Frozen foods cost more, save time

This is the time of the year when easy or quickly prepared nourishing meals are desired by homemakers who are finding seasonal activities uses a lot of extra time.

Careful food shopping is necessary to hold food costs in check. Shoppers should take advantage of weekend or early week specials, particularly on meats, poultry and fish as these are the most frequently advertised protein foods. This group of foods makes up about one-third of the average families weekly food bill. It is possible to plan meals with much variety by purchasing only featured sale cuts.

These chilly days fragrant stews, pot roasts with vegetables, steaming bowls of hot soups, piping hot casseroles and meat loaves cannot be beat for appetite appeal and economy.

With the exception of pot roast all these main dishes can be prepared within one hour. If you use a pressure saucepan even the pot roast can be cooked in less than one hour.

Frozen convenience foods offer menu variety plus short preparation time but usually cost more than the same main dish or entree prepared from scratch. Frozen main dish like meat slices in gravy and fried chicken cost more than home prepared.

Some of the foreign dishes do require many ingredients so they may cost less than homemade. Freezer space is necessary to store these items properly. Plan ahead, cook ahead and freeze your own dish or TV dinner until it is ready for use.

Canned foods are a convenience item when you consider they need only to be heated and served. Check grades and compare costs of canned foods. Fancy packs are not needed if the tomatoes or vegetables are to be used in soups or stews.

Produce counters are stocked with vetables from southern and western growing areas. On the list of best buys are cabbage, carrots, yellow onions, and winter squash.

Maryland cooking greens and sweet potatoes are also good buys. Acorn or winter squash makes an excellent main dish. The seed cavity of the squash half may be filled with sausage patties or meat loaf mixtures and baked. The squash may be par-boiled until almost tender then put into the oven to finish cooking after the center cavity has been filled.

Prices for green peppers have decreased somewhat making this flavoring vegetable within reasonable price.

Fruits on the best buy list are apples, Red Grapes, cranberries and tangelos and tangerines. Cranberry supplies drop sharply after December so make full use of this fruit in the coming weeks. You can freeze cranberries for later use by placing the film bag of berries, just as purchased, in the freezer. Tangelos are a cross between a grapefruit and a tangerine. This citrus has become more popular and production increases every year.

December is peak month for tangerines. This year's crop is smaller than last year so expect prices to be higher especially on large tangerines. Select citrus heavy for its size to insure juiceness. The skins of tangerines are naturally puffy but a very light and very loose skin may indicate poor quality.

Cheesy vegetables are made with one can (16 oz.) cut green beans, one can (12 oz.) whole kernel corn, one tablespoon melted butter or margarine, and one half cup grated sharp cheddar cheese.

Mix drained beans and corn. Put at one end of platter. Dribble with melted butter and sprinkle cheese over top.

Avocado chunks dipped in a hot sauce made with A.1.®, the seasoning for the party season.

AVOCADO IN PARADISE

1 large avocado
2 tbsp. A.1. Sauce
2 tbsp. Regina® Wine Vinegar
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. sugar
2 tbsp. catsup

Peel and seed avocado; cut into thin slices about 1" long (coat lightly with lemon juice to prevent discoloration if preparing ahead of time). In a saucepan, heat together the remaining ingredients. When butter has melted and sugar dissolved, the sauce is ready for dipping. Pour hot sauce in bowl for dipping and serve avocado slices in small bowl with toothpicks.
