Training for x-ray technicians offered

Provident Hospital announces establishment of a School of Radiologic Technology. The School, approved by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association, will begin its first class on January 17, 1972.

The 24-month program, designed to train x-ray technicians, is under the direction of Dr. James E. Bell, Chief of Radiology at Provident Hospital. Under completion of the program, the new x-ray technicians may apply for certification from the American Registry of X-Ray Technicians.

A medical x-ray technician's program covers a combination of skills, knowledge and responsibilities, some of which are related to the pure sciences of physics and chemistry and others to the medical science of anatomy.

In addition to employment in hospitals, the x-ray technician's services are widely used in other areas. Industrial plants employ x-ray technicians to maintain and furnaih x-ray services for their employees, to x-ray steel, castings and welds for flaws or to measeure thickness and composition of materials and to eliminate foreign materials from packaged and other products.

The School at Provident will be affiliated with the University of Maryland. Almission requirements include a high school equivalency test or high school diploma. Applicants between the ages of 18 and 30 years of age are preferred.

The student will receive a stipend of $100 a month during the first year and $125 a month during the second year. The student will also get free uniforms and laundry. In addition, the student will be required to purchase his own books which will be approximately $95.

The program itself will include one hour of formal classwork daily with a basic curdiculum in x-ray technology including courses of anatomy, physiology, physics, professional ethics, etc. Applications must be submitted by December 15, 1971.

BEST BUYS:

Try vegetables as budget stretchers

by VIRGINIA McLUCKIE, Food Economist

Vegetables from the fall crops are appearing in more and more volume on the retail market, so this is the time to stretch budgets with in-season vegetables.

Select from these vegetables to fill your market basket; cabbage, Brussels sprouts broccoli, carrots, white and sweet potatoes, cauliflower, dry onion, cooking greens, turnips, rutabagas and parsnips, winter varieties of squash and pumpkins.

This week is the most popular time for pumpkins as we approach Halloween. In general pumpkins are classed as stock feed and pie types. Pumpkins are native to the Americans. The history of present varieties have been traced back to the Indian tribes where the record stops.

The round, slightly ribbed fruits, flattened at ends with a bright orange skin is the most desirable for Jack O' Laterns and decorations. The small sized pumpkins have rich orange meaty flesh, that is sweet and fine grained. These may be used for pie making. The large pumpkins usually have coarse flesh and are grown for decorations and cattle food. Kept cool and dry these pumpkins will last two to three months.

For convenience most shoppers turn to the canned pumpkin or pumpkin pie mix, to bake pumpkin pie. Frozen ready to bake pies are usually a featured item in the fall and prices are attractive. Pumpkin is a deep yellow vegetable which offers many possibilities as food. Boiled or baked and scooped from the shell then seasoned with butter and nutmeg, fresh pumpkin may be served as a vegetable with pork or chicken.

Squash is usually divided into two categories, winter and summer. Both are available, to some extent, throughout the year; however, the peak season for winter squash is October and November. The varieties most available are Acorn, Butternut and Hubbard.

These are all deep yellow vegetables that add color to your menu. A one half cup serving also adds to your daily requirement of Vitamin A. When selecting these squash, test for a hard skin and firmness. The squash should feel heavy for its size and be free of blemishes. One pound makes one cup mashed or two servings.

Fall fruits are also adding to the color of the produce sections. Red and Golden apples, Tokay grapes, Bartlett pears, Thompson seedless grapes, Florida grapefruit both white and pink fleshed, and cranberries make up the list of seasonal fruit buys.

With Halloween, Trick or Treat has become a very big activity for youngsters. Treats that you give out may take the form of purchased candies or sweets.

In the interest of food safety select an item that is wrapped in paper or film. If you treat with homemade candy or cookies wrap the portions individually. Many mothers report that they ask the children to empty the treat bag then discard any unwrapped items.

A small size apple is an excellent treat. If children have friends in the home for a Halloween visit serve apple cider or juice and cookies or bite size donuts which is befitting the harvest season.

To make a pumpkin Soufflé use one cup canned or thick mashed cooked fresh pumpkin, one-half teaspoon ground cinnamon, one-half cup firmly packed brown sugar, three egg whites, and one-eighth teaspoon salt.

Combine pumpkin with cinnamon and sugar and mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff, add salt, and fold into pumpkin mixture. Fill greased 1-quart baking dish or individual molds about two-third full, and set in pan of hot water. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees) for about 40 minutes for a large mo' 25 to 30 minutes for individual molds. Make 4 to 6 servings.

Moles meet in Petersburg

PETERSBURG—The Petersburg Moles opened their calendar of fall activities with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Bernice Montague on S. Lawn Ave. here.

Mrs. Gladys Collins presided at the meeting which included voting for delegates to the annual executive board meeting in Roanoke, delegates to the annual national conclave to be held in Portsmouth in June and the awarding of committee assignments

Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Gladys Holland also delivered a report on the activities on the past national conclave which was held in Columbia, S.C. last June.

A tribute was also paid to the late Mrs. Dorothy Turpin, the first deceased member of the 11-year-old chapter.

The ostess, Mrs. Montague, served a delicious repast to the club members in her dining room which was beautifully decorated with live plants moved indoors for the occasion.

Other members attending were Mesdames Dorothy Betts, Leola Baugh, Hermione Carter, Elizabeth Cooper, Mavis Cupid, Lucille Greene, Virginia Miller, Ethel Myers, Jean Rogers, Vera Thigpen, Rebecca Cunningham, Evelyn Hayes and Marion Spikes.
