthe.

A week of strenuous effort as her sorority held a national boule here, during which time she directed public relations, Mrs. Martha J. Thompson has joined Mrs. Garland Mackey and daughter, Jean, on a jaunt to Minneapolis.

Peggy Poole and James Short; and at top, Edward Tilghman, following the wedding in Saint Mary, The Virgin Episcopal Church, Saturday.
