Notre Dame offers course in politics

Women and Politics, a course in political science in which many notable persons in politics will participate will be presented on Friday mornings from February 11 through May 19 at the College of Notre Dame of Maryland.

The course is designed for the woman who wants to learn how to work effectively to improve her community through the political structure. It is the third in the Woman in Perspective series which the College of Notre Dame has introduced for adult women.

Dr. Mildred Otenasek, Democratic National Committeewoman, and professor of Political Science at Notre Dame will direct the course. Mrs. Lenora Nast, Maryland Commission on the Status of Women, will coordinate the sessions.

The course will combine theory and practice. According to Dr. Otenasek, the participants will learn the principles of political science, and these principles will be illustrated from the real world of politics by politicians working in various areas of government. Dr. Otenasek stressed that the course will be bi-partisan.

• • •

Some of the topics covered will be party politics, city politics, state politics, county politics, national politics, national conventions, women in politics, National Women's Political Caucus, and party reforms.

Among the speakers will be:

• • •

Congressman Paul S. Sarbanes, Congressman Clarence D. Long; National Committeewomen for Maryland, Kitty Massenburg and Mildred Otenasek; Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein; Members of the State Legislature — Senator Verda Welcome, Senator Mary L. Nock, Senator Rosalie Abrams, and Delegate Lena K. Lee; Anne Arundel County Executive Joseph Alton; President of the City Council Walter S. Orlinsky; City Councilwomen Mary Adams and Barbara Mikulski; Paula Peters and a panel from the National Women's Political Caucus.

• • •

Sister Dolores Marie Todd, Assistant to the President, is consultant for the course. The course carries three undergraduate credits and graduate credit by arrangement. It is also open to auditors. The course fee including registration is $65. Classes will be held from 9:30 until 12:00 noon, with time out for coffee, in the lower lounge of Doyle Hall on the college campus at 4701 North Charles Street.

Registration closes February 4. Call the Registrar, 435-0100, for a brochure or registration.

EARL KOGER, SR. is presently serving on the 1972-72 nominating committee of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission. Mr. Koger of Earl Koger and Sons, Inc., insurance agents, is representing the Frontiers Club of America.

Earl Koger, Sr. is member of 72 committee

Baltimore's Criminal Justice Commission announced recently the members of its nominating committee. The committee will offer a slate of commission members to hold office in the commission for 1972-1973.

The chairman of the Nominating Committee is C. Philip Manger of J. A. Manger and Co., representing the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce.

Other committee members are: Mrs. Elena Armanas, an attorney and past president of the Women's Bar Association; Jonas Brodie, president of S. L. Hammerman Organization, representing the Advertising Club of Baltimore; Earl Koger Sr. of Earl Koger and Sons, Inc. insurance agents, representing the Frontiers Club of America; and Mrs. Roger S. Whiteford, associate director of the Maryland Academy of Sciences.

The commission is a non-profit agency sponsored by 27 community organizations to work for more effective crime control in metropolitan Baltimore and is currently conducting a "Pass the Buck" appeal for public support.

• • •

It is hoped that response to the campaign will be sufficient to meet the commission's current program needs and to permit expanded activities toward more effective crime control for metropolitan Baltimore.

Those interested in supporting the fund can send their contributions to "Pass the Buck" 900 Court Square Bldg., Baltimore, Md. 21202.
