ANNAPOLIS — With the Wednesday opening of the 1972 session of the General Assembly, Maryland's 14 delegates and 4 black state senators increased their standing with the naming of Clarence W. Blount (D, 5th) to head the city delegation to the Senate and the re-election of Troy Brailey (D, 4th) to the vice chairmanship of the House delegation.

Among the more than 500 bills prefiled the most controversial for this community's representation is expected to be Gov. Marvin Mandel's emergency gun control legislation.

In a statement this week to the Baltimore Baptist Ministers Conference, Del. Frank Conaway (D, 4th) urged that body to withdraw its opposition to the governor's bill.

The ministers have expressed concern over the "stop and frisk" segments of the bill which they said would be "used to the detriment of the black community."

However, Del. Conaway said, "If the Maryland General Assembly were to pass a bill containing stop and frisk legislation which could only be used in white, middle class areas of Ba timore, then the city's blacks would be up in arms . . . and rightfully so."

He continued, "The one place where people are being murdered at a terrible rate, where black people are dying almost every day, is center-city Baltimore.

"That is my constituency and the area that most concerns me. And right now, I can see no way to stop this slaughter besides getting guns and other weapons out of circulation.

"I want to make it clear that I feel it will take more than police searches to end this menace. We will have to stop the white manufacturers and wholesalers who make it so easy to get weapons and we will have to beat the white gun lobby in state and national legislatures if we're ever going to be safe in our own homes."

Noted the first term delegate, "But for immediate action . . . and this is a problem that demands immediate solution . . . we have to confiscate the weapons that are killing blacks. And, I'm in favor of the most expedient means possible of doing that."

Conaway felt black ministers "have been a bulwark against which this city's black community has traditionally leaned . . . But now the black citizens of Baltimore and the large cities turn to their religious leaders for protection of life and limb.

"I honestly feel that by blocking strong gun control legislation, these clergymen will be helping those who

Priests testify in jail inmates vs. Schoonfield

The testimony of two priests highlighted Wednesday's proceedings in what may become a landmark court case: inmates of Baltimore City Jail versus Warden Hiram Schoonfield, assistant wardens, and members of the Jail Board.

The two priests testified they could not adequately perform their religious duty to inmates in the jail because of restrictions imposed on them by the the warden.

Father Richard Wagner and Father Phillip Linden appeared in court in behalf of eight inmates.

The inmates, Vernon Collins, James Dailey, Charles Dutton, Frederick Freeman, Milton Gray, Sylvester Morris, James Powell and Conrad Whitfield maintain that the defendants are denying them certain constitutional rights.

And if the inmates win their case it could mark the beginning of much needed penal reform in the city and throughout the state.

In their suit the inmates claim that rights denied them are "freedom of speech and association, the right to worship and exercise religious liberty and the right not to be denied liberty without due process of law."

Both priests testified to the fact that they were not allowed privacy to counsel inmates or to have personal contact with inmates in order to administer holy sacraments and that they were forced to wait long periods of time to see men who wanted to see them.

Father Wagner said that he was allowed to hear confessions over the phone inside the building but said that he was reluctant to do so because he feared the phones might have been monitored.

He also said that it was impossible for him to administer Holy Communion to inmates because no pri-

Rep. Mitchell urges mayor name Wright

U.S. Congressman Parren J. Mitchell (D.-7th) has asked Mayor William Donald Schaefer to appoint Wendell Wright to a term on the City Employees Retirement Board.

"It is my understanding," said Mitchell, "that a member of the Board of Trustees of the City Employees Retirement System is serving beyond a term that expired in December of 1970."

"Mr. Wright, " explained the Congressman, "came in second in an election for a position on the board. He is eminently qualified to serve as an excellent representative to city employees.

"I think you will see he has worked with all types of people and has gained sensitivity to their needs.

"Mr. Wright has done a tremendous job with the Commnuity Action Agency in developing low-income credit unions. In the last three years the membership has grown to 12,000 with assets of $300,000."

Representative Mitchell noted: "Since the creation of this board in 1926 there has never been a black member. I hope your administration will set a new precedent by appointing a black man."

School children bring vitality to the AFRO

The front page of the AFRO's Christmas edition was beautifully adorned with Christmas cards created by youngsters of Gilmor Elementary School.

When the youngsters, especially Mrs. Myrtle Koger's 5th graders, saw their art work and photos in the AFRO, they became even more interested in the newspaper and how it operates. They constructed a display on the wall outside the school's office, showing the original cards and the cards as they appeared in the Christmas issue.

Tuesday, AFRO reporter, Scott Ponemone, came to Gilmore Elementary to explain how the AFRO is published. Mrs. Koger's pupils asked many questions, displaying a strong interest to know everything about the AFRO. Soon they will tour the AFRO office to see first-hand how the paper is put together.

Blount, Brailey elected

State Senator Clarence W. Blount (D, 5th) was elected to head the city's 12-man senatorial delegation to the Senate at Wednesday's opening session of the Maryland General Assembly.

The move, made at an informal caucus, was made possible when Sen. Verda F. Welcome (D, 4th) withdrew her bid, thereby laying the way clear for Mr. Blount.

As head of the senatorial respresention, Mr. Blount's primary duties will be to serve as the floor leader for the city administration's legislative program it wants enacted by the state.

Sen. Blount will be working closely with Mayor Schaefer and Council President Orlinsky, who is the mayor's official liaison between the city and the state legislature.

Elected to the vice chairman of the delegation was Sen. John Carroll Byrnes, (D, 3rd), regarded as a liberal.

With the election of Senators Blount and Byrnes, senate members, will expect a stronger voice by the city delegation which had been a matter of con-

Rep. Sarbanes announces for re-election

"In a world that grows increasingly more impersonal and complicated, the people need a knowledgeable, dedicated advocate in Washington who listens to their concerns and fights for their interests and those of their community.

Rep. Paul S. Sarbanes (D-4th.), promising continued vigorous and concerned representation for the people of the Baltimore metropolitan area," was announcing his candidacy for re-election to the United States House of Representatives from the Baltimore area's new Third Congressional District.

The 38-year-old incumbent declared further, "I am seeking re-election in the strong belief that the nation must have elected representatives attuned to the needs of the times and committed to giving all of the people responsive and

Average telephone rate up 80c immediately

New telephone rate schedules accepted by the Maryland Public Service Commission went into effect Thursday a C and P Telephone Company of Maryland spokesman said.

The revised tariffs provide for an across-the-board 10.2 percent increase in local telephone service rates in Maryland and a similar overall increase in intrastate long distance revenues.

The new telephone rate schedules are based on the increased amount granted the C and P of Maryland by the Public Service Commission's decision on January 6 in the 9-month-old Maryland telephone rate case. The revenue increase allowed was $27.5 million, which will amount to about $13.5 million after taxes.

The increase will generally be applied to the charge for each service or item of equipment. Federal and local taxes will be added wherever applicable.

For example in Baltimore City where the rate for a private unlimited residence line was $8.10, the rate will be $8.90, plus tax. The new rate for a business line that was $10.70 will be $11.80, plus tax, with a new message unit rate of 6½ cents, plus tax.

Rates that will not change include the 10 cent rate for a coin telephone call and the one-time charge for a color set.

The time schedule and classification for long distance calls within Maryland will become the same as for calls between states.

The C and P spokesman said, "Now that we will have only one schedule for long distance calls, whether to points in Maryland or to other states, it will be a lot easier for our customers to remember the times when lower rates are in effect."

Another feature is that long distance station-to-station rates will be lower for calls which are dialed directly than for calls with which operator assistance is requested. In this respect, also, Maryland's scheduled will now be in line with the arrangement for calls between states.

For all Direct Distance Dialed calls made in Maryland, both within the state and to other states, the schedules will provide for:

Evening rates starting at 5 p.m. Sunday through Friday.

Weekend rates from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. on Saturday, and on Sunday until 5 p.m.

Night rates from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m. every night.

A one-minute minimum period on certain calls from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m.

"By dialing their calls and by calling during off-peak hours when our switching equipment is less busy, customers will benefit from the lowest possible rates," the C and P spokesman noted.

In areas where Direct Distance Dialing facilities are not yet available, the lower rates will apply.

Dial-direct rates will not apply to person-to-person, coin, credit card, and collect calls, and calls billed on a special basis.

Panther on trial for police death

The trial of James Edward Powell, 35, Black Panther Party member, began in Criminal Court, Part I, before Judge J. Harold Grady, on Wednesday.

In his opening statement before the 12-man jury, James Dudley, assistant state's attorney said, "The state of Maryland will prove that Powell fired the shot that killed police officer Donald Saeger, on the night of April 24, 1970."

Defense attorney, LeRoy Carroll, in his statement before the jury said that the whole case would be to find the answers to the simple questions of: "Who fired the shot that killed Saeger and who fired the shot that wounded Officer Stanley Sarakowski?"

He further stated, after a lengthy and detailed explanation of how markings and grooves remain on a bullet after its been fired and how police tests with the alleged murder pistol can prove whether or not the weapon is the actual murder weapon:

"The defense will prove that the bullets fired from the weapon and those used

Mrs. Moore wed to Rev. Henry Wilson

The wedding of Mrs. Elizabeth Moore and the Rev. Henry Wilson took place in the Mount Calvary Freewill Baptist Church, recently.

Mrs. Moore, a registered practical nurse, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John David Ryals of Erwin, N.C. Her husband is the pastor of the church in which the ceremony took place. Officiating at the double-ring ritual was the Rev. Albert Green.

The bride, escorted by her son, John Tomlinson, wore a gown of blue encrusted with silver and gold beads on the bodice, skirt bottom and on the sleeves. An arrangement of blue veiling was held by Dior bows, and she carried a bouquet of pink and blue carnations.

Mrs. Ophelia McNeill of Washington, matron of honor, wore an ensemble in pink and a corsage of pink and blue carnations.

Violet Wilson, eight-year-old daughter of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Best man for the Rev. Mr. Wilson was James Jackson, nephew, of Washington.

Mrs. Shirley Carrington, organist; and Mrs. M. Ferrell, soloist, provided the nuptial music.

A reception for 700 guests was held in the church hall following the wedding.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are at home at 2306 Edmondson Avenue.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Ella McNeill, Miss Janie McKay, Mrs. Ophelia McNeill, Mrs. Hilda Williams and Mrs. Jessie McRay of Washington; Mrs. Josephine Hicks of Erwin, N.C.;

Northwest Club felicitates new Mrs. Charles Thompson

with Lula Mackay

When the Northwest Club met, Saturday, center of attention was their newlywed member, the former Mrs. Mary Sprow, city school librarian, who was married to Charles Thompson, former Morgan State College staffer, in Mexico, Christmas.

The Northwesterns had a beautiful wedding cake to go along with their felicitations.

In addition to the romantic event, the group chatted of trips, of plans for a dance next fall, and as usual of their children. They learned that Roderica Johns not only had garnered a degree from American University in December, but also a ring for that particular finger. Flozella Clark had to dash off to Philadelphia to the bedside of her son-in-law, Allen Counts, who underwent surgery at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

The girls were looking good in their colorful floor-length skirts, including Lucille Cephas, Alice Payne and Elsie Scott. Margarie Sheffy, in whose elegant home the session was held, wore a particularly felicitating skirt in orange and black. Co-hosting with her was Anita Myers.

Others at the session were Iona Collins, Cleo Digges, Vera Flint, Ellen Johns, Jimmy LaForest, Gloria Phillips, Vyna Skinner, Ruperta Waters and Anethia Williams.

The "ringing out" of a busy and eventful year for Les Ofoe was indeed a grand beginning of "What's going on for '72" when these eleven ladies had their annual New Year's Eve party in the lush club room of Dr. and Mrs. Archie Robinson's manse on Hilton Street.

Setting the fashion pace for the evening were the hostess, both attired in the latest at-home garb . . . he in a gray fitted knit, and she in a multi-colored full length skirt and shocking pink top. Club President Vashti Christmas welcomed the guests in a pin, red and white taffeta frock. So did Walta Young, whose choice was a sheer wool pants suit, but in the same colors, which, incidentally are the club's colors.

Edith Henry chose one of those sexy black pants outfit that is so popular these days. Grayce Walker made her entry in a black and silver metallic pants suit which she designed to go with the [illegible] Emba mink coat Santa left under her Christmas tree. Helen Gattis nonchalantly flung her newly acquired fur over a black haltered-top dress which featured a red rose centered at front which created a sensation.

Doreva Stanley, in hot pants demurely hidden by a red paisley wrap around skirt could not be overlooked. The skirt was bordered in gold to match the sparkles in her new hairdo.

Harriet Trader complemented her new hair style by donning a white brocade knicker outfit with matching boots. Serena Holmes was a picture (she's wearing the cutest pixie hair cut these days) in magenta velvet skirt and peach colored pale de soie top edged with Indian gold braid.

Flying in from Houston, Texas a few hours before the bewitching hour, Bernice McDaniels was all together in a white imported lace knit accessorized with the new red kid shoes and hoot to match the trimmings of the dress. A gusty Margaret Driver, lost little time after arriving from her holiday vacation in making the scene. She was out there in black shadow block dress all a-glitter with silver. You really had to look twice . . . but that was Geraldine Desbordes in the oriental ensemble from head to toe.

Blanche Beckham selected a knit of black with slash to show a teasing gleam of leg. Her dazzling jewelry was a sight to behold. Cute as a button was Ponjola Priest in pleated and ruffled black silk. Janet Woolridge chose silver brocade and silver kid twinkle toe shoes to match. Ada Woodland dashed in from Columbia, Md. looking very regal in black chiffon trimmed with paillettes of silver and gold.

Really, the ladies were among the prettiest dressed women in town . . . and the men were in no way lagging . . . what with their knits, their fancy and colorful shirts, jackets and ties.

Twix the champagne, the chatter, the good old sounds provided by Archie, Joseph Walker and Eddie McDaniels, and p-l-e-a-s-e don't leave out that live entertainment . . . the party was a swinger.

Among those swinging were:

Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Haynes, Roland Williams, David Driver, Robert Rea, George Teliaero, Alfred Woolridge, Paul Beckham, Charles Josey, Jr., Louis Bell;

Drs. and Mesdames James Priest, Uthman Ray, Lonnie Greene, Eugene H.

MISS CASSANDRA DRAKE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews Drake, and Roy L. Parker, son of Mrs. Hattie Sanders and the late Roy Parker, to be married in August, according to announcement this week. The wedding will take place in the Wayland Baptist Church.

An announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Julia M. Eddington and the Rev. Cleven L. Jones Jr. by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williamson.

Miss Eddington, a graduate of Howard University, is a graduate student in the same university.

The Rev. Mr. Jones, a veteran, is a junior at Morgan State College, where he is majoring in sociology, and an associate minister at the First United Church Associate Faith.

The wedding is scheduled for June 10.
