Cab firm president sues for $1.1 million; charges 3 policemen beat him

WASHINGTON

The president of a District cab company and his wife recently filed suit against the District and three policemen for $1.1 million damages. The suit stemming from an alleged beating administered by the policemen in December, 1970.

Frederick J. McCoy, president of the Crusader Cab Co., 601 Rhode Island Ave. NW, charged the District with "negligently (failing) in its duty to train and instruct the defendents (Samuel) Hall, (Louis) Widawski and R. (Taylor) in the proper performance of their duties as police officers".

McCoy, who lives at 6229 Piney Branch Road, NW, also charged the city with unlawfully and unjustly assaulting him, and with the resulting "inability to pursue his occupation, financial loss and humiliation, causing him pain and distress and subsequent medical service and treatment."

In connection with these two counts, McCoy is asking for $500,000 in compensatory damages and $500,000 in punitive damages.

In addition, McCoy's wife, Mary, asked for $100,000, citing alleged loss of her husband's "consort, society, companionship, affection and support" and damages to her own nervous system.

One of the policemen, Hall, was found guilty of mistreating a handcuffed prisoner by a police trial board in September.

McCoy felt that the beating stemmed from an incident that occurred in November, 1970. He said that his cabbies often park for a few minutes in an area across the street from his office over which a sign say "No Parking Anytime."

They did this one Saturday, and a policeman came along to ticket the cabs plus some private cars parked there.

Just before the policeman got to the cabs, McCoy said he called a cabbie and told him to go out and move his car before the officer put a ticket on it.

When the cabbie arrived at his car, the policeman handed the ticket to him. According to McCoy, the cabbie let the ticket fall to the ground and refused to pick it up. The officer got ready to arrest him charge for not picking up the ticket.

By that time a number of cabbies had come out of the office and crowded around the policeman and cabbie. McCoy came out and asked the patrolman what was going on, to which the latter answered "none of your d— business."

Seeing all the cabbies around, the patrolman radioed for help and several squad cars pulled up. Some of the just arrived policemen knew McCoy and asked him what was going on. Told about the attempted to arrest for not picking up the ticket, these patrolmen told the other officer to let the cabbie go.

McCoy claims that this humiliated the officer and that he warned him (McCoy) that he would "get him" because of this.

About a month later, McCoy says, he pulled into an illegal parking space in order to allow a tow truck to pull out. McCoy was talking to a mechanic when a friend hollered to him that police were about to ticket his car.

McCoy ran to his car in hopes of pulling it out of the illegal zone. One of the officers hit him with a football block and went ahead ticketing his car. He asked for a break, admitting to the officer that he was in the wrong.

The officer allegedly answered "if you were a black mouth, I will lock you up for disorderly conduct." The cab president then left the scene and returned to his office.

The three policemen burst in some three minutes later, McCoy said, handcuffing him and putting a cocked bun to his ear. One of the officeds "frisked him and came across a bulge at his waistline (It was the gun McCoy says he keeps on the premises for protection).

Senate votes $142 million for renewed sickle cell fight

The Senate passed unanimously a bill authorizing a three-year $142 million campaign to fight sickle cell anemia, a deadly blood disease believed to affect at least 2.5 million black Americans.

The measure, introduced only two months ago, was approved on an 81 to 0 roll call vote and sent to the House, which is considering a similar bill. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate's health subcommittee which handled the legislation, said he was sure the House would take "early action."

Though President Nixon in his health message earlier this year said sickle cell disease was second only to cancer in his program of health priorities, the administration opposed the bill on grounds sufficient action was already under way.

Spending would be boosted to $6 million in this fiscal year, a five-fold increase. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said even this jump was "inexcusable" and endorsed the bill's authorization levels of $33 million in fiscal 1973, $49 million in fiscal 1974 and $60 million in fiscal 1975.

The bulk of the money—about $100 million over the life of the program—would go to support clinics where the black community would go for tests to determine if they have the disease or carry the genetic trait that could be passed on to their children.

About 2.5 million black Americans carry the sickle cell trait and 50,000 more suffer from the disease. Those who are born with the affliction—about one of every 500 black babies—die of it before they reach 40, about half of them before their 20th birthday.

Testimony before Kennedy's subcommittee showed far more is being spent on diseases that strike primarily white victims — such as cystic fibrosis—than on sickle cell anemia.

The disease is named for the peculiar shape into which it distorts red blood cells. The trait developed many centuries ago in Africa as a defense against certain types of malaria. (UPI)

Watts tells how law enforcement can succeed

Rodney Watts, assistant state's attorney urged citizens'—participation in law enforcement as the key to crime reduction.

Speaking at the Freedom House neighborhood council last Tuesday night, Mr. Watts, son of Judge Robert B. Watts, declared that law enforcement can only succeed if there is equal cooperation of the community, the police and the courts.

"When you see someone suspicious in your neighborhood, get the license number of the car or a description of the person and call the police.

A large number of crimes can be prevented if neighborhood residents are alert and demand and get the help they are entitled to from the police department," said Mr. Watts.

Mr. Watts who has successfully prosecuted some of the major cases in the state's attorney's office, stated "The cooperation of citizens as witnesses in preliminary hearings and at the trials as witnesses to testify for the state is the most effective way in which citizens can ensure efficient law enforcement."

John Peters, Chairman of the Freedom House Neighborhood Council, commended the STOP Squad of the Police Department for their highly efficient cooperation with neighborhood leaders at Freedom House in closing up disorderly Houses, and reducing the sale of narcotics on street corners in inner city neighborhoods.

Dr. Lilly M. Jackson, advisor, thanked the neighborhood leaders for their courage and faithfulness in working together with the police department in 1971 in making their neighborhoods safer places for the citizens to live.

All is quiet as ILA men resume work

All is quiet on the water front. The very few hands that have been hired by shippers after the 56-day strike are going about their business peacefully.

About one-third of the work-force of 2,500 longshoremen has been engaged following a U.S. District Court order asking the workers to return to work.

At a hearing last week before District Court Judge Herbert F. Murray, the longshoremen were ordered back to work for 80 days in accordance to the "cool-off" period sought by President Richard Nixon.

The 80-day "cool-off" period expires on February 15.

"But after that we hope to work," William Haile, International Longshoremen Association vice-president told the AFRO yesterday.

He stated that within the period the association will sign the necessary contract with shippers.

The ILA men went on strike because, according to them, their contract had expired. They successfully defended a case against them by shippers that their strike was in sympathy and support to the striking ILA men in New York who are seeking more money and other conditions of service.

Mr. Haile said by next week most of the ships may be in. This will need the employment of all hands. Only about 35 of the 70 gangs at the waterfront are in operation.

15,000 hear Roberta Flack, new soul queen

The new queen of the new type of soul music arrived here Sunday at the Civic Center in the person of Miss Roberta Flack.

The hazz star drew nearly 15,000 persons at the 8 p.m. performance.

Undoubtedly, in the eyes of her many fans, Miss Flack has replaced the old Queen of Soul, Aretha Franklin, who has also been hailed by many for her extraordinary talent.

Miss Flack however, did not surprise her fans with the beautiful, soft and soulful style that she uses. If they attended or even heard of the performance she gave during her concert here last year, then they knew what to expect.

Also appearing on the show with Miss Flack were: Bill Withers, who sings "Grandma's Hands" and the La Belles, a female vocal group who sang a melody of hit tunes.
