Mrs. Emery is new chief at Walbrook

As a result of the promotion of Dr. Joel A. Carrington of Walbrook Senior High School to the position of Assistant Superintendent for Secondary Education, the newly-opened spacious campus will have an acting principal in the person of Mrs. Anne M. Emery. She had previously served as assistant principal.

* * *

Mrs. Emery, 44, and mother of three sons, first came to Baltimore in 1960 from New Orleans where see had served as the head of the science department at a senior high school.

For 11 years she served as head of the department of Science at Lemmel Junior High School. She acted as principal of the Lemmel Summer School for three years.

Before being assigned to Walbrook in July, 1971 as assistant principal, she was special assistant at Rock Glen Junior High. Her former duties at Walbrook were co-ordinating the curriculum and initiating a new program in the Classics.

Speaking of the school, she said, "Walbrook is the most flexible of schools built. There is an outdoor court for the students. We have the most advanced facilities to fully develop our students in the communications media. We are looking forward to the installation of our electronics laboratory and other services."

Describing the students, she emphasized strongly, "The students at Walbrook are fine students. Ninety-five per cent of them are serious students. This is shown by their conduct through the building."

Mrs. Emery, in talking with the AFRO this week, said "Baltimore can be proud of Walbrook and its students. They volunteer their time. There were occasions when the school opened in July that they stayed until 10 p.m. in helping out. And, the faculty has devoted a tremendous amount of time."

She concluded, "If you come over here you can really feel that this school is the turning point in the lives of our students."

Mrs. Emery received the bachelor of science degree in Installation Management and Hospital Dietetics from Tuskegee Institute. She devoted a year in an internship program at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston.

She was awarded another bachelor's degree in Education and Administration from Alabama State College. Morgan State College conferred the master of science degree. She has done advanced work in Administration at Loyola College and has received a certificate in Advanced studies in science from the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn.

In private life the new principal is the wife of Vallent L. Emery, a teacher in the city system.

Her children are Vallent Jr., 22, a senior at Morgan State; Gregory, 21, a senior at Loyola, and Travis, 16, a student at Gilman.

The family resides in the 3900 block Grantley Rd. (PFE).

CCB starts new job-training program Jan. 5

Dr. Harry Bard, president of the Community College of Baltimore, announced Thursday in Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro's office a $299,940 federal grant to CCB to initiate an experimental on-the-job training program for unskilled Baltimoreans.

The program will start Jan 5 with 140 men and 10 women entering 6 weeks classroom training and 9 weeks on-the-job training for jobs in the construction industry: bricklaying, cement masonry, painting, roofing, plastering, inspecting houses, and clerical work.

Miss Laverne Wallace, project counselor, commented that 15 construction companies are commited to hiring program graduates.

Dr. Bard remarked this program differs from past job-training programs in that: 1) the first program "intimately" connected with CCB; 2) it includes general education training in mathematics and English as well skill training; and 3) contractors can be depended upon to provide jobs.

Guiding the project are Milton Dugger, CCB dean of Community Services; Grover McCrea, project director; Elias Dorsey, training coordinator; and Miss Wallace.

The object of the project, Dorsey stated, is to have participants reach apprenticeship standards.

The program will also include classes for those already working in construction trades but are seeking to upgrade themselves.

President Bard has thanked Mayor D'Alesandro, Commissioner Robert Embry of Housing and Community Development, and "especially Mr. Clarence Logan from Secretary Romney's office" (George Romney of the federal department of Health, Education and Welfare).

NEW APPOINTEE — John A. Buggs, 56, a sociologist, was nominated this week by President Nixon as staff director of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission. A native of Brunswick, Ga., Buggs joined the commission in February as deputy director and succeeds Howard Glickstein who gave up the $36,000 a year top administrative post in August.

OEO grants announced

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — A grant of $207,661 to provide funding of Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) programs in four South Carolina counties was announced Monday by Rep. Mendel Davis, D-S.C.

The grant will be used in Hampton, Bamberg, Barnwell and Allendale counties for neighborhood services, family planning and emergency food and medical services.

TALLAHASSEEE, Fla. — Two Florida A and M University physics professors have received grants totaling $19,565 from the Research Corporation to pursue research in areas where both say "there are more questions than answers." Dr. George Vourvopoulous, associate professor of physics, received a grant of $12,500 to research "multi-nucleon transfer reactions," and Dr. Slade L. Carr, Jr., received a grant of $7,065 to study "magnetic order in actinides."

dire need of food.

Case 324: I have a grandson who is a month old who needs diapers and baby clothes. I also have four children of my own who are in need of winter clothing and food. Anything you are able to give will be appreciated.

Case 325: I hope you will find room in your list to help my family. I have three children and am on welfare. Of course, after paying living expenses, there is nothing left for extras. The children are in need of food and clothing. May God bless you and everything you are trying to do for those like us.

Case 326: I am very sick and didn't have anything to eat on Thanksgiving Day. Will you please send me a basket of food.

Case 327: I am asking for help for my six children. My husband is dead. My cousin took sick in July and I am taking care of her five children, too. It's hard Mrs. Santa trying to rear 11 youngsters. There are seven girls and four boys. They are ALL in need of clothing, shoes and food. Anything you are able to give will be a big help. We all live in a basement apartment.

Case 328: We would appreciate a basket of food, clothing and anything else you are able to provide us with. I am a mother of three, two boys and a girl.

Case 329: Will you please bring my three kids something for Christmas. They are in need of clothing.

Case 330: I have been a widow for 5 years and am paralyzed on one side. I have two children who need food and clothing. Please don't forget us this year.

Case 331: My husband recently underwent surgery and is unable to work at this time. We have three small children, 5, 4, and 9 months. They are in need of clothing. We all need food.

Case 332: Please make Christmas a happy one for my four kids, by sending them a basket of food.

Case 333: I suffer with high blood pressure and a bad heart. I am a widow and would appreciate a basket of food.

Case 334: I can't send my three children to school because they have no winter clothing. Will you please help us by seeing that we get some food, too.

Case 335: This year I ran into a little bad luck. My husband and I separated. We have four children who will not have dinner on the table for Christmas. Will you please put us on your list for a basket of food.

* * *

Case 336: My family is one that needs help. I have five children, four in school and a nine-month-old baby. They are in need of clothing and food. Please help us.

* * *

Case 337: It's hard explaining to seven children they may not have anything to eat on Christmas Day. It's even harder knowing there will be no tree or toys under that tree. My husband is sick and we receive a small check from welfare, but it's only enough to pay bills. Won't you do what you can.

* * *

Case 338: My mother just came out of the hospital. There are four children. We need food, clothing and toys.

* * *

Case 339: I am writing this letter for my two children and myself. I am on welfare and don't have a cent left after paying bills and buying oil. I wear a size 52 and don't own a winter coat. The children are also in need of clothing and food. We are one family that's really in need.

Case 340: I'm a mother of four children. I receive a small check from welfare and by the time I pay the bills there's nothing left for anything else. Anything you can help us with, maybe a basket of food, clothing or toys willbe most appreciated.

Planning of Soul City complete; McKissick waits word from D.C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — All that is left now is word from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, providing guarantees of financing, and Floyd McKissick will go ahead with building his "Soul City."

Overall planning for the city, envisioned for a corner of rural Warren County, have been completed by Gantt-Huberman Associates, an architecture firm owned by Harvey Gantt, 28, and Jeffrey Huberman, 29.

Gantt made national headlines nine years ago when he broke the color barrier in South Carolina education by winning a court decision ordering his admittance to formerly all-white Clemson University. Huberman is white.

Following completion of the plans for Soul City, the firm moved to Charlotte and set up offices at Johnston Building. They already have two prospective jobs. One is a shopping center for a group of black businessmen planning to build in Durham.

The other depends on the outcome of McKissick's dealing with Washington. The firm has been named the design consultant of Soul City.

Gantt and Huberman are renewing an association begun a few years ago when both were fresh out of architecture school doing their apprenticeship with A.G. Odell Associates in Charlotte.

While Huberman stayed on in the city, winning a design award from the American Institute of Architects for the Burlington Municipal Building, Gantt went on to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and did a two-year master's program in city planning.

Out of MIT, Gantt went to work with McKissick's Soul City enterprise as planning director of the non-profit Warren Regional Planning Corp.

He supervised a staff of about a dozen architects, planners and economists who looked at 5,000 acres of former ranch land and figured out how to turn it into a new town of 50,000 people.

Ingredients for the new city include a degional water plan, and industrial park along railroad tracks, a fairground for a possible Afro-American exposition, a main street tying the downtown office-apartment-major shopping area to an educational park designed to offer schooling to all students over 12 years old.

The planners say Soul City is not designed as an all-black town. It simply has black developers and a name that is associated with the culture of American blacks. The town will be truly open," he said.

March to Raleigh halted in Greenville

GREENVILLE, N.C. — Did civil rights activists shift the objectives of their marches here last week.

The demonstrations had been billed as the beginning of a march to Raleigh to protest the slaying of a laborer by a highway patrolman.

Local officials had warned civil rights leaders they needed a permit to march to the city limits however, and organizers of the campaign refused to apply.

At least 143 marchers were arrested during the week.

Local officials, including the mayor, have said they believed the leaders of the movement never intended to march to Raleigh, but intended all along to challenge the local ordinance.

Golden Frinks, SCLC state field secretary, has refused to apply for a permit, maintaining the ordinance is unconstitutional.

Earlier in the week, in Raleigh, the State Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission urged state and federal officials to investigate charges of police brutality and mistreatment during months of demonstrations in Pitt County.

The committee warned in a report, "There is serious racial polarization in the Greenville area of which much of the white community is unaware."

More than 900 arrests have been made in Pitt County in demonstrations since a laborer being placed under arrest on a public drunk charge was shot and killed by a highway patrolman on Aug. 6.

The patrolman maintained he fired in self defense, and he was cleared of charges by a coroner's jury. Blacks maintain it was a case of police brutality.
