Gun group opposes bill

By VAL HYMES

J. Robert Esher, legislative chairman of the Maryland District Rifle and Pistol Association, an affiliate of the NRA (National Rifle Association), has taken a strong position against Governor Mandel's gun control bill.

Esher said the emergency amounts to a legislative rape of the law abiding public because it gives them no time to make the objection known. Mandel's office consulted the gun group befor writing the bill and was confident of its support.

the youngster.

At that time, Dr. Palmer refused to publicly discuss the unusual case, expressing concern that premature conclusions could possibly hold the boy up to public ridicule.

However, since then, Dr. Palmer and Dr. Ian Stevenson, chief of the Division of Parapsychology who are probing the case together, have released a statement giving their preliminary findings.

In the statement released to the AFRO last week, the experts made no "definite off the table" conclusions" about the origins of the movements, but strongly indicated that what was reported as happening really happened although they had no answer as to why it happened.

Said the doctors:

"While the evidence obtained so far does not justify a definite conclusion as to the origin of these events, it is the investigators' current opinion that at least some of them involve paranormal processes; i.e., movements occurring in the general vicinity of the boy that cannot be explained by known physical forces."

The investigators further said that "because of these preliminary findings," they plan to continue their investigation in the hope of obtaining "more definite evidence concerning the origin of the events and gain further insight into the psychological factors involved in poltergeist phenomena.

Perhaps one of the biggest factors in continuing the investigation was the fact that there was an unusual movement while Dr. Palmer was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Coleman, Jerry's foster parents.

"A large chair turned over at the boy's feet when Dr. Palmer was there, although he did not actually see the chair in motion," said the statement of the movement Dr. Palmer noted.

The statement also revealed that the doctors became involved in the case through an invitation from the Colemans' family physician who reportedly contacted the university after he himself witnessed some strange movements.

The findings of the doctors also coincide with reports from persons who told the AFRO they had witnessed the movements.

The doctors reported in their statement that they had talked to "a number of first-hand witnesses, including the physician," who reported "such events as large pieces of furniture turning over or lifting off the floor and dishes placed well back on a table falling off the table."

Mrs. Doris Stephens of Richmond, Jerry's mother who rode with the AFRO to see her son, reported that she couldn't believe the reports concerning her son on when he had them off.

While noting that the events surrounding Jerry's case are "quite rare," the doctors reported that there are detailed scientific reports of ten such cases in the United States and a dozen in Europe.

Dr. Stevenson, who informed that Jerry's case is the fifth of alleged poltergeist activity studied by his department, said in an interview that he has never known persons involved in such cases to have the power to control movements.

He also observed that this kind of activity usually does not go on indefinitely and indicated that the unexplained events would not continue to follow Jerry throughout his life.

"He'll probably get over it," said Dr. Stevenson. "Most do get over it."

the legislation.

The Caucus staff is charged with and dedicated to, the challenge of pulling together forces for change together with its conferences, hearings, and services.

The activities of the Congressional Black Caucus have garnered some measure of support from black Americans in all walks of life and we see this as a rebirth of unity and participation in the political process by which blacks in this country can work together to improve the quality of their lives.

We must not forget the lessons of history. It has been 100 years since we were disenfranchised after Reconstruction. Now that we have again managed to spend 13 U.S. representatives and one U.S. Senator to Congress, and have elected nearly 2,000 persons to state, city, and county offices all over the country. We must unify and work toward development of this power that will produce the changes needed to give black Americans their birthright.
