When Anita K. Henson retired from the position of public nurse supervisor, Friday, many of the staff accompanied her home at the end of her last work day.

Her husband, Roland, and cousins, Mary Dunwoodie and Etheline Barland, had prepared a beautiful spread of goodies to refresh the group. (I don't know who's happier about the retirement — Anita or Roland.)

Anita changed into a black and gold hostess gown with gold accessories for the evening.

Joining her was: Sallie Barber, Barbara Barnes, Tom, Etheline and Karen Barland, Dottie Brown, Lucy Burrett, Kendall Calhoun, Pearl Caplan, Katherine Clarke, Marjorie and Shelton Coles, Flori and Ruby Couch, Lillian Dalton, Alexander and Mary Dunwoodie, Rose Edwards, Mary Fitchette, Alberta Gottlieb, John and Maxine Gaskins, Brenda Hall, Serena Holmes, Geraldine Hunt, Franclen Lamele, Mildred Jones, Charles Montgomery, Edith Mosby, Peggy Poole, Agnes Pilgrim, Ranny and Lenora Rigby, Anita Richardson, Joyce Robinson, Lillian Roseman, Rebecca Scovens, Caesar Villacres, Eleanor Willis, Jessie Wallace, Dorothy Wiggins, Mary Wilson, Milton and Jeannette White.

The We-Be-Co Club members, meeting with Joan Case, Saturday, elected officers and set up a program of projects that will keep them on their toes throughout the season.

Vera Dorsey is the president. Other officers named are Mary Robinson, vice president; Sara Giles, recording secretary; Eugenia Britt, corresponding secretary; Gardrienne Griffin, reporter; Carolyn Willis, porter; and Carolyn Willis, treasurer.

Their projects this term are financial aid to Glenda Moore, a freshman who is attending the University of Maryland's Baltimore campus; volunteering in the Gift Shop of Provident Hospital on the second Sundays of each month; providing $25 to a student at Harlem Park Junior High School so that he can take the entrance exam for the Masters School in New York; and purchasing draperies for the dining room for geriatric patients at Crownsville State Hospital.

A committee has also been named to arrange a "Salute to the Arena Players" in the fall of 1972.

Members, other than officers of this group are Reginia Bernard, Marie Francis, Carolyn Holmes, Gwendolyn Howard, Barbara Padgett, Essie Sutton, Sylvia Grace and Shirley Swafford.

The Baltimore Chapter of the Pinochle Bugs began their fall season on Saturday afternoon with Dr. Virgial Webb serving as hostess at her Liberty Heights Avenue home.

A buffet luncheon was served following the business session during which time plans were formulated for a fall fund raising activity.

Five rounds of pinochle were played. Winning prizes were Mrs. Julia Stovel, first; Mrs. Dorothe Johnson, second, and Mrs. Rosa Lee Griffin, the booby prize.

Guests present were Dr. Mary Ann Franklin and Dr. Margaret Jackson who were also awarded prizes.

Mtmbers attending the meeting were Mesdames Margaret Land, Hattie Wells, Florence Williams, Rosa Lee Griffin, Julia Stovel, Vera Shell, Lil McDonald, Elizabtth Tilghman, Dorothe Johnson and Dr. Webb.

Mental Health campaign

The Mental Health Association of Metropolitan Baltiore has begun its annual membership campaign, according to this year's chairman, Herbert J. Belgrad.

Several thousand letters have been mailed, inviting residents of the metropolitan area to join.

Membership is open to everyone in Baltimore City and County.

Interested persons are asked to contact the Association at 323 E. 25th Street, Baltimore, Md. 21218.

The Association has set a two-fold goal for the 1972 campaign: to broaden its base of support and to increase its active membership. With additinal community backing, the agency can work more effectively for improved mental health services and the human rights of mental patients.

Time to put garden to bed

The time is at hand to put the garden to bed and get ready for inclement weather ahead. This is the time to rake and tidy up the lawn, and perennial borders, bank roses, mulch, spray and winter proof evergreens.

Hybrid tea roses, grandifloras and floribundas are more certain to winter safely if their stems are banked up with six to eight inches of soil.

Many gardeners find it a big help to spray the stems of their roses and soil around them with a dormant spray to clean up any insects or disease that might winter over.

Rake the leaves off the lawn before they become matted and kill out the grass beneath.

Cut off to within a few inches of the soil the dead tops of peonies and other perennials. Destroy any material suspect of being diseased. Put the other material on the compost pile.

Spray the ground around peonies and iris clumps to keep down any disease.

Erect burlap shelters to protect broadleaved evergreens or with plastic sprays which are easily diluted with alter and applied to the leaves with any conventional sprayer. An application now and another late in January will usually see evergreens through winter.

Fashion historians say clothing reflects the times and the recent "anything goes" spirit definitely has had some influence on the contemporary fashion scene.

On The Eastside

By GEORGIANNA MOODY

The East Baltimore Medical Plan hopes to find ways and means for providing hot lunches for the preschool children who will be visiting the clinic with their parents.

Last Friday J. Patton and Joseph Sneckman demonstrated at Lafayette Court's what the program food can provide as a meal "on tray" meal for the preschool child.

It was a well planned luncheon consisting of several varieties of meats and vegetables. The [illegible] was prepared for 30 staff members of the medical plan.

The members who were pleased with the meal were: Clarence Burns, Wyman Henry, Dr. James Sheppard, Mesdames Brenda Thompson, Gloria Gilliam, Brenda Fuller, Dr. Archie Golden, and Charles K. Anderson.

Mrs. Gloria Gilliam will be working on different educational projects at the Plan Center, 1301 N. Aisquith St. She is asking the public to turn in popsickle sticks and orange juice cans that she can teach children to make things from.
