Persians 'dig' kids at Waxter

The fabulous Persians, a local vocal group whose latest hit "Your Love" was recently released on the Capital Label, took time out from their hectic schedule to give a benefit performance for delinquent boys and girls at the Waxter Children's Center in Laurel.

Most of the approximately sixty-five youngsters currently being detained at the Waxter Center are Baltimore City residents who are awaiting further disposition by the Juvenile Court.

As many of Maryland's troubled youth were institutionalized during the holiday season, approximately 150 of them were invited to the Waxter Center from the State's four training schools who served delinquents under the auspices of the Department of Juvenile Services.

In addition, a bus load of children were invited from the District of Columbia's Children's Center.

According to Mrs. Frank L. Mills, Assistan Superintendent of the Waxter Center, "approximate y 240 children and staff were treated to a fantastic show.

Senators angry with Mandel

"Individually they were all consulted, except I found out personally a couple of them had not been. . . I spoke with them so that I think each one knew what was being done."

In an exclusive statement to the AFRO Capt. Marvin Mandel was responding to questions on the complaints of several state senators who said he had not consulted with them when he submitted a plan for reapportionment which some felt threatened their seats.

The city's liberal white and black state senators are furious with the governor.

The plan submitted by Mr. Mandel could take effect immediately unless a new one is substituted.

If a new reapportionment plan is submitted for the senatorial districts in the city, the rest of the state would not be affected by the change; Baltimore being an independent subdivision.

However, any plan must be supported by a majority of senatorial delegates from Baltimore.

Senators say they agreed with a plan organized by the governor in November, but the plan which he leaked out yesterday is not the same one.

It is rumored conservative senators from the city were the leading proponents of the "Mandel Plan" which is said to favor the "white old guard."

Mandel called the new plan "more equitable" than the original plan which "proposed an entirely new district while eliminating two senators who are already in office."

"We tried to work it out so that each of the senators could have an opportunity to run. We didn't think we should prepare an entirely new district where no one is presently in office at the expense of saying you are definitely eliminated from the legislature while you prepare an entirely new district," he concluded.

Warning: flu's here, cut visits

Persons intending to visit friends and relatives in local hospitals were asked today to limit their number to no more than two visitors per patient at any one time.

The unusual request, issued by Richard J. Davidson, executive vice president of The Maryland Hospital Association, reflects the concern of hospitals over the current prevalence of influenza throughout the area.

"There is a danger to any patient who contacts flu on top of another disorder," Davidson said. He said that in addition to the personal misery that flu generates for the patient, hospital stays are also prolonged and medical management is made more complicated as a result.

sell and use weapons; they will be shepherding the wolves among us at the expense of the lambs. For the sake of all blacks, this cannot be allowed to happen."

Immediately after releasing his statement Mr. Conaway expressed some disturbance at possible political recriminations stemming from his stand.

Speaking among themselves on the floor of the House Wednesday, several of the 14 delegates indicated they have received information of threats of political reprisal to any legislator who votes in agreement with the governor on gun control.

Meanwhile, former U.S. Senator Joseph D. Tydings, speaking from his Washington law office, urged the ministers to reverse their stand of opposition.

Gun control opponents played a major role in Tydings' defeat for reelection in 1970.

Destined to be a source of spark throughout the 90-day term will be the concept of the legislature's role in governing the state.

Noting after his reelection as Speaker of the House, Thomas Hunter Lowe (D, Talbot) said, "Two hundred years ago when this process of government was first devised, the Legislature was intended to be the dominant branch of government, the policy-making branch of government and the branch of the government closest to the people."

Particularly important delegates said after the house session was Lowe's reference to the role of the courts.

Apart from the usual "State of the State Address" by the governor scheduled for Wednesday, Jan. 19, Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, Hall Hammond will address the joint body a week later on January 26.

The speaker noted, "Legislators, not only in Maryland but in all the United States, have given over that policy-making, not only to the chief executive of the states, but to the courts.

Concluding his remarks, he said, "My predecessor, now the Governor, started about a decade ago the still-long climb back up the hill to resumption of our role as policy-makers.

"We have now crested that hill and we are ready to accept our role as policy-makers.

"We no longer have any excuse not to accept our role as the policy-making branch of the government and the dominant branch of the government."

Delegates felt much of Mr. Lowe's remarks were a cue taken from the national level of government as the Congress seeks to strengthen its hand in governing the nation, apart from the role of the President.

After the speaker's remarks, first in order of business was the confirmation of vetoes left from the previous session, sent from the governor's office.

Of the 26 bills acted upon by the House, it voted to overturn two vetoes by Mr. Mandel.

The first, House Bill No. 228 entitled "Industrial Finance and Small Loan Companies" would give protection to those who would borrow from a company connected with a merchant.

An example of this would be a person who borrows from a company which is directly related to a furniture store or an appliance company.

Delegates desired that substantial protection be afforded the consumer who may unwittingly become involved in a "deal" between the two.

The other veto overturned was House Bill No. 1128 entitled "Racing Dates and Licenses." This would reopen Marlboro Race Track. The bills will become law, despite the governor's action, in June.

Among the important bills prefiled by the 14 delegates in the House are:

Del. Lee's bill on "Contractual Marriage"; Del. Webster's bill on Vehicle Laws which states, ". . . to provide that warrants shall not be issued for failure to appear for parking violations and to provide that the Motor Vehicles Department shall refuse applications for renewal of registration or for renewal or reinstatement of a driver's license if there are outstanding parking violations against the applicant."

Del. Webster prefiled another bill on "Disorderly conduct." Delegates Lee and Boswell prefiled a bill on Vehicle Laws which says ". . . to provide that drivers with chauffeurs' licenses shall not be entitled to accumulate a greater number of points than other drivers under the point system before suspension or revocation of the license."

Among Del. Brailey's prefiled bills are a bill on burials and one on real property taxes.

Del. Dean has a bill on health insurance, stating, ". . . to provide that health insurance policies as defined shall include payment of maternity and other benefits to certain persons with provisions for exclusion of the benefits."

Del. John Douglass prefiled a bill on the Juvenile Court stating, ". . . to make uniform the statewide original juvenile court jurisdiction over persons under the age of 18 for a child and 16 or over persons bringing a child within the jurisdiction of the court; defining child and adult; mandating imposition of judgments, restitution, and incarceration for parents liable for criminal acts caused by minors."

Delegates Dixon and Conaway prefiled a bill on Juries, stating, ". . . to change the age at which persons may serve on juries."

Del. Boswell prefiled a bill on False Advertising stating, ". . . to prohibit the selling or disposing of used merchandise unless the merchandise is clearly identified as used and is marked as such on the bill of sale."

Del. Dixon prefiled bills dealing with: Non-Alcoholic and Alcoholic Beverages.

Among Del. Lee's other prefiled bills are those dealing with: State Board of Law Examiners, Divorce, Perjury, State Employees, Teachers, Carnal Knowledge, and Wage and Hour Law.

Listed with Del. Boswell other prefiled bills are: Discrimination, Police Training Commission, and Arrest Records.

Most important among the prefiled resolutions which was passed by full consent on the entire House on Wednesday reflected upon the contributions of late rights leader, Walter P. Carter. This was introduced by Delegates Boswell and Dean with Del. Dixon moving for immediate approval.

The entire House stood for the vote, passing it unanimously.

Among prefiled bills of importance in the Senate is Sen. Welcome's Higher Education Loan Program which would "establish a revolving fund loan program for education of medical and dental students who will practice medicine or dentistry in the state."

"Sen. Blount prefiled a bill on "Transportation of Pupils," one on "Commission on the State Museum," and "Baltimore City — Cosmetologists."

Among the most important prefiled measures was by Sen. Weskamp which stated, "to amend certain sections of the local laws of Baltimore City to change the manner of appointment and replacement of Baltimore's City Police Commissioner; to provide that the City Solicitor of Baltimore City and not the Attorney General of the State shall be attorney for and represent the Baltimore City Police Department and its Police Commissioner."

Grand Jury urges stiff gun control

The outgoing Grand Jury has called upon Maryland congressmen to introduce and support a Federal gun control legislation to help curb rampant shooting cases in the State.

In their report to the Supreme Bench of the Criminal Court, they asserted the "cold blooded, senseless murders" were carried out by juveniles because they can obtain guns easily and cheaply.

The jury also called for stricter punishment for promoters of peep shows which they described as indecent.

Further, they recommended that higher penalties be assessed, especially for second offenders.

"Perhaps fines of five to one thousand dollars for second offenders and jail terms for third offenders would discourage these activities."

They said the present fine of $50 to $100 is too low to discourage peddlers whose establishments are often raided by the police only to come back in full swing.

The jury also called for measures to control narcotics traffic.

"The crime rate, especially in the major offences of murder, rape, robbery and assault with deadly weapons has been rising at a staggering pace and the drug addiction rate is rising even more rapidly.

"Effective means must be found and utilized to fight these evils before they overwhelm us. Crime and narcotics addiction are very closely applied. Some authorities say that as much as seventy per cent of all crime is drug connected."

Provident mourns loss of Albert Ferguson

The entire Provident Hospital Complex mourns the loss of Albert Ferguson, Acting Project Director of the Provident Comprehensive Community Mental Health Program.

In his short time in this capacity, Mr. Ferguson had won the admiration and respect of the community and professionals alike.

He came to the Center in July, 1971 as a psychologist and upon the resignation of Dr. Hooten, was appointed acting Director on Oct. 4.

In this capacity, Mr. Ferguson attempted to show how community involvement could be meaningful, and how it could be used to implement programs to better serve the mental health needs of the area.

Mr. Ferguson was acutely concerned with patient welfare and often could be found working 19 and 20 hours a day to see that things operated smoothly. He came to the Center originally as a psychologist in charge of out-patient services.

He was a teacher in the Baltimore School System for 15 years and was awarded Master Degrees in Psychology and Education from Columbia University.

In addition, he studied at Northwestern University, Virginia State College and Johns Hopkins University. A world traveler who had visited 19 foreign countries, Mr. Ferguston did extensive work in Uganda.

We at Provident extend our sincere condolences to his wife and three children as well as to the entire Baltimore Community for the untimely and shocking loss of an enlightened leader.

Rollin Hendrickson buried Thursday

Rollin Hendrickson, 67, 2324 Atlantic St., Mt. Winans, was the last tinued, "I heard five shots, I was shot six times.

"Four times I was hit in the stomach. I received a bullet in the left arm and the right hand."

According to police physician, Dr. S. G. Sullivan, "There are permanent injuries that Officer Sarakowski has as a result of the shooting. He has a slight deformity of the right hand, poor grip in the left arm, trouble lifting his left foot and trouble raising his left shoulder higher than the horizontal level."

Dr. Sullivan, when cross-examined by Carroll, said that the bullets entered into Sarakowski from the front and exited from his back.

Sarakowski said that he was shot by a .45 caliber pistol. Powell has a .38 caliber pistol registered in his name.

Sarakowski said that he could not identify the three males that approached the car on the night of April 24, 1970 or identify who did the shooting.

Another witness, police officer Raymond Norris, said, "I was working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift that night. When I heard over the police radio that two officers had been shot, I immediately proceeded to the scene.

"I observed officer Saeger slumped over the driver's wheel of the police car. He was bleeding at the mouth. Officer Sarakowski was lying in the gutter." He said that there was no one else on the street except the wounded police.

Medical examiner, Dr. Charles Springate, said, "I proformed the autopsy on Donald Saeger on April 25, 1970. He died of a gunshot wound of the head. The bullet entered the left temporal region (left side of head just above the rear), passed through the lower portion of the brain and lodged on the inside of the jaw."

When questioned by the AFRO concerning her brother, James Edward Powell, his sister said, "He's never been in trouble before. He was in the marine corps for nine years, and when he got out in 1963 he started working until his arrest two years ago."

Powell's attorney's are William H. Murphy Jr. and LeRoy Carroll.

On the second day of testimony, Thursday, the trial of James Edward Powell, charged with first degree murder of police officer Donald Saeger, resumed in Criminal Court, Part I, before Judge J. Harold Grady.

First witness for the state was Mrs. Viola Hawkins, who at the time of the incident resided in the 700 block W. Lafayette Ave.

She testified that she had heard at least two people speaking at her back door on the night of April 24, 1970.

She said, "The first noise I heard was like someone banging on the door trying to get in."

Testifying immediately after Mrs. Hawkins was William Beverly, owner of a grocery store located next door to Mrs. Hawkins. He said, "I heard an unusual noise in the back of the store. My dog began to bark.

I heard three shots, it was rapid firing. The shots occured about 15 minutes after I heard the noise at the back of the store." He said that he did not see the faces of the people causing the disorder.

New evidence was introduced into the case when Randolph Beverly, brother of William Beverly, testified that he also heard a disturbance in the rear of his home in the 700 block W. Lafayette Ave.

He said, "I was at home shortly after 10 p.m. on April 24, 1970, when I heard the noise at the rear of my home. My daughter called for help and I went to see what was wrong.

An officer of the law was standing at the foot of the steps. He had an instrument in his hands.

The next day, Saturday, April 25, 1970, I saw a police car cruising very slowly up Upton St. I was standing on my porch talking to the police.

He said when the police searched the rear of his backyard they found a sandbox and under the sandbox was a .32 caliber pistol."

According to policeman Albert Wilder, in testimony, the .32 caliber pistol had been fired and had been fired and three shells that had not been fired.

Though Powell was not identified as one of the people trying to break in, the questions which remain are: Who fired the shots?, Who tried to break in? and Where did the .32 caliber pistol come from?

Donald Saeger, policeman killed in the line of duty, was killed with a .38 caliber pistol on the night of April 24, 1970.

Trial continues today (Friday).

Muslims in Baton Rouge to recruit, not to riot

By CHARLES B. LAYTON

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Black and white leaders agreed today that the city's racial violence was instigated by 14 members of a black Muslim cult who came to town — not to start a riot — but to recruit support for their splinter sect.

City leaders at first said the 14 religious zealots, who came to Baton Rouge a week before Monday's shootout with police, dressed in black suits and butterfly bow ties, wanted to take over the city.

But today, both black and white leaders concurred that the violence which killed four persons was not part of the plan, but was incidental.

The men who instigated the violence, Mayor Woodrow W. Dumas said Wednesday, were a splinter group within the Black Muslims. Their plan was to take over the Muslims from within, and assassinate its leader, Elijah Muhammad of Chicago.

"If I were him, I would get myself bodyguards real fast, because these guys plan on getting rid of him just like they got rid of Malcolm X," Dumas said.

The group of 14 uniformed blacks began holding mass meetings, inviting local blacks, and Monday's outburst came during one of the meetings.

Charles Granger, a black antipoverty worker who attended one of the gatherings said the cult bordered on the fanatic.

"They were here to kick off a campaign to die," he said. "They actually said they were ready to die here."

The Rev. Joseph Melonson, a former NAACP chapter leader and a former Black Muslim, agreed with Granger.

"They had reason to be willing to die. They were prepared to die," he said.

But "Minister Lewis," the local Black Muslim leader, said the newcomers were not members in good standing with the Muslims. He refused to comment further.

Elijah Muhammad, 74, the prophet who oversees the Muslim empire from his mosque in Chicago, referred to a revolution from within in a newsletter published before the Baton Rouge violence.

"The Muslims are faced with murders and killers coming to them from among our own black brothers," it said.

The 14 bow-tied blacks who came to Baton Rouge New Year's weekend apparently were these "killers," Dumas thinks. Eight of them were held in lieu of $500,000 bond, charged with murder, including five from Chicago, Los Angeles or Philadelphia.

Of the remaining six, police are hunting four, and two are hospitalized.

tention during the time Sen. Joseph A. Bertorelli (D, 1st, Baltimore) headed the delegation.

The behind-the-scenes struggle grew out of orders from Mayor Schaefer, who, it seems, indicated what person the delegation should elect.

For the next two years, the city delegation (including the House of Delegates) will total 43.

In 1974, with the reorganization plans proposed by the governor, the city delegation will total 33 members, a reduction of ten members."

Meanwhile in the House, Del. Troy Brailey (D, 4th) was named to the vice chairmanship of the Baltimore House delegation. Mr. Brailey held this post during last year's legislative term.

House city chairman is Del. John J. Kent (D, 3rd).

in the police tests could not have been fired from the same pistol."

The incident occurred on Friday, April 24, 1970 at approximately 9:50 p.m. in the 1200 block Myrtle Ave.

The first witness called to testify was detective Sergeant Sarakowski, 43, a victim of the shooting. He said, "I was called to 1201 Myrtle Ave. on a domestic complaint. Officer Saeger talked with the women.

"When we went back to the radio car, we got a call for a juvenile complaint, this was on Argyle Ave. After following through on that complaint, we then returned to Myrtle Ave. where we wrote out our report.

"While I was sitting in the car, I heard some noise, I observed three males walking toward the police car. One of the men came up to the police car and looked into it.

"Right after that, I heard some shots. They didn't seem to be that close. I straightened up to see what was going on, and then I realized that they were shooting at me.

"As soon as I saw the flash from the pistol, I was hit in the stomach." Sarakowski, who still has a bullet lodged in his body, continued, "I heard five shots, I was shot six times.

"Four times I was hit in the stomach. I received a bullet in the left arm and the right hand."

According to police physician, Dr. S. G. Sullivan, "There are permanent injuries that Officer Sarakowski has as a result of the shooting. He has a slight deformity of the right hand, poor grip in the left arm, trouble lifting his left foot and trouble raising his left shoulder higher than the horizontal level."

Dr. Sullivan, when cross-examined by Carroll, said that the bullets entered into Sarakowski from the front and exited from his back.

Sarakowski said that he was shot by a .45 caliber pistol. Powell has a .38 caliber pistol registered in his name.

Sarakowski said that he could not identify the three males that approached the car on the night of April 24, 1970 or identify who did the shooting.

Another witness, police officer Raymond Norris, said, "I was working the 4 p.m. to midnight shift that night. When I heard over the police radio that two officers had been shot, I immediately proceeded to the scene.

"I observed officer Saeger slumped over the driver's wheel of the police car. He was bleeding at the mouth. Officer Sarakowski was lying in the gutter." He said that there was no one else on the street except the wounded police.

Medical examiner, Dr. Charles Springate, said, "I proformed the autopsy on Donald Saeger on April 25, 1970. He died of a gunshot wound of the head. The bullet entered the left temporal region (left side of head just above the rear), passed through the lower portion of the brain and lodged on the inside of the jaw."

When questioned by the AFRO concerning her brother, James Edward Powell, his sister said, "He's never been in trouble before. He was in the marine corps for nine years, and when he got out in 1963 he started working until his arrest two years ago."

Powell's attorney's are William H. Murphy Jr. and LeRoy Carroll.

On the second day of testimony, Thursday, the trial of James Edward Powell, charged with first degree murder of police officer Donald Saeger, resumed in Criminal Court, Part I, before Judge J. Harold Grady.

First witness for the state was Mrs. Viola Hawkins, who at the time of the incident resided in the 700 block W. Lafayette Ave.

She testified that she had heard at least two people speaking at her back door on the night of April 24, 1970.

She said, "The first noise I heard was like someone banging on the door trying to get in."

Testifying immediately after Mrs. Hawkins was William Beverly, owner of a grocery store located next door to Mrs. Hawkins. He said, "I heard an unusual noise in the back of the store. My dog began to bark.

I heard three shots, it was rapid firing. The shots occured about 15 minutes after I heard the noise at the back of the store." He said that he did not see the faces of the people causing the disorder.

New evidence was introduced into the case when Randolph Beverly, brother of William Beverly, testified that he also heard a disturbance in the rear of his home in the 700 block W. Lafayette Ave.

He said, "I was at home shortly after 10 p.m. on April 24, 1970, when I heard the noise at the rear of my home. My daughter called for help and I went to see what was wrong.
