the guests had responded realizing that their garb for the evening would not be for hiding at seats or under tables. The stand-up party was a feast for the eyes.

Mrs. George Russell was stunning in a floor-length red wool gown with high-neck-long sleeve bodice, and the lower part of the skirt and midriff a deep border of scroll in black. Mrs. Clarence Monroe chose a long white wool gown, the Mandarin collar and cuffs of the long sleeves in silver embroidery. Chic Mrs. Bill Rutherford of Washington wore a multi-colored silk print maternity gown in pinks and reds. Dr. Rutherford is the new addition to the office of Dr. Herbert Trader, here. Mrs. Martin Rodney wore pink, her slim satin gown topped with a full length chiffon coat embroidered all over with jewels. Mrs. Charles Hicks of Frederick wore a midi-length frock of gold and black metallic cloth, and Mrs. Eugene Byrd was in one of the smart new taffetas, in blues and deep reds, designed with a skimy bodice which featured a reversible collar and a bouffant gathered floor-length skirt.

One of the most impressive gowns was an import chosen by Mrs. Sherlock Grinage, in magnificent Indian colors and of woven metalic threads. Slit to there at the side, she added hip-high black satin boots. Mrs. Archie Robinson's gown was in the new bare-shoulder mode, of white satin with shoe-string straps of rhinestones, and a deep band of mink at skirt bottom. Mrs. William Harris selected a pants ensemble in black, designed with a long tunic and silver embellished. Mrs. Howard Murphy wore an all black sequin frock, with a beautiful oval neckline and a mid-calf flip skirt. Mrs. William Garner was in a salmon pants ensemble and Mrs. Howard Collins glittered in a pants ensemble in patterned pinks of a Chinese influence.

This could go on like Tennyson's brook . but then the guests were merely following in the footsteps of their hostesses. Mrs. Chissell was in blue and silver brocade, her pants ensemble topped by coat of the same material. Mrs. Daniels chose a really great jump in all black sequins. Mrs. LaForest's gown was all white silk crepe, with a sleeve, yoke and lower front skirt motif in popcorn wool . . and worn opened to waistline approach.

Mrs. Pinderhughes chose a red velvet pants ensemble and Mrs. Stokes a blue and silver lace short skirted frock. Mrs. Trader's gown was white, midi-length, following caftan mood and embroidered is Schiffi at skirt bottom, on the sleeves at the neck line and down the front. Mrs. Wilson was in a white, floor-length dinner suit, underpinned with a beaded shell and Mrs. Wright, a beautiful cut velvet gown in mosiac colors, high necked, long sleeved and with a ruffle at the bottom.

Around the shank of the evening guests gathered about the tree to sing carols to the accompaniment of the beautiful organ music by Edward C. Myers. He's on the faculty of School No. 30, and is the son of Bea Myers. Each guest took home a piccolo of the bubbly stuff as a souvenir.

Guests at the party included:

Messrs. and Mesdames Collins, Richard Cummings, David Scott, Lester Richard Perkins, Howard Wallace, Raymond Carpenter, George Lottier, Roger Johnson, Sherlock Grinage, Charles Hicks, Walter Edmonds, Messrs. and Mesdames Miles Harrison, William Mumby, Malcolm Chamberlain, Howard Murphy, Marsden Rawlings, Wesley Stubbs, Clifton Gattis, Charles Hillen, Robert Diggs.

Messrs. and Mesdames George Russell, Melvin Calloman, Edward Williams, Royal Weaver, Charles Maiden, Laurence Moore;

Drs. and Mesdames Maurice Adams, John Chissell, Simon Carter, Ivan Higgins Charles R. Campbell, Clarence Monroe, Gilbert Banfield, Albert Burwell,

Drs. and Mesdames Eugene Byrd, William Garner, Edward McDaniels, Archie Robinson, William Rutherford, Martin Rodney, Benjamin Kimbers; Lt. Col. Mrs. William Harris, Mesdames Helen Odom, Ruth Jennifer, Lula Mackay; William Simmons and Armstead Jenkins.

The G.G.'s (club) might have labeled their elegant affair at the Playboy Club, Saturday, "A Party in Three acts."

They gathered guests at noon for a long, long cocktail hour, followed by a leisurely luncheon, and then moved on to another room for an afternoon at cards.

The club (Gussie's Girls) was organized near 30 years ago, and will you believe that this was the first party with guests they had hosted? Mrs. R. Garland (Augusta) Chissell founded the club. At the time she said that what she heeded about her (not discounting her contemporaries) were some lively young people, Mrs. Chissell, incidentally, is currently living in the House in the Pines, but is practically as lively as ever.

Catherine Adams, who served as chairman for the party, was ever so chic in a pants suit, white embroidery on white. Sallie Fletcher, a guest, wore some real eye-boggling boots with her pretty print frock. There were a lot of pants about, including those worn by Ellsworth Rhetta, a purple ensemble; the pale violet ensemble selected by Olivia Dixon; the black, white and red print affair chosen by Vivian Pendleton; and the pale green suit under the melon cape selected by Harriet Jones.

One of the prettiest frocks about was a white crepe, pleated all over and with a deep ruffle at the skirt bottom which Mary Bacote wore. Marian Johnson enlivened the scene in cheerful red, and Bertie West sparkled in pink, frosted with sequins. Phoebe Goff was in a mad, mad African print.

Lush big bottles of perfume were the prizes for high scorers, but each guest also received a vial of the sweet stuff.

Hostesses included Mesdames Catherine Adams, Phoebe Goff, Mattie Jackson, Mirlan Johnson, Harriet Jones, Lillian Murphy, Vivian Pendleton, Bertie West, and of course, Mrs. Chissell..

There were a number of out-of-towners here for the party.

A Dukye Woode, formerly of this town (she was a supervisor of music in city schools) and a founder of the club, came from Cincinnati, Ohio. Celeste Bailey from St. Albans, Long Island, N. Y.; Helen Rogers from Philadelphia, Blairyne Perry of Hampton, Va., Bertha M. Smith of Washington, Anita Thomas Turner of Annapolis, Md., Ruby G. Martin of Columbia, Md., Ida Ellis and Mae DaCosta of Washington and Ollie Mae Carroll of Salisbury, N. C., who is a graduate student at the University of Maryland were about LIBERIA BOUND — Miss Fay Hershaw will be making her seventh visit to Liberia, West Africa spending Christmas and the New Year season there. She will attend the Jan. 3 inauguration of President William R. Tolbert Jr. An Episcopalian since childhood, Miss Hershaw is looking forward to attending masses at the new Trinity Cathedral.

Other guests were:

Mesdames Mary Bacote, Anne Pinkney, Elouise Mayse, Benny Roey, Lillian Berry, Anne Payne, Gladys Derry, Agnese Browne, Nellie Waters, Marie Johnson, Mae Peck,

Mesdames Frances Murphy, Mildred Campbell, Flossie Wright, Louis Harmon, William Watts, Charles Fletcher, Joseph Walker, Frederick Adams, Albert LaForest, Talmadge Hill, J. Hiram Butler, Ruth Rosedom, Inecs Cole, Dorothy Fax, Romaine Jones, Hilda Higgins, Theresa Weaver, Mae Parrott, Robbie Chissell, Ellsworth Rhetta, Kay Carter, Jean Wilhelmina Garner, Lula Wilhelmina Garner, and Mackay, Cardella Wharton.

The annual Museum Ball this year offered something for everyone.

The art lovers had an opportunity preview exhibitions from the Crocker collection. A 12-piece band played conventional dance music in the Sculpture Court for those guests who couldn't quite meet the pace and beat of the three piece rock band. The amplified music of the hard rocks shook the walls of the May Wing as a series of projectors flashed slides of the masters on the quaking walls.

Mrs. E. Thomas Williams and Mrs. Lionel Desbordes, both members of the Women's Committee which sponsored the black-tie affair, said they imported Rudolph Standish, the "Omelet King," from New York. He and his assistant served omelets deliciously made with deft portions of chives, parsley, butter, bacon bits, shredded cheese, tobasco and, of course, eggs. An endless supply of champagne kept the 800 guests in a gay and holiday mood.

Among the guests seen in the wings and gallerys of the Baltimore Museum of Art were; Drs. and Mesdames T. Bradshaw Higgins, C. Arthur Lamb, Jr., Earl Clay, Lionel A. Desbordes, Theodore Patterson; Messrs. and Mesdames E. Thomas Williams, Jr., Warren Weaver, John H. Murphy, III, Ernest Johnson, James Lewis, and Dr. Irene Diggs.

On Tuesday evening, Morgan State College Charm Club and members of the Dormitory Council entertained visiting students from Fairmount Hill High School at a Charm Clinic.

It was a cooperative clinic on charm and good grooming, participated in by students from Fairmount High School and Morgan State College.

Students were received by members of the Charm Club when they arrived on campus to be their guests, for the evening. The students who are training to be cosmotologists and beauticians were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Rose Wallace Byrd.

The Charm Clinic was held in the Harriet Tubman Lounge of the Harriet Tubman House.

The young beauticians from Fairmount Hill High School demonstrated hair styling, eyebrow arching, and the proper use of daytime and evening makeup for the college woman. Many hair styles were demonstrated, and the participation was interestingly observed by a number of young men who became fascinated with the girls as they changed hair styles and makeup.

The models were selected from the audience of Morgan women. The visiting student beauticians who demonstrated the arts were Celeste Johnson who is a senior at Fairmount Hill, Lolita Johnson who is a senior, Dennise Hatten who is a member of the junior class, and Arleen Thompson also a member of the junior class.

Following the Charm Clinic, a reception was held for the visiting guests, and one of the attractions was the beautiful and delicious cake that was used for a centerpiece, which was decorated with flowers and fruit and a horn of plenty. It bore the inscription, "Welcome Visitors."

Mrs. Rose Wallace Byrd was introduced to the Morgan students by Dr. Thelma Bando, dean of women, who, in turn, introduced the visitors to the Morgan Community and a fun-filled informative evening.

Officers of Women's Dormitory Council are president, Miss Alberta Hughes; vice president, Miss Lilly Dorsey; secretary, Miss Patricia Burley; and treasurer, Miss Anna Jones.

Officers of the Charm Club are president, Miss Cheryl Thompson; vice president, Miss Arlene Bell; secretary, Miss Walda Gilbert; and treasurer, Miss Loretta Drummond.

Pot-Pourri: Dr. King V. Cheek, president of Morgan State College, and Mrs. Cheek expect their first child in May. Needless to say there is great joy in that ballwick!

Cloud Nine is crowded, this week, not only with the Moores, but with the Thompsons, down to the last aunt. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. (Jean L. Thompson) Moore, at Mercy Hospital, Tuesday, and he's the first boy to be born in the Thompson family for generations.

He is, of course, Charles Edward Moore, Jr. Weighed in at 7 lbs. and 5½ ounces. Mom is on the faculty of Harlem Park High School, and Dad is a director of recreation for the city of Baltimore. Grandparents are the Rev. Dockery Thompson, minister of the New Friendship Baptist Church, Turner Station and Mrs. Thompson, and Mrs. Bertha M. Moore. And as for those doting aunts, they include Miss Edna M. Moore, Mrs. Sylvia Coffey, Mrs. Jerri Briscoe, both of Washington; and Mrs. Pat Johnson, Miss Jackie Thompson and Mrs. Mary Thompson of this city.

Mrs. Albert LaForest flew to Dayton, Ohio, last week, to see her newest grandchild, an eight-pound, 12 ounces son born to Jackie and Bill Brown. Baby has been named Wade W., and is the Browns' third child. Their first, a girl, is seven-year-old Whitney; and the second, Billy, is five. Mr. Brown is a civilian architect with the Air Force at Wright-Patterson Airforce Base.

Some 80 members of Union Baptist Church, 45 of them members of the choir, will be going to New York City, where the latter will sing with the choir of the Saint James Presbyterian Church, directed by Dorothy Maynor.

Roy Ennis of CORE has been in Haiti, where he received the official red carpet treatment.

Bonita E. Williams, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Williams of this city, is a member of the Black Ensemble Choir at Lake Forest College. The Black Ensemble, a choral group of forty-five LFC Black students and faculty, was organized in 1969 by T. Maurice Tucker '72 "to provide an outlet and a showcase for the talents of Black students at LFC."

The Ensemble is heavily gospel-oriented, but has included songs such as the Black National Anthem "Lift Every Voice" and "Everyman Wants To Be Free" in its musical repertoire.

The choir has been sing-

THE LATEST THING IN NEW YORK.....

...GOT STARTED RIGHT HERE IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore has always been famous for many things. Now our town is famous for something good and black . . . "Afro American History Mystery" and "The Black Experience", the world's only black history games.

Last year we introduced our games in stores all over Baltimore. The response was so great that we were able to make them available to people all over the country.

Because of your support, now "Afro American History Mystery" and "The Black Experience" games are being enjoyed by black families from Flint, Michigan to San Diego, California, and from El Paso, Texas to New York City.

Both games highlight the contributions that black people have made to the history of America and the world. So, if you didn't buy one of our games for your family last year, now is the time to get it all together and know where you're coming from. There is a limited supply at stores near you.

THE WORLDS ONLY BLACK HISTORY GAMES ARE AVAILABLE IN BALTIMORE AT:

ing throughout the state of Illinois and plans to release an album during the early part of 1972, in an attempt to supplement a scholarship pool for Black on-campus students. The Black Ensemble is sponsored by the LFC Black Action and its membership includes soloists from the Soul Syndicate, a jazz ensemble and members of the Lake Forest College choir.

On December 19, at 7:30 p.m. Deltas will be gathering by candlelight to usher in the Christmas season. Voices from the three Baltimore Chapters will blend in carol singing in library of Western High School.

Sorors will bring toys for children from the Comprehensive Pediatrics Center on Redwood Street. Gifts will be brought, also, for patients at Henryton Hospital.

Other features of the meeting will be the awarding of prizes for the first cycle of the "Golden Girl" contest, and the induction of 11 new members. Fellowship and refreshments will follow.

Initiates presented for membership in the 50th Anniversary line of the Baltimore Alumnae graduate chapter are:

Mrs. Emily Allen, sponsored by Soror Martha Bradford; Miss Linda Dobson, Soror Lousonia Jefferson; Miss Fay Frieson, Soror Glenda Carter; Mrs. Bernadette Green, Soror Betty Fox; Mrs. Charlotte Pulley, Soror Elsie Robinson, her mother; Mrs. Marion Foster, by Soror Barbara Cadiv; Major Mary Wallace, U.S.A., Soror Hazel Parks; Mrs. Thelma Taylor, Soror Marie Frances, Mrs. Anne Reed, Soror Chapelle Armsleaf; Miss Venus Stanley, Soror Sue Miles; and Mrs. Jacalyn White, Soror Geraldine Blackwell.

Museum to hold young film maker contest

The Baltimore Museum of Art is sponsoring a festival for young film-makers to be held at the Museum May 6 and 7.

The festival, which is coordinated by William Bigel, the Museum's chief of programs and membership, will be open to students of elementary through college age in Baltimore City.

Bigel, who said deadline for entries in the festival is April 17, emphasized that each film should be primarily the work of students, although advice from parents or teachers is allowed.

Illustrious Women

MRS. EDNA DeCOURSEY JOHNSON

By PAULA M. BROOKS

Mrs. Edna DeCoursey Johnson, director of Consumer Services for the Urban League, works with people to help them manage their home economy better.

Mrs. Johnson, previously an instructor in the Baltimore City Public Schools, said of the program, "It's a self-help type program. we don't give a written schedule for people to follow, what we do is find out in what areas they are mismanaging their money, and show them a better way of shopping and pricing."

Mrs. Johnson estimates that within the past eight years that she has been with the Urban League she has consulted with between 20,000 and 25,000 clients.

She said that often consumer aides will go with a client while he or she is shopping, in order to evaluate the areas wherein the person could economize. 'Sometimes," she said, "we've had clients for as long as two and three years."

Mrs. Johnson explained that the cases she handles are not necessarily welfare cases, but they are usually from low-income groups. Cases are referred to Consumer Services from principals, nurses and the Department of Social Services.

"We try to encourage people to become involved in inner city credit unions, because in this way they are helping themselves," she explained.

Mrs. Johnson, who will be involved with 8,000 GS 1-4 employees at Social Security starting in Jan., 1972 and who will be lecturing on the importance of credit and money management problems facing the consumer, said that even though she is enjoying her work, she still misses the classroom.

When asked what tions she had for the Christmas shopper, Mrs. Johnson said, "Beware of the novel kind of door to door salesman who crops up just around Christmas and is gone the day after.

If something is wrong with the merchandise, he is nowhere to be found."

She also added, "I try to start parents toward laying away toys early so that the toys will be under the tree on Christmas and so that there will be no outstanding bills at the first of the year."

Just recently returning from a conference in Milwaukee sponsored by Community Nutrition Istitute Washington, D.C. Center for Consumer Affairs, Mrs. Johnson is active in community and civic organizations.

She was president of the National Association of Negro Business and Professinal women's Clubs, Inc., she is a member of Coppin Alumni Association (vice president), Board of directors of the Maryland Council on Family Reltions, Maryland Consumers association.

She is also a member of Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Alpha Zeta Chapter, American Council on Consumer Interests, Pi Beta Sigma, Inc., Big Brothers of Baltimore, Inc., Maryland State Conference of Social Welfare, YMCA, YWCA and the Baltimore Urban League.

Adapt in writing Mrs. Johnson is the co-author of "Consumer Potection Program-How Baltimore is trying to Meet a Need", and the author of the article, "There is No Money Tree."

Married to Laurence H. Johnson, housing manager in Cherry Hill, the couple attend Hertige United Church of Christ.
