deadly weapon the next day when a Grand Jury finally indicted him.

A warrant was then issued for the defendant's arrest.

Public Defender Stephen Harris requested the defendant be released on his own recognizance. However, Judge Grayd denied this motion.

According to Mr. Harris, Mr. Owens showed good faith when he turned himself in voluntarily to the Public Defender office on Tuesday morning for the afternoon bail to be taken into custody again.

Court records reveal the defendant is presently under a five year probation sentence for possession of stolen bank funds.

Mr. Harris contended this also proved that Mr. Owen's reliability to show up for his upcoming Criminal Court trial.

He asserted the defendant turned himself in, aware that he would be subject t further imprisonment and might be required to serve the 2 two year, suspended sentence imposed by U.S. District Court Judge James R. Miller earlier this year.

Mr. Owen's plight in the City Jail was brought to the attention of State's Attorney Milton B. Allen by State Senator Harry Welcome earlier last week.

According to Sen. Welcome, the courts should not continue to "harass" Mr. Owens for their mistake.

She contended, "If he (Mr. Owens) hadn't come to me and if I had not publically demanded compensation for the mistake I doubt that Mr. Owens would ever be recharged."

She also addressed Mr. Allen and asked that the state "let him go."

-Welfare rolls

who should not be there and those who are on the rolls will be receiving no more and no less than they should."

The new procedures started at her suggestion in the city on Nov. 15 reveal a reduction of 16,000 persons from the reconsideration list during the last two months.

And under the new screening processes used in six city districts 151 cases were adjusted, meaning an $18,500 reduction in grants.

The remaining 11 districts in the city will be screened beginning in about two weeks, she said.

By March 1, Mrs. Davidson projected that the screening will remove 4,000 Baltimore residents from the rolls with a reduction in payments of $134,000 a month or $1.6 million annually.

Another 14,000 recipients will have been removed under the new reconsideration system by that time, she added.

All together, the reduction in federal, state and local payments should climb to $8 million with a savings to the state itself of $1.3 million for fiscal 1972.

The rest of the state will soon be exposed to the new screening system which checks unemployment compensation records against social security records to determine undeclared income.

Mrs. Davidson emphasized again that the Baltimore City study showed that 95 per cent of the cases were eligible for money they receive and that only 2 per cent involved fraud.

Citizen Center — and at the same time is working with a Boy Scout troop. For many years he was a Boy Scout Commissioner. He was also president for many years of the Parkview Neighborhood Association.

Her mother, deceased, established the first Mothers Club at Somerset Homes, and "was president of the P.T.A. at every school I ever attended."

Her sister, Mrs. Lillian Jones, was president of the Resident Advisory Board of public housing until her death on Dec. 9.

She was selected by other members of the R.A.B. to be the first tenant ever to sit on the Commission of the Housing Authority of Baltimore City.

Her husband, Samuel, is an operations research analyst with the Social Security Administration. They live with a daughter, Lynn 13, and a son, Wayne, 10, on Bowers Avenue.

In addition to her professional activity (which has resulted in her inclusion on the Governor's List of Maryland's Most Qualified Women), Mrs. Hicks serves on a volunteer basis in any number of services. For instance:

As a member of Delta Sigma Theta sorority, she took part in a voluntary study in 1963 of teen-age unwed mothers. This resulted in state funding of the Single Parent Service of the Department of Employment and Social Services.

As president — and holder of every other office — in the Grove Park Elementary School P.T.A., she helped establish a recreation program for her neighborhood.

As a volunteer for the Black Child Development Program, she has worked on her vacation with child development centers in a number of fruit-growing areas of Florida.

Since her college days, she has been interested in civil rights. Not too long ago, she discussed with a Washington toy manufacturer the production of puppets of black people as well as white. The firm has since produced its first black puppet. What does it call the puppet? Helena, of course.

-Ministers', gun bill

ers and outlined the protection he plans to put into the bill.

The ministers, representing 150 Baltimore area Baptist churches, went to the governor to express their fears that the bill would allow police to bother ghetto residents.

Dr. James Everett, president of the Baptist Minister's Conference, said the six-man committee of ministers would meet again next Monday with the full Conference to discuss the bill.

But, he said, regardless of their support or lack of it, he and his colleagues will be watching the bill closely.

"We are really concerned for our community," he said, "because we feel there would be more searching and frisking going on in the ghetto areas than there would be in other areas of the city."

The 150,000 members of the churches are as concerned about the recent waves of killings as they are about future potential police harassment, he said.

Gov. Mandel told the AFRO, "I am putting all the safeguards in the law that are possible to make certain there is no harassment. Neither the police authorities or I will permit or condone harassment," he added.

"But the situation is getting so bad, I feel that the police must have some additional ability to get the guns off the streets."

The governor said frisking would only occur after a police officer has identified himself to a person, and has asked for that person's identification.

The officer must then tell the individual, the governor added, what is the basis for his suspicion and why he has stopped him.

If the suspect still refuses to produce what the officer believes to be a gun, he may then be searched, under the proposal.

The bill planned by the governor does not require more registration but allows for a search of cars or persons when a "reasonable suspicion" exists, rather than the current "probable cause" that a felony has been committed, which is now required under the law.

Del. Joseph A. Chester (D., 2nd) endorsed the governor's gun bill in a letter describing it as "good for the city of Baltimore and the state of Maryland."

Del Chester said he could be counted on for his full support" of the bill.

The Rev. Mr. Everett, pastor of New Shiloh Baptist Church told the AFRO that "frisking is abused in the black community rather than in other communities in the Baltimore area."

Rev. Mr. Everett stated that governor Mandel told the ministers "he could walk down the street and no one would bother him." The ministers stated that it would not work in the ghetto.

The Rev. Mr. Everett further said that the ministers supported the "gun control law" but stopping a car for normal operations we oppose. We are trying to protect our people like ourselves who are sound citizens of the community."

"We have been in America all our lives and we have seen how the police in the black community. We are going to support it if it passes the legislature. If it does not, we will be back down to Annapolis."
