Local section of NCNW holds first Founder's Day

The Greater Baltimore Section of the National Council of Negro Women observed its first Founder's Day with luncheon in the Baltimore Sheraton Inn, Saturday afternoon.

Speaker was Mrs. Dorelhea Tolson, first national vice president of the Council.

Mrs. Tolson told the group that black women and their organizations have a tremendous responsibility and opportunity to offer leadership and support to the struggle of racial groups to attain improved cultural status in America. Unless this support is forthcoming, the speaker said, middle class black Americans may find themselves on the receiving end of the attack.

Mrs. Tolson was introduced by Mrs. Shirley W. Smith, who presided at the luncheon meeting. Mrs. Smith urged the audience to accept the challenge issued by Mrs. Tolson, to offer the needed leadership to keep the forces of unity, commitment and self reliance alive, and to reach out hands to all women who struggle forward, regardless of race.

She told her hearers to stand firmly, as did our forebrears, who faced the lashing of slavery and the disruption of reconstruction. If this is done, said Mrs. Smith "We shall find a way to do for our day what they did for their day."

Program participants also included Mrs. Elizabeth C. Demby, president of the Baltimore Section; Mrs. Grace Hunt, who brought greetings from the Baltimore YWCA; and Mrs. Beryl W. Williams, who brought greetings from Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

Music was by Robert Gorham, pianist.

In addition to Mrs. Demby, officers of the Section are:

Mrs. Marion J. Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. Lois J. Carter, second vice president; Miss Cynthia Bell, third vice president; Mrs. Bernice S. White, recording secretary; Miss Margaret Gassaway, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Minnie B. Cesar, treasurer; Mrs. Emma D. Dudley, chaplain; Mrs. Salome Puller, parliamentarian; and Mrs. Anna M. Stokes, historian.

The luncheon was arranged by a committee which included Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Alice W. H. Hill, Mrs. Dorothy Sanders and Mrs. Anna M. Stokes.

Aged citizens to hold meeting Dec. 12

Baltimore senior citizens will be among the first in the country to receive a direct report from the White House Conference on Aging.

They are invited to a public meeting in the Memorial Building next Sunday, Dec. 12 at 2:00 p.m.

Ten Maryland delegates to the conference were from Baltimore. The City Commission on Aging is sponsoring the public meeting so that they may tell Baltimore's elderly about the recommendations made in the sections to which they were assigned.

According to Franklyn C. Hochreiter, Executive Secretary of the Baltimore City Commission on Aging, "the future welfare of all our senior citizens, in all aspects of their lives, will depend largely on local implementation of Conference proposals.

"This will require the imagination, cooperation, and know-how of community leaders and senior citizens themselves."

The Commission believes that planning and implementation must be rooted in an informed public. The Dec. 12 meeting is seen as the first step in a local "action" program for the seventies.

Mr. Hochreiter noted that one of the themes of the White House Conference was the importance of local programs in which public and private agencies and the elderly were deeply involved.

He hoped Baltimore would take national leadership in this recommendation.

West praises rural development agency

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Gov. John C. West last week praised the work of the stand TALL Commission in working to combat the problems of rural South Carolina.

In an address to the South Carolina Association of Electric Cooperatives, which is managing the creation of the commission throughout the state, West said he was "frankly enthusiastic" about the results in the past few months.

The governor noted that in the past government attacked the problems created by population shifts rather than the cause of migration from rural to urban areas.

"It became quite clear that while we may have improved the urban situation somewhat, we had dealt rather ineffectively — if at all—with be root causes, which lay in the rural sections," said West.

West noted the work of the State Housing Authority which was created by the 1971 General Assembly to work towards upgrading living conditions in the state. But he said the authority will be hampered in its efforts without the proper local support.

"This is where the Stand Tall Commission comes in," he said "Through your organization structures at the local level, you can bridge the gap between people and their government.

You can gather information, interpret programs to the people, and actually serve as the vehicle by which people are brought into contact with resources for their assistance."

The governor said the commission, which is made up of local people working to solve their local problems, can also play a vital role in working with the newly-organized office of Human Resources which is working to relieve the problems of housing, health care, nutrition and other related ills in 10 counties in the lower part of the state.

"I am frankly enthusiastic about the type of resources we have been able to develop just within the past few months to focus new attention on the human problems of our state," said West.

He added, "It is my belief that this partnership is really beginning to work effectively, and I look forward to the opportunity to help it grow and better serve the people in the immediate years ahead."

The first Stand Tall Commission was created in March about a year and a half ago.

Nixon Blames India

The Nixon Administration believes that India not only did not want a peaceful settlement of the East Pakistan turmoil, but may have worked to sabotage it when some diplomatic progress had been made.

High officials at the Write House and State Department said that they naturally did not condone the harsh repressive measures taken by President Agha Mohammad Yahiya Khan of Pakistan, beginning in March, to suppress an autonomous movement in EastPakistan, which is separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory from the larger part of Pakistan.

You're sitting West. Note that you have a very safe lead in the club Queen. This hand turned up at a recent duplicate session. Pinkie Daniels and Sam Dendy were defending the hand with Sam on lead.

I was South, partner was Gwendolyn Richardson.

Dendy figured that this was a distributional slam so he rejected the "safe" lead and led a trump thinking to cut down dummy's ruffing power. If he makes the normal lead, I make six rolling.

At rubber bride Sam and Pinkie would have gotten only fifty points. Had Gwen and I scored the slam we'd have gotten bunches of points just because we were lucky enough to pick up the big hand.

At duplicate, most of the pairs were in six making.

So the worst that could have happened to Sam and Pinkie was a par board, neither winning nor losing, but by coming up with the killing lead he and Pinkie got top on the board.

Check it out. If you can make six spades with a trump lead, you need to be out at the duplicate sessions teaching us respect for the game.

Coming up: Grade B Open Pair Game, January 15, 1972, Mohawk Inn, 1701 Russell St., registration, 12:30, game time; 1 p.m.
