Mandel Doles Bulk Of College Aid To U. of Md.

But, Mandel says he won't play politics

A $2.053 billion budget which represents an increase of $247 million in general, special and federal funds (13.7 per cent), was presented to the general assembly by Gov. Marvin Mandel Wednesday.

In presenting his budget message, the governor used such terms as:

"I refuse to play politics with citizens pocketbooks . . .

"I do not regard a tax increase as a likelihood in the foreseeable future ...and as long as Maryland can live within her means, I have no desire or intention of seeking additional revenues for the simple security of a financial cushion.

"Government," the governor said, "is not in the business of showing a profit; it is in the business of providing services."

The governor then recommended in his budget message 546 positions to staff new facilities.

Some 357 or 65 per cent are for the University of Maryland, 78 for the Department of Transportation and 28 for the School for the Deaf.

Educational and related purposes received a 38.1 per cent increase in general funds or $53.45 million more than in 1972.

Increases in special funds were divided between the Department of Transportation. State Highway Administration, Maryland Port Administration the University of Maryland, and Civil Defense.

Under new positions the governor asked for 20 more positions for the district courts; 21 for the public defender; 38 for the State highway administration; 54 Maryland port authority; 68 State Motor Vehicle Administration;

Also 718 for the University of Maryland. This figure includes 104 for College Park, 116 for Baltimore City Campus; 305 for University Hospital and 112 for Baltimore County Campus.

On the other hand Frostburg State will get 98 new positions; Bowie 49; Morgan 39; Salisbury State 36; Towson State 40 and Coppin 18

Even the Maryland School for the Blind was awarded 44 new positions by the governor.

The governor's budget shows a $124,743 increase for his own executive department.

Under the Mass Transit Administration which operates a bus system for Baltimore City, Baltimore County and Anne Arundel County, the governor requested $38,264,970.

This includes $1.8 million for new buses and $30 mil-

Bill would limit ads in the AFRO

A public hearing will be held on February 1 on Regulation 28 which would restrict realtors and real estate salesmen from advertising in newspapers in general and more specifically in the AFRO.

"The area so designated shall be defined as to boundary, the particulars of which shall be included in an appropriate order of the Commission.

"Said order shall be mailed to each licensed broker in the State who shall, immediately upon receipt, inform each licensee under said broker's license of the contents thereof."

Nixon notes jobless rate still high

"Unemployment would be far lower, stated the President in his State of the Union message, Thursday. "If the more than 2 million men released from the armed forces and defenses related industries were still on their wartime jobs."

Other than the unemployment rate, President Richard Nixon declared: "Here at home, we are making progress toward our goal of a new prosperity without war."

The president told a joint session of Congress that his budgeted hike from the current $78.8 billion in military spending would actually be a decreased percentage in the gross national product.

Nixon said his budget "for the first time allocates more money to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare than to the Department of Defense."

Later in the year, Nixon said he will reveal a new method of financing public schools to relieve some of the burden of the hard-pressed property taxpayer.

"My call upon the Congress today is for high statesmanship," stated the President, who was urging legislators to forget the political pressures of an election year.

'SILENCE GREETS VERDICT'

Jury finds Powell guilty of first degree murder

The near-capacity Criminal Part One courtroom was tense on Wednesday as the 12-member jury filed by the audience to their seats. They had been away deliberating nearly four hours.

There was no murmur nor whisper. One could hear the drop of a pin. The only audible reaction was a couple of sighs.

However, the spectators, mostly friends and relatives of the defendant, although apparently shocked by the verdict, heard the news in silence.

Presiding Judge J. Harold Grady had warned them: "The Court will not tolerate any demonstration or reaction whatsoever. If anyone does so he will be removed from the court."

This, was the prelude to the announcement of the verdict in a five-day murder trial of James Edward Powell, 35, Black Panther member, charged with two counts of first degree murder and shooting with the intent to commit murder.

He was found guilty of both charges. The first, however, did not carry capital punishment.

The court will pass sentence later.

Powell, represented by William H. Murphy, Jr., and Leroy Carroll, both Baltimore attorneys, gave notice of appeal.

Attempts to reach the verdict apparently excited the jurors. Twice they asked Judge Grady for guidance, even though he thoroughly directed them before they retired.

Powell, 1400 block N. Mount St., was arrested and charged together with Jack Ivory Johnson, 1700 block Aisquith St. in April, 1970.

The prosecution alleged the two murdered Patrolman Donald Sager near-fatally wounded Patrolman Stanley Sierakowski in the

Waldens, Kearses much feted during Tolbert inauguration

with Lula Mackay

Among the representatives from more than 50 nations, thousands of Liberians and hundreds of friends of Libaria who attended the inauguration fo Dr. William Richard Tolbert, Jr., 19th president of Liberia and the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of the nation were Dr. Emerson S. Walden, president of the National Medical Association, Mrs. Walden and their 14-year-old daughter, Celonia; and the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. Logan Kearse of this city.

Mrs. Walden this week gave an exciting description of the week-long festivities from the hour they arrived at Robert's field in Liberia until they were back for the return trip to the States.

She said they were greeted at the Airport by an official of Liberia's State Department who gave them a first hand description of the countryside and the activities of those of his countrymen they passed during the forty mile-trip to the fabulous Ducor Hotel located on the highest point in Monrovia overlooking the Atlantic Ocean.

Monrovia was radiant with red, white, and blue bunting, the long star flag, posters of Congratualtions, colored lights, smartly dressed soldiers and enthusiastic crowds in traditional African and western dress.

The inaugural festivities began on Sunday with a Thanksgiving and Intercessary Service at the 150 year old First Providence Baptist Church on wide tree-lined Broad Street. It was attended by President Tolbert who is an active Baptist minister, Mrs. Tolbert, Mrs Richard M. Nixon, President Moktar Ould Daddah of Mauritania, Ivory Coast President, Felix Houphouet-Boigny, many other foreign dignatories, world leaders, state guests, and cheering Liberians.

Preaching the sermon during the service which was held under the auspices of the Christian Ministers' Association of Liberia was Dr. Avertus A. Hoff, national vice president of the Liberia Baptist Missionary and Education Convention.

Inauguration Day began in grand style the next morning with cannon fire from Fort Norris to announce the dawn of day and for the hoisting of the National Ensign and flags of other Nations.

State guests rode in limousines through huge cleering crowds lining streets, balconies, windows, and trees while President Tolbert traveled in a Volkswagen to the historic Centennial Memorial Pavilion. There thousands more packed the Pavilion to overflowing to witness the pagentry of the inauguration ceremony. The program was relayed live by ELTV and television sets were placed outside for their viewing. This was the second live coverage ever by ELTV in this country.
