Kids to honor Bears' Banks

Morgan State College head football coach Earl Banks and his wife will be honored at the halftime intermission of Morgan's traditional game against University of Maryland, Eastern Shore at Hughes Stadium.

An entourage of youngsters from Annapolis, headed by Mayor Hugh Moyers and Department of Recreation officials, will journey to Baltimore to salute Banks "for his untiring efforts on behalf of youth."

Earl completed his fourth summer of directing the "Orioleland" program, which offers meaningful recreation to thousands of underprivileged boys and girls throughout Maryland.

A gold watch will be presented the Morgan coach as well as to his wife, Mrs. Essie Banks, "because we recognize that behind every good man is a good woman," explains an Annapolis spokesman.

"This," he adds, "is merely the boys' way of saying thanks!"

Rep. Mitchell raises $5 million

For his support of the Minority Bank Deposit Program, Congressman Parren Mitchell was commended Thursday by John Sower, Washington director of Capital Formations, Inc., a non-profit group.

Preliminary reports indicate an increase of $5 million in deposits, and Congressman Mitchell predicted an additional $2 million by the time the program closes in October.

Mitchell, who sits on the Congressional Banking and Currency Committee, came to the aid of the program in June.

He contacted 250 national corporations, urging them to open deposit accounts in minority banks.

"It is very gratifying," Mitchell said, "that business has decided in recognizing minority banks and through them the nation's minorities."

Burch warns against fake contest

Attorney General Francis B. Burch has warned the public against a puzzle contest which offers "big money without spending one cent." A large number of complaints has reached his office from people who have lost money through the scheme.

Burch said an initial prize of $3,000 is offered for solving a pczzle which any eight-year-old could easily solve.

"Clues such as 'The number after three'; a picture of a bell, 'the opposite night,' and a picture of a ring give clue letters which identify the 'mystery picture' which is the solution to the puzzle. That mystery picture is the American Flag."

He described the puzzle as "inerently deceptive." While the initial puzzle is easy, the tie-breakers are so difficulty that even an extraordinary person would have only a remote chance of coming up with the correct solution.

Beware of carbon monoxide in winter

As residents close their windows and start their home heating units against cold weather carbon monoxide becomes more of a threat. Likewise motorists roll up their car windows to keep out the cold.

These actions may make people more comfortable but they may also cause carbon monoxide poisoning unless preventive measures are taken, the City Health Department's Bureau of Industrial Hygiene has warned.

Home owners should have their heating systems checked and adjusted by a heating expert before starting them for cold weather. Oot water heaters and chimneys should be checked also.

Motorists should keep their exhaust systems in good repair and always leave window partially open to admit fresh air even in the coldest weath-
