CITY EDITOR — Mrs. Elizabeth Murphy Oliver has been promoted to city editor of the Baltimore AFRO-AMERICAN in an appointment announced this week by Mrs. Frances Murphy, chairman of the board of directors. A veteran staff writer and court reporter, Mrs. Oliver has been with the AFRO since 1941. An AB Fisk University and MA Indiana University graduate, she is daughter of the late physician, Dr. J. B. Oliver and Mrs. Rose Murphy Oliver, daughter of AFRO founder, John H. Murphy Sr.

Mr. Dorsey was Bethel trustee

"I have always thought that it was the best decision of my life. I went back to school at night and worked in the daytime."

Oscar C. Dorsey, dead this week at the age of 83, was a school dropout who made a success in life.

At the time of the AFRO interview, in 1959, he had retired after 34 years in the post office where he worked as a letter carrier and he had seen his younger brothers and sisters through school.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Bethel A.M.E. Church where he was for many years a trustee, member of the usher board, superintendent of the Sunday School.

He was a 33rd degree Prince Hall Maon, a member of Jerusalem Temple No. 4 of Shriners and a member of the National Association of Letter Carriers, NAACP, and YMCA.

He is survived by his wife Mrs. Emma Keene Jones Dorsey, four stepsons Walter V. Jones, Jr., K. Jones, David T. Hand, and Arthur B. Brown, and a sister Mrs. Loretta Collins of New York. He is buried in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

Capt. Brown was longtime Bethel AME Church member

"He was known as 'Captain Brown' to his many coworkers and 'granpa' to his many youthful friends."

Mrs. Beatrice Bevans was speaking of her father William Brown, 80, 2103 McCulloh St.

Mr. Brown died Oct. 22 at Maryland General Hospital after a brief illness. In 1956, he retired after 36 years as a captain of the Maryland Room at the Emerson Hotel.

He was a faithful and active member of Bethel A.M.E. Church where he served as a stewart and a member of the brotherhood club.

In 1965, he was awarded a plague for his devotion as father, grandfather and great-grandfather of the year at Bethel A.M.E. Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah A. Copeland Brown, to whom he had been married to for 58 years.

In addition to his wife he has three daughters, Mesdames Myrtle Joyner, Adelaide Warrn, "Beatrice Bevans; two sons Curtis and Milton Brown, a brother Edward Brown, five grandchildren, four great grandchildren.

He is buried in Arbutus cemetery.

mother he is required to impose the life sentence which is mandatory under law when a conviction of first degree murder without capital punishment has been rendered.

According to Assistant State's Attorney O'Connor, Elements of premeditation, deliberate thought and the stuffing of the mother's nightgown in the child's mouth, were sufficient evidence for the first degree murder conviction.

It was testified during the trial a window screen found by police lying near the infant's body, had been pushed out of the 10th floor back bedroom window of the mother's home.

Defense Attorney Kolodner maintains the infant's death could have been caused by someone else.

Mr. Kolodner has reveiled the appeal will be filed on the basis that his client was convicted on circumstantial evidence.

The defense attorney contended anyone of three intoxicated people (including Mrs. Mays) who were present when the crime occurred, could have been guilty in the child's death.

As Mrs. Mays sat quietly in her chair, Judge Murphy stated, "There's only one sentence I can give you in this case, Mrs. Mays. I have a duty to impose the life sentence. Under law its mandatory."

When asked if she understood what Judge Murphy had said, Mrs. Mays, who wore a skirt and blouse, simply nodded her head.

to receive one of the following offices: Administrative Assistant to the Mayor or head of the Community Action Agency.

If she becomes an Administrative Assistant, Mrs. Campbell is conjected to have complete charge over "regulation and coordination" of matters concerning urban crisis of all types as liaison between Mr. Schaefer and the black community.

The personable matron also has been speculated to be one of Mr. Schaefer's top choices for appointment to the Board of School Commissioners in the event of the resignation of Commissioner Elizabeth Murphy Moss before her term expires next year or if the colirts deny Cyril O. Byron to retain his post while living in Baltimore County.

Said Mrs. Campbell, "Mr. Schaefer in developing his staff will use people who have displayed initiative, skill and intelligence."

Although she would not comment on her precise position and role in the new Administration, Mrs. Campbell did admit she would "play a role."

At 56, she is thought to be the most experienced person in the D'Alesandro Administration in dealing with "gut" issues as social service problems and overcoming bureaucratic red tape for indigents who need help and can't get it anywhere else.

School children, willing to write, are being given a chance to earn Christmas money if they win the BP Oil "Yellow Mug Contest."

The contest, open to children up to the 10th grade, is offering cash prizes for the best stories about the yellow coffee mugs which are being given to all motorists who buy gas at BP stations throughout the city.

The essay entries, which should be imaginative and which have no limit in length, should be mailed to the Contest Editor, Elson Higgenbotham, AFRO-AMERICAN Newspaper, 628 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore.

The contest is connected with a AFRO advertising campaign which began Nov. 1.
