Longshoremen Back To Work On The Port Today

Dockers face second court hearing today

The 5,000 striking members of the Baltimore International Longshoremen's Association returned to work Thursday on an order from the Baltimore District Council.

Signed by William Haile, ILA vice-president and John Kopp, Atlantic Coast, vice-president, the order said members will forthwith comply with hiring practices in existence in the port of Baltimore on Sept. 30.

They also pledged to dispatch and instruct members to work for Steamship Trade Association employers in accordance with terms of the collective bargaining in effect on Sept. 30.

The leaders of the ILA were in court yesterday (Thursday) for a hearing in the US Federal District Court to determine whether a temporary restraining order stopping the local dock strike will become a permanent injunction against the walkout.

As the leaders were entering the court yesterday they were served with new summons to appear in court today (Friday) to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for earlier defying federal Judge R. Miller's back-to-work order issued Saturday.

• • •

In yesterday's hearing State's Attorney Charles Slaughter sought to prove that the strike by the local ILA was within the unfair labor practices act and that the action was a secondary boycott in support of the New York striking longshoremen.

He said all efforts by the local Steamship Trade As-

PRO forms to protect abortion laws

Abortion has been gaining in general acceptance since the 1968 Maryland abortion reform law, but "the minority opposed to abortion has become more vocal," stated Stewart Brown, steering committee member of the newly formed Personal Rights Organization.

PRO was organized to prevent a vocal group from successfully lobbying for a revision of state abortion reform laws and, according to Dr. Irvin Cuhner, professor at Johns Hopkins School of Medicine, to discern why 2300 women left Maryland for abortion during a year's time.

Mrs. Charlton Campbell, chairman of PRO and on the Board of Directors of Planned Parenthood, remarked that PRO is not a referral nor a counselling service for those seeking abortions.

Cold jail cells force transfer of 29 youths

Twenty-nine juvenile detainees housed in the Baltimore City Jail will be transfered from the Juvenile Detention Center today at the request of Juvenile Court Judge Robert I. Hammerman.

Judge Hammerman says he ordered the removal of the youths on Wednesday after he made an unannounced visit there and found youths huddled under blankets to escape the cold in their cells where broken window panes had not been replaced.

According to Judge Hammerman, the action was necessary because of "repeated procrastination" of prison officials who had failed to repair 58 broken windows in the J-East section where the juveniles were housed.

The jurist contended there is no justification for the reported cruel conditions, including cell temperatures of "50-60 degrees" and cold meals which were imposed upon the youths awaiting trial and sentencing.

Judge Hammerman received a memorandum from Robert S. Bagley, Regional Supervisor of the Department of Juvenile Services of Baltimore City which stated, "In no uncertain terms it is cold in the Jail."

Mr. Bagley also asserted, "The complaints of cold food are valid. The present conditions in the Jail are intolerable and bordering on the inhuman."

Judge Hammerman simply stated, "I can no longer allow the use of this facility for juveniles."

Under state law, juvenile court judges are responsible for detention centers.

Under the recommendation made by the Department of Juvenile Services, the Jail had been used too as a detention center after a court decision raised the age of juveniles from 16 to 18 and overloaded existing state facilities.

Last August, Judge Hammerman after a previous unannounced visit to the Jail, made specific recom-

Black doctors met with United Fund

By SCOTT PONEMORE

"The meeting went along very beautifully," declared Dr. Eugene D. Byrd, Sr., chairman of the Maryland Community Health Council, in reference to the first session, Wednesday, between the Health Council and members of United Fund's Board of Directors.

The meeting was called the day after the Maryland Commission on Human Relations issued its report: "Racial Discrimination in United Fund of Central Maryland and Commerce and Industry Combined Health Appeal Agencies."

Dr. Byrd remarked the United Fund members "unanimously agreed that a new direction is necessary."

"Hopefully, Merce Smith (Fund president) is going to get his Board to agree in toto to the next step, for a working committee of his people and the Health Council to work out the details of what is to be accomplished."

• • •

The Commission's report was released with only a few days remaining in the United Funds lagging over $4 million behind in its campaign to collect $13 million.

• •

The report thoroughly substantiates the contention of the Council, composed primarily of black professionals, who filed the complaint Jan. 12.

Dr. Byrd expressed to the AFRO his disappointment on the tardiness of the report which the Council hoped to have been issued in June or July so as not to affect the Fund's solicitation drive.

"The Community Health Council never said not to give to the Fund," Dr.

College accepts Little Melvin but he has no way to get there

ROY WILKINS, National Executive Director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), will be guest speaker at the Annual Freedom Festival Banquet on Sunday, Nov. 28, at 5 p.m. at the Alcazar. Subscriptions are $10 each.

By ELIZABETH M. OLIVER

Melvin (Little Melvin) Williams, now 30 years of age, began serving a 12-year narcotics sentence in 1969.

One of the most prominent of Avenue figures prior to then, "Little Melvin" was widely known throughout the East Coast but adverse reports were mostly mythical since he had no previous convictions.

Since confinement to prison, according to records assembled by Corrections Commissioner James Jordan's files, he has been a model inmate.

Recently, "Little Melvin" completed high school requirements and received a diploma.

However, his efforts to enter college have been thwarted due to lack of facilities to transport him back and forth to Howard County Community College.

• • •

"Little Melvin" is now confined on minimum security at a camp system in Howard County.

According to records, his mother paid the $300 tuition for college colrses "Little Melvin" hoped would lead to an AB degree.

He has spent two years in maximum and medium security and is within 10 months of a parole hearing.

Considered exceedingly bright, "Little Melvin" made the highest score on the high school equivalency test and Mrs. Joan Lawson, of the State Department of Education and an administrator of the high school equivalency test, was instrumental in getting him accepted at the Howard County College.

Two academic teachers and two correctional officers vouched he was an excellent student and ideal inmate worthy of a chance.

EASTERN HIGH STUDENT, Valerie Maria Johnson, has been missing from her home since Oct. 24. Her mother, Mrs. Madeline Johnson and father are pleading, "Please come home. We will try to work something out. Don't be afraid to come home. If you can not, please call us." Anyone able to help the grieving family locate their daughter call 433-3483 or notify Missing Persons of the Police Department.

Dr. Patterson says Woodbourne, Pimlico, are 'well in hand'

A teenagers' dispute stemming from incidents on a school bus between 2:30 and 4:00 Wednesday afternoon at Woodbourne Junior High School left a nearby supermarket window broken and seven students arrested.

Henry Wolpert, principal of the school, located at 900 Woodbourne Ave., noted the students had been dismissed from the building by floors.

Police report a crowd of 500-1,000 students converged on an adjacent shopping complex after kicking and pushing on a school bus delayed students enroute from the area.

Several shots were fired near the schools. Police reports show seven students were taken into custody.

Commenting on the incident, Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Roland N. Patterson said:

• • •

"I think at this time we can safely say that we have the problem at the Woodbourne Junior High School well in hand. I have spent much of the morning conferring with many of those who are close to the situation in an attempt to develop a sound approach to reducing any remaining tensions in the school."

He continued, "We have increased the security provided the school and have personnel from the department on the scene, in an effort to assist the principal in his efforts."

In an incident at Pimlico Junior High, 14-year-old Tony Lee Potts, was treated for contusions at Sinai Hospital after being attacked by three other boys.

Referring to the matter, Dr. Patterson said, "Relative to the Pimlico situation this was an isolated incident and does not reflect the true atmosphere of cooperation existing in the school.

"Carroll Wagner, principal of the school," continued, the superintendent, "along with his assistants and staff have been outstanding in the manner in which they have handled the total program for the school year."

Youth, 17, murdered at weekend party

Funeral services were held for Charles Edward Skipwith, 17, noon Wednesday in the Charles Hughes Funeral Home chapel at Gilmor and Hollins Sts. He is buried in the Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va.

The youth, slain at a party Nov. 5, attended Booker T. Washington Junior High School and was a member of the school's football and basketball teams.

After the tragedy, police reported they were unable to locate the mother for more information and all they knew was that she did go to the hospital.

However, the mother is now identified as Mrs. Bernice Parker of the 1700 block McKean Ave.

Charles Skipwith whose address was given as the 2100 block of Division St., was shot to death while attending a dance given by a
