New honor accorded ABC for special on bigotry

The ABC News special, "The Eye of the Storm," has been named winner of an honorable mention in the National Media Awards competition of the American Psychological Foundation. A citation symbolic of the award was presented Saturday at the associations 79th Convention in Washington, D.C.

According to the Foundation, "The Eye of the Storm" was selected for its "noteworthy contribution toward increasing the American public's understanding of psychology."

"The Eye of the Storm," produced by the creative team of writer-producer-director William Peters and his wife, associate producer Muriel Peters, aired originally May 11, 1970 as a part of the ABC News "Now" series and was rebroadcast August 10, 1970 and March 22, 1971.

The half-hour news program adds the American Psychological Foundation citation to an impressive list of honors including the George Foster Peabody Award, the American Film Festival Award, the Christopher Award, the Saturday Review Award and the Catholic Broadcasters of America Gabriel Award.

• • •

"The Eye of the Storm" depicts an uniquely successful experiment in the nature of prejudice conducted at the Riceville, Iowa, Elementary School.

Faced with the task of explaining prejudice and discrimination based on color to children who had never seen people different from themselves except on television, third-grade teacher Mrs. Jane Elliot, with her students' enthusiastic approval, divided her class according to the color of their eyes.

• • •

On the first day, blue-eyed children were told they were better than brown-eyed children in every respect.

Brown-eyed children were treated with deliberate prejudice; their normal privileges were taken away; they were forbidden to talk or play with "blue-eyes," and they were made to wear special collars so that their inferior status could be noted from a distance.

The following day, the roles were reversed, with startling results.

'In the News' gets kid's-eye-view

Why is the Defense Department called the Pentagon? What is an SST? Why is a work stoppage called a strike?

These are some of the questions which will be answered on "In the News," a pioneering CBS series expressly designed to explain topical news stories and current events to schoolage viewers.

"In the News" premieres Saturday and will be seen in two-and-one-half minute segments every half-hour beginning at 8:56 am and continuing until 12:26 pm.

BRINGING BACK 'FAT ALBERT' — Bill Cosby repeats his widely-acclaimed "Hey, Hey, Hey — It's Fat Albert" special Sunday night on ABC. Audience gets another taste of comedian's dish of "Old Weird Harold," "Dumb Donald," and the "Green Street Terrors" football team.

New animated series on 'Jackson 5ive' debuts

A new animated series, the "Jackson 5ive" (ce), inspired by the popular young music group, The Jackson 5, brings the day-to-day adventures and dreams of these talented brothers to young television viewers when the series premieres Saturday (9:30 10:00 a.m., EDT), on ABC.

The young group, whose record sales have consistently hit the top of music charts and best-selling lists will be seen in comedic and serious adventuries throughout the animated series.

Each of the Jackson 5, consisting of Jackie, Tito, Jermaine, Marlon and Michael, is a unique individual, but they are as one when it comes to their love of music.

• • •

The "Jackson Five" series is based on the real-life personalities of each of the Jacksons, and the stories are centered around their personal interests, dreams, school activities and family life.

Jackie is 20 years old; Tito, 17; Jermaine, 16; Marlon, 14; and Michael, the lead singer, is 12. Together they had four hit singles in 1970, two more so far this year, plus four albums, with all releases selling in the millions and one, "I'll Be There" already well over the 4,000,000 mark.

The Jackson 5 have their own magazine, a quarterly publication, and stores throughout the country are selling Jackson 5 decals, stickers and sweaters.

In addition to their commercial popularity, the group also is rated as one of the best soul bands in the country. They are also part of a likable and natural family, which has survived the pressures of teenaged stardom.

How do they like their busy schedule, especially now that they have a series based on their livesu "Neither our schooling nor our music has really suffered," says Jackie.

"The Buckley School in Sherman Oaks, Calif., where all of us go, makes allowances, and a social worker-tutor travels with us wherever we go.

"We get a small allowance each week and aren't subject to all the pressures that grown-ups have to go through."

Diana Ross discovered the boys when they were performing at a benefit in Gary, Ind., in 1969. She brought them to Motown's attention, and recorded an album, "Diana Ross Presents the Jackson 5." That album and their subsequent recordings rocketed onto the best-selling charts, and the group soon became one of the biggest record sellers and in-person attractions in entertainment history.

A few of the Jackson 5's biggest hits include "I'll Be There," "Maybe Tomorrow," "ABC," "Stand," "It's All Right," "I Want To Take You Higher," "Walk On," "The Love You Save," and "Goin' Back To Indiana."

LATE-NIGHT VISIT — Controversial writer Melvin Van Peebles is Friday night's featured guest on the ABC Dick Cavett talk show, in which Orson Welles acts as host for the vacationing Cavett.

AUSTIN, Tex (UPI) — Starting Tuesday, Texas churches and veterans, civic and fraternal groups could do legally what they have been doing illegally for years — sponsor a bingo party or raffle off a turkey.

A bill legalizing such events has become law. The only hitch is that bingo parties or raffles must be sponsored by a nonprofit group.

'CURIOSITY CUTIE' — Jerelyn (Jeri) Fields is one of the fresh young talents being introduced in the ABC "Curiosity Shop" children's series. The 12-year-old daughter of Marine Corps Captain and Mrs. James E. Fields speaks Spanish with moderate fluency and is studying ballet, tap and Hawaiian dancing.

Rehearsal for 'Laugh-In' is real-life laugh-in

For the cast of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," it's bye-bye summer and back to work. Its time for the first rehearsal of tre first show, which raises the curtain for the series' fifth season on NBC Monday.

A long table has been set for 15 (not with plates, but scripts) — one each for Dan Rowan, Dick Martin, 10 cast regulars, the guest star, executive producer George Schlatter and producer-head writer Paul W. Keyes. The room is empty and silent.

• • •

The silence is shattered by the first one in: Alan Sues. He crashes through the doors with a retainer in his mouth. All he wants is his two front teeth — closer together.

Next in is Barbara Sharma, eating cantaloupe with a spoon and announcing between mouthfuls, "seven off and seven to go" — pounds, she means.

Close behind her is a big fellow who could use a truckload of cantaloupes: Johnny Brown. Carrying a megaphone, he announces, "Rudy Vallee couldn't make it."

• • •

Within minutes all the places are filled and the first reading of the script begins. Martin muffs a line. Keyes needles him and Dick comes back with "Somebody's gotta remind you of Goldie."

The reading continues and Martin blows another line. Bellows Keyes, "From now on Dick, for anything over two syllables we get you a stunt reader."

• • •

A new addition to the cast—Moosie Drier, 7 — comes in and reads his lines. He's letter perfect and breaks up the cast.

B. Sherman, idol of youth, sets up cancer research fund

"Did you know," asked Bobby Sherman as he leaned forward toward a group of people, "that more teenagers die of cancer than of any other disease? I had no idea that it struck kids until I recently started to do some research into the problem.

"The kids really are important to me, and I want to do everything I can to help them. Like this cancer thing . . .when I found out that it hit the kids so hard I asked what I could do to help."

• • •

What Bobby has done is something very positive — he has set up The Bobby Sherman Cancer Research Fund. "What's more important is that every cent of it goes to research hospitals. Some friends and myself will pick up the tab for organization and running it, so that all the money the kids contribute goes directly to help other kids."

The Research Fund is something new — Sherman has only begun to get it off the ground. But it's more important to him right now than almost anything else. "The Concern Foundation, under which we operate, has agreed to set up a special fund where young people can help, and that's The Bobby Sherman Research Fund," explained Sherman.

There are three doctors in different parts of the world all working on the same theory of prevention and cure. Bobby's fund goes to help these doctors in their research.

This fund is important to Bobby because it goes to help "the kids. God love 'em," as he says. And because it gives the young people a chance to do something for themselves.

The project comes at a time when Sherman couldn't be more involved in his profession. His new ABC Television Network series, "Getting Together," premieres on Sept. 18. His records, all selling into the millions, get recorded in the evenings, and mostly in the studio he has created in his own home. Then on weekends, Bobby is on the road for several concerts.
