$100-a-day hearing officer expected for city inmates

The expected appointment of an impartial hearing officer to review isolation commitments within the City Jail, has been termed a three-fold plan to help all involved.

Paul J. Reed, Jr., president of the City Jail Board, told the AFRO, such an appointment will: "1) guarantee disciplined inmates their constitutional rights, 2) save taxpayers dollars and 3) protect correctional officers from frivolous lawsuits."

The appointment of the review officer was announced last Wednesday by the Jail Board after a series of meetings.

According to Mr. Reed, the appointment was necessary.

The appointee will be hired on a part-time basis and will be paid $100 for each day of service.

His duties will be to affirm, disaffirm, modify or extend commitments to isolation cells by correctional personnel, usually within 12 hours after the disciplinary action has been taken.

Mr. Reed reveals three candidates are now being considered for the position. All of them have five years or more experience as trial lawyers.

However, he states, although the Board has the power to hire a hearing officer, his salary must be approved by the Board of Estimates.

"He may have to work for nothing at first," says Mr. Reed," in order to get this program implemented."

"We want to make sure that all of these so-called allegations by inmates or charges by prison officials are handled correctly and that discipline is metted out properly.

"If you don't do this thing, then you'll have the inmates running the jail."

According to Mr. Reed, there is a "trend now for an inmate placed in isolation to sue officers or jail personnel."

He states, "It causes a terrific drain on the taxpayer in order to finance these suits against the city and themselves."

Lawyer sues Supervisors of Elections

Solomon Reddick, 2400 block Albion Ave., an attorney, has filed a writ in Superior Court seeking the court's order to compel the Board of Supervisors of Elections to allow him to change his party affiliation from Republican to Democrat on once.

According to the writ file Dec. 3, the plaintiff went to the Board of Supervisors of Elections Nov. 7 to change his party affiliation but the Board refused upon Maryland Code Article 33, Section 3-8 (b).

The plaintiff desires to vote as a Democrat in the presidential primary in May, 1972. The Board says Mr. Reddick cannot change his affiliation until after the general election November, 1972.

He points out that after the Primary election this year the voting registration books were open for change of party affiliation for only two weeks after the General Election Nov. 2, 1971 and closed Nov. 16, 1971.

Mr. Reddick contends that interpretation of the Board of Article 33 is erroneous and "is unconstitutional both on its face" and also as it is being applied to him.

Mr. Reddick adds, "To allow such short period of time for the change of party affiliation during an 18-month period is a violation of the rights of the plaintiff under the constitution of the United States.

To allow the change of party affiliation for only 10 business days or less is irrational, unreasonable and irrelevant to the achievement of state's objectives," he asserts.

This plaintiff's privileges and immunities have been abridged.

Mr. Reddick contends that by being denied the right to change his party affiliation, he has been denied due process of law as guaranteed by Article 23 of the Declaration of Rights of Maryland.

Colleges slate inter-change program

Beginning Feb. 7, students attending Morgan, Coppin, Bowie, Towson and the University of Maryland, Baltimore County, will be able to inter-register at each school without additional cost to the student.

The Cooperative Education Program was approved by the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges and the Board of Regents of the University of Maryland.

To ensure effective functioning of the project each participating institution has adopted a common calendar effective with the start each academic year. The of the second semester of first day of class for the start of the second semester will be Monday, Feb. 7 for all of the institutions.

Each participating institution has developed a master schedule indicating all the courses to be offered on that campus during the second semester and copies of this schedule will be made available to students attending the other institutions. A Cooperative Education Program Co-ordinator has been appointed on each campus to supervise the day-to-day functioning of the project.

All full-time undergraduate students (except freshmen) who are in good standing are eligible to participate in the project and all credits and grades earned will be applied to the academic record of the student's "home" institution.

vides a study center for young men from the inner city. Its purpose is to encourage underachieving Black males to remain in high school and to prepare for college. This is being accomplished by individual tutoring in all high school subjects.

The Jack Be Quick Program conducted in the summers at Howard University in Washington, D. C. is motivational and sensitivity training program for teachers and to conduct such programs for minority youth between the ages of 15-17 who have been recognized as underachievers in their respective schools. The youth came from various parts of the country to be involved in this project.

The Jack and Jill Foundation is also involved in many other needed projects Therefore, the Columbia Chapter would like to thank all its supporters, and friends in its annual fund raising program. This Fund Raising Committee included Ruteena Blake, Chairman, Irene Dandridge, Elaine Harris, Roberta Briscoe, Pinnie Ross and Betty Morris.

The Columbia Chapter of Jack and Jill of America was installed Saturday, December 5, 1970 at the Interfaith Center in Wilde Lake Village Green, in Columbia Maryland.

The Columbia Chapter was sponsored for membership in the national body by the Baltimore Chapter and founded by Mesdames Roberta Briscoe, Grace Scott and Celonia B. Walden, all former members of the Baltimore Chapter of Jack and Jill.

Originally organized in 1968 as "The Columbians," the group was admitted into national membership in July 1970 at the 19th National Convention of Jack and Jill of America, Inc. in Dallas, Texas. Mesdames Celonia B. Walden and Roberta M. Briscoe attended that convention.

Mrs. Euva R. Bembry of Scarsdale, N. Y. national recording secretary, was the installing officer. She was assisted by Mrs. Kathleen M. Carter of Baltimore, past Eastern Regional director. Mrs. Celonia B. Walden was the Columbia Chapter's first president.

The guest speaker at the December meeting will be Mrs. Jacqueline Robinson of McLean, Va. president of the Jack and Jill of America Foundation.

The present officers and members of the Columbia Chapter are:

Mesdames Roberta Briscoe, president, Irene Dandridge, first vice president; Ruteena Blake second vice president; Willie Cardwell, recording secretary; Ruby Polley, corresponding secretary; Helen Fitzpatrick, financial secretary; Pinnie Ross, treasurer;

Mesdames Celonia B. Walden, parliamentarian; Elaine E. Harris, journalist; Catherine Davis, Janice Fisher, Ardell Jeudy, Aberlena McGruder, Nampeop McKenney, Betty Morris, Mattie Simmons, Iola Smith, Viola Taliaferro and Vera Wilson.

Hints For Homemakers

INEZ KAISER

I really have a busy schedule during this time of year, with so many business responsibilities and social activities. This is also the time when I spend a lot of time on college campuses.

One thing I rely upon to get me off to a good start each day is my morning LIFEBUOY bath.

LIFEBUOY is loaded with active deodorant-ingredients that keep you feeling fresh all day.

Your skin feels really clean after a LIFEBUOY bath or shower. I'm not much of a taker of showers, but my niece Joyce really is.

She also loves LIFEBUOY and assures me that she gets that same clean, fresh feeling after her shower. And she, too, is always talking about how much she likes LIFEBUOY's long-lasting deodorant protection.

We both like LIFEBUOY's nice fresh scent that doesn't compete with the fragrance of any perfume we might want to use.

We were discussing just the other day how well LIFEBUOY's colors go with our bathroom décors. She has a green bathroom and uses the green bar. I prefer the coral or white for my blue bathroom.

LIFEBUOY is good for the menfolk, too, because of its long-lasting protection and not too feminine fragrance.

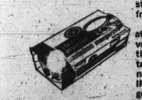
IMPERIAL FLAVOR BEATS ALL

Once I get my day off to a good beginning, I'm ready for a light breakfast. Since I'm usually pushed for time, I just have coffee and toast with a generous spread of energy-giving IMPERIAL margarine.

Personally, I prefer DIET IMPERIAL because I fight a constant weight battle. DIET IMPERIAL has 50% less calories than regular margarine because it has half the fat content.

Something else I really like about DIET or SOF-SPREAD IMPERIAL is the fact that it is always so nice and soft. Just take it out of the refrigerator, remove the lid from the nicely decorated container and it's ready to use. There's no need to let it set or transfer to another container for the table.

Another nice thing about DIET IMPERIAL is that you can actually fry with it. Just melt it over a low heat in a covered pan and when the sizzling stops you're ready to fry your favorite food.



It melts beautifully atop potatoes and other vegetables, too, giving them a fragrant and tasty flavor. There are no two ways about it, IMPERIAL really tastes good.

I find all sorts of uses for the reusable containers, too. They make very decorative catchalls for bobby pins, stamps, pins, paper clips and many other items.

And special holiday packs, with holly-berry designs, are now being introduced for SOF-SPREAD IMPERIAL. These make wonderful containers for Christmas candies and cookies.

CLOSE-UP IS FOR CLOSE-UPS

On one particular morning I was scheduled to give a talk to a seminar of college students. So the last thing I did before leaving home was to brush my teeth with CLOSE-UP, which is really a toothpaste and mouthwash in one.

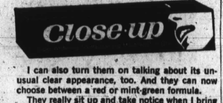
The one thing that a person in my line of work cannot afford is offensive breath. Of course, this is something no one wants, but it's a must to avoid when you are in constant and often close contact with people as I am.

I'm so glad that Lever Brothers came out with CLOSE-UP because it really makes life a lot more easy and simple. For someone always on the go, CLOSE-UP provides real protection for your teeth as well as your breath.

And since I'm usually in a rush, the fact that it is a dentifrice and mouthwash in one saves me time and energy. One act will do it all without any fuss or bother. And CLOSE-UP keeps my teeth nice and white.

CLOSE-UP is one of the things I like to tell college groups about. I am sure the students have seen the commercials, but an advertisement always gets across better when someone you know has used the product and is enthusiastic about it.

Young men and women these days are so conscious about having white teeth that they will be glad to hear that CLOSE-UP whitens and brightens teeth just as effectively as the leading toothpaste and freshens the breath as well as the leading mouthwash.



I can also turn them on talking about its unusual clear appearance, too. And they can now choose between a red or mint-green formula.

They really sit up and take notice when I bring CLOSE-UP into the section of my talk on dating and social life. They quickly understand what I mean when I say that CLOSE-UP is for a "CLOSE-UP smile," especially when I give them some personal examples.

Things like studying in the library, for instance, or sipping a soda at the student union or slow dancing at a mixer or, better still, going to the drive-in movies.

Don't misunderstand, I'm not getting lost on a selling pitch during these talks. When I get enthused about something I just have to tell others about it.

I know that CLOSE-UP gets teeth white, freshens breath and makes you ready for those close-up moments. That's why I say:

"Right on with CLOSE-UP!"
