ARTHUR PRYSOCK AT PLAYBOY

The Penthouse of the Playboy Club will feature the smooth, soothing voice of Arthur Prysock from Jan. 17 through the 22nd.

Prysock has long been a master of the romantic ballad and became a symbol of the adult rebellion when pop music was dominated by rock and roll.

His voice can be tender, amorous, loving and kind, or husky and sophisticated and quite capable of bringing back memories to the listener.

In 1961 he did "It's Too Late, Too Late" one of his greatest key pieces, followed by "Stella By Starlight" and "Autumn Leaves". As his records grew in popularity, the demand for him in nightclubs, especially by female adherents, became louder and louder.

Currently he is appearing at the top night clubs in the country and on major television and radio shows.

ISSAC FIELDS: TOUGH TOPKICK

Television actor Isaac Fields makes his screen debut as First Sergeant Robinson, the tough topkick of the U.S. Tenth Cavalry's H Company, in "Soul Soldier," and action-packed adventure story based on the post-Civil War exploits of the famous all-black unit.

The Fanfare Corporation release is now playing at the New Theatre.

As the senior, non-commissioned officer of H Company, Fields' First Sergeant Robinson is forced to walk a precarious line, dividing his loyalty between the white officers who command the Tenth Cavalry, and the black troopers, many of them former slaves, who comprise the ranks.

The role calls for a strong, forceful actor who can evoke immediate attention and respect the second he steps in front of the camera, and Fields does just that.

What's Happening!

By IDA PETERS

JACKSON 5 TO RETURN TO CIVIC CENTER

Five young men from Gary, Ind. who registered 24,633 admissions on Civic Center turnstiles for two performances last September have booked a return engagement here for Saturday, January 29th.

The Jackson 5, Motown's sensational teenaged supergroup, ranked No. 1 in the single record sales category during 1970, according to Billboard Magazine, regarded by members of the music industry as their Bible.

The trade publication also disclosed that the J-5 were No. 1 in album sales for new artists.

One of their more recent hit records, "I'll Be There," offers even more solid evidence of their superstar status. "I'll Be There" hit the No. 1 spot on all national record survey charts in both the U.S. and Great Britain and has sold more than 3.5 million copies to date.

This chart buster was followed by "The Jackson 5 Third Album," which has already approached the million mark in sales.

The Jackson 5 include Michael Joe Jackson, Marlon David Jackson, Jermaine LaJaune Jackson, Toriano Adaryll (Tito) Jackson, and Sigmund Esco (Jackie) Jackson.

In addition, there are three sisters: Maureen, LaToya, and Janet. And there is still another brother, nine-year-old Randy, who plays a mean set of bongos and looks forward to joining the group, making it either The Jackson 6 or the Jackson 5 Plus One.

DELFONICS

The exciting Philly soul group, THE DELFONICS, ("Walk Right Up To The Sun") will be appearing at The Scene this Fri., Sat. and Sun. along with the Soft-Tones.

We had been expecting the Unifics who got tied up with travel difficulties.

HOLIDAY ON ICE

Atoy Wilson doesn't see anything special about the fact that he's the first black person to star in an ice show.

Four nine years this titled figure skating champion was the only black youngster entering West Coast skating competitions.

A bright 20-year-old, Altoy left the competitive ranks in 1969 after becoming the first of our men to pass the U.S. Figure Skating Association's eighth figure test.

Skating laurels weren't enough, so Atoy enrolled at Loyola University in Los Angeles and began studying political science.

College was a great experience, maturing and preparing him for the professional skating career he had always dreamed of. Holiday on Ice is currently at the Civic Center.

DIAMONDS FOREVER

Sean Connery is James Bond. After a brief one picture absence Connery packs his Walther PPK 38 pistol into his shoulder holster for the sixth time, as he sets out on the trail of a fortune in smuggled gems that fail to reach the black market, in "Diamonds Are Forever." The picture is held over at the Met Theatre.

Surrounded as usual by a bevy of luscious and lethal beauties, James Bond shares the action, both amatory and predatory, with two gorgeous female co-stars, red-haired Jill St. John and brunette Lana Wood, the 25-year-old bountifully-endowed young-
