Father Charged With Homicide Of Baby Boy

Powell gets life in 1970 police ambush

Life imprisonment plus 15 years were imposed Monday upon James E. Powell, 35, convicted in the 1970 ambush slaying of a police officer and almost-fatal assault of another patrolman.

Criminal Court Judge J. Harold Grady imposed the prison terms upon the defendant and denied his motion for a new trial on Feb. 7.

Mr. Powell was found guilty of first degree murder "without capital punishment" and assault with intent to murder by a Criminal Court jury Jan. 19.

He is the second defendant convicted in the death of Baltimore City Police Officer Donald Sager, who died April 24, 1970 and shooting of Officer Stanley Sierakowski, who is now a sergeant.

Another jury convicted Marshall Edward Conway, 24, a Black Panther Party member, of murder and assault with intent to murder in the case last year.

Mr. Conway, 1400 block N. Mount St., was sentenced to life imprisonment plus 30 years.

Sgt. Sierakowski was the first witness called to testify in Mr. Powell's trial which began Jan. 12 and ended Jan. 19.

The two patrolmen, it was disclosed, were fired upon as they sat in a parked radio car completing a report on a domestic complaint in the 1200 block Myrtle Ave.

Sgt. Sierakowski, testified he heard a volley of shots and was seriously injured when hit four times in the stomach and once in the hand and arm.

Court testimony showed another police officer, Roger Nolan, was also fired

MAYOR WALTER E. WASHINGTON of the District of Columbia, will deliver the principal address and receive an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at the Washington's Birthday Convocation of Washington College, in Chestertown, Md., at the college's Daniel Z. Gibson Fine Arts Center, at 11 a.m., Feb. 19.

RED, BLACK AND GREEN — Ray Isaac, a senior at Forest Park High School, proudly displays the Black Liberation Flag on view in the school lobby along with the Stars and Stripes. At a recent meeting, the Board of School Commissioners refused to disqualify the flag from being flown in public schools as long as it was not interpreted as the "official school flag." The vote to show the tri-colored banner was made by a majority of Forest Park students in a special vote.

Free milk for Model Cities kids

The two-year Iron Enriched Milk Program funded by the Baltimore Model Cities Agency has set a pattern for similar efforts in additional areas of the city.

While the original program has been limited to residents of Model Cities areas, the Baltimore City Health Department recently announced the program will be made available to babies in the O'Donnell Heights section of the city.

Financed by the Maryland Food Committee, free iron-enriched milk formula will be provided for babies from birth until they are nine months old.

The Model Cities-funded milk project now serves some 3,250 inner city babies with more than 26,000 cases of formula, according to figures released covering the first 8 months of 1971.

The Health Department-sponsored program will greatly increase the number of babies provided with the nourishment health officials say is needed to help them through the "critical early developmental" months.

Claim son died from injury before birth

A 35-year-old cab driver has been charged with homicide in the death of his infant son who died at Johns Hopkins Hospital Feb. 1 of brain damage a month after his birth.

Police reports claim Jack A. Dawson, 4600 block E. Monument St., caused brain damage to the unborn baby when on Nov. 12, 1971 he stabbed his eight-month pregnant wife in the back during a domestic quarrel.

Mr. Dawson first charged with assault with intent to murder his wife, Mrs. Mary Dawson, 1700 block N. Washington St., was rearrested in the City Jail Feb. 2 after the death of his infant son (born Jan. 1) and charged with murder of the child. He awaits grand jury action.

Giving chronological sequence of the incident, police claim after Mr. Dawson had stabbed his wife on Nov. 12, he walked into the Eastern District Police Department and stated to desk Sgt. McDonald: "You're probably looking for me."

Mr. Dawson was operating a taxi cab at the time. He was placed under arrest and the owners of the cab were notified to take the cab.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Dawson admitted at the Johns Hopkins Hospital was reported in critical condition.

Police reports stated a neighbor claimed he saw Mr. Dawson assaulting his wife in the living room of his home.

Police quoted the neighbor as saying: "I wrestled with Mr. Dawson. I succeeded in taking the knife from him and Mr. Dawson fled the room."

A female friend of Mr. Dawson, police report, also claimed that during a conversation with Mr. Dawson he told her: "He was going to do something rash to his wife, something, he'd be sorry for later."

As days went by Mrs. Dawson tenaciously clung to life as doctors did their best to save her life.

After Dr. Roland Kornblum, medical examiner, performed autopsy on the child he reported that as a result of the shock Mrs. Dawson had during the stabbing incident the baby she was carrying sustained brain damage.

"The cause of death was due to brain damage resulting from the original assault on the mother," Dr. Kornblum said and ruled the death of child as homicide.

New Democrats want Schoonfield out

Joseph R. Raymond, chairman of the New Democratic Coalition of Maryland, Inc., 12 W. Mount Vernon Place, and member of the General Assembly who took the place of Walter Orlinski, City Council president, has called for an investigation of City Jail Warden Hirman Schoonfield.

In a letter to Paul J. Reed, president of the City Jail Board, Mr. Raymond states, "The New Democratic Coalition of Maryland insists upon immediate public hearings with a view toward replacing a warden who has proven incapable of the terrible problems at the jail and apparently unable to cope with the intolerable conditions there.

"His apparent lack of respect for the basic human condition disqualifies him from further service in our view and we believe in the view of a general public wishing no Attica in the Free State."

First to ask that Schoenfield be fired as Delegate Troy Brailey who investigated jail conditions last spring.

Other portions of Mr. Raymond's letter dated Feb. 5 state:

"For some time, it has been clear to the public that something is wrong at the Baltimore City Jail. Suit has been brought by a group of inmates charging inhumane treatment at that institution.

"Last week, two judges leveled serious criticism against the institution, and, by implication, those responsible for conditions there. In a particularly shocking case, Judge Frank Kaufman, in Federal Court, ordered a medical examination of an inmate who displayed and complained to authorities of symptoms of hepatitis. As it turned out, the prisoner, whose illness was dismissed by Warden Schoonfield as "so much trivia," was indeed suffering from hepatitis.

"Earlier in the week, an inmate appeared before the Bench in District Court obviously intoxicated; investigation revealed that the man had, that morning, taken drugs obtained at the jail, and judge Howard ordered a full-scale investigation of the place. Charges of sexual abuse of prisoners also were made.

"These are only the latest and most dramatic occurrences in a tenure (that of Warden Hirman Schoonfield through with controversy and high-handedness bordering on the autocratic."

Teenage girl's body found

The dead body of an unidentified girl in her early teens partially hidden under old cushions was found yesterday morning at the backyard of an abandoned home in the 1800 block Penn. Ave. There was a deep wound on her forehead.

Police believed she was beaten to death. They also suspect she was criminally assaulted.

People living in the neighborhood claim at about 1:30 a.m. Thursday they heard dogs "raising the devil."

Some also reported hearing sounds like moving of trash cans. None, however, heard human sounds.

The body was first found under the cushions and cardboards by a woman resident of the 1800 block Brunt St., who said she went to a near-by upholstery workshop to look for pieces of rubber.

Mrs. Ruth Croxton succumbs at 43

Mrs. Ruth Croxton, 43, 3601 Callaway Ave., died Thursday morning at N. Charles General Hospital.

Death was due to infeammatory cancer.

Mrs. Croxton, with her husband, Robert B. Croxton, owned and operated the Ruth J Boutique, a dress salon at Forest Park and Ayrdale Ave.

She was noted for her good taste in clothes and for her ability to select stylish and moderately priced garments for her discerning customers.

She was much in demand for fashion shows by club groups which found her a businesswoman with a special interest in them and their clothes needs.

The Herbert Nutter Funeral Home is handling arrangements.

Virginia wants Westcott to answer to drug charge

Removal hearings before U.S. Magistrate Clarence E. Goetz in Federal District Court, were postponed Thursday until Feb. 17, for James T. Westcott, 37, charged with interstate transportation of narcotics.

The government contends that cocaine was transported from Baltimore to the Eastern district of Richmond, Va.

The state of Virginia is seeking Westcott's extradition from Maryland so that he can stand trial in Virginia. He is now lodged on the Federal side of Baltimore City Jail.

Other defendants are Stancil Lee Stanback, Kenneth Larry Caudle, Sally Preola Bryant, Betty Ann Bee, Melvin Huntley and Samuel J. Frier. Named as co-conspirator, but not as a defendant is Clarence Monroe Scruggs.

Westcott's attorney, William H. Murphy Jr., advised the postponement. Frank Bronzato is prosecuting attorney.

Dressed in royal blue slacks, trousers, and turtleneck sweater, and wearing a small bush, Westcott nervously fingered his chin throughout court proceedings.

The hearing is set for 10:30 a.m. in the U.S. Magistrate's court.

RESIDENTS OPPOSE

New drug center opens in old funeral home

"This is the first of its kind in the nation. They want to test this to see if it is successful. It should be tested in areas where most of the drug traffic is."

Robert C. Lee, director, was telling the AFRO about the Logical Technical Service-Social Action Division, located in the 1600 block of W. North Ave. at the intersection of Pennsylvania Ave. on the site formerly occupied by Tickner's Funeral Home.

This center is to provide services to 400 addicts, 300 outpatients and 100 residents.

It is for male and female, black and white of minimum age 18. Each person is required to stay 21 days to eight months for treatment to help cure them from drugs.

Some businessmen and residents in the area of LTC (Logical Technical Service) oppose the center's location.

They complain the center is across the street from the Enoch Pratt Free Library branch, the only free facility for children in the area, diagonal to the Druid Health Center and the Advance Federal Savings and Loan as well as other schools, business, churches, and would be a disruption to these facilities.

Residents complain further they were not notified in advance of the location of the drug center and that they have requested a meeting with Walter Orlinsky, president of the City Council.

A group of W. North Ave., area citizens, speaking through Mrs. Newavery Lawson, proprietor of Avery Beauty Salon at 1612 North Ave., said: "There is one junior-senior high school and there are two elementary schools directly in the traffic of this building.

"The small businesses include approximately 15 beauty salons whose business is depend on women commuting from parts of the city. There are home owners, children and no place to play."

Mr. Lee, director of the center states that "This program is receiving funds from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity to test in areas where most of the drugs are."

LTC officially opened on Monday. There are 25 rooms in the building to be used for classrooms and housing.

Mr. Lee explained "We screen all of our employees. They are given a

D. Arnett Murphy estate to widow and daughters

His widow, Mrs. Sadie V. Murphy, and daughters, Mrs. Mae E. Dyson and Mrs. Arnetta Lottier are name executors of the estate of D. Arnett Murphy, according to papers filed in Orphans' Court on Jan. 27. He died Jan. 11.

Mr. Murphy, 79, of W. Forest Park Ave., was for 66 years an employee, officer and director of the AFRO-AMERICAN Co. He was the youngest of 11 children of AFRO Founder John H. Murphy Sr.

Under terms of the will drown up May 17, 1964, Mr. Murphy stipulated that all of his assets, personal effects, furniture, autos and unexpired insurance policies should go to his wife of 59 years for her lifetime and afterwards to his daughters and their descendants.

In addition, he directed executives to make the following gifts:

1. $1,000 to Grace Presbyterian Church, where he was a member for over half a century

2. $1,000 to the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), Madison Ave. Branch, which was founded by his mother, Mrs. Martha Howard Murphy, who was also the first president.

3. $2,000 to Mrs. Lillie Taylor, a housekeeper in the home for a number of years.

No estimate was given of the value of the estate. However, Mr. Murphy was a substantial stockholder in the AFRO-AMERICAN Co., and a voting trustee.

In his will, he designated the daughter, Mrs. Dyson, also a director and secretary of the company, to succeed him as voting trustee of the AFRO-AMERICAN Co.

He also directed executors how to divide his and Mrs. Murphy's assets upon her death to his daughters and their descendants.

Specific instructions are made as to how to redistribute assets to the daughters, Mrs. Dyson and Mrs. Lottier during their lifetime, and afterwards to their descendants.

with Lula Mackay

As it is annually, February is Love Month with Delta Sigma Theta sororo. . .and the members of the Alumae Chapter initiated the observation by worshiping togethr, Sunday morning eat St. Mark's United Methodist Church, where they were warmly recived by the Rev. Quincy Cooper, minister, and the congregation. Soror Sue Miles, chairman, and Soror Ellen Carter were hostesses at the Coffee Hour which followed the communion service. They were assisted by Sorors Victoria Greene and Carolyn Wilson.

Among those attending were:

Sorors Chapelle Armstead, Dorothy J. Barrick, Helene Bellamy, Geraldine Blackwell, Martha Bradford, G. Eunice Cooper, Thelma B. Cox, Elizabeth F. Diggs, Delores Faulkner, Sorors Betty L. Fox, Clara S. Green, Victoria Greene, Leah Hasty.

On the 16th the Alumnae Chapter is sponsoring an open meeting at the Reisterstown Branch Library, where a discussion will be held on "Focus on the Black Women in Education, Politics, Community Life and Social Work with the Black Man."

Participants on the panel will include Mrs. Gloria Basfield, Dr. Rebecca Carroll, Mrs. Mary Robinson, Dr. Harriet Trader and Mrs. Miriam Winborne.

Audience participation will follow brief discussions by each panalist on the subjects.

Margaret Driver in a gray paisley printed full-skirted hostess dress, and Flozella Clark in a maroon, black and gold kitenge co-hosted an elegant bridal luncheon-shower party in honor of Mary Sprow Thompson at the Driver's home overlooking East Cold Spring Lane, Saturday.

The club room had been decorated in pane colors with a beautiful ruffled white and pink umbrella atop a table with all types of dainty tied packages piled high — then with several tables decorated with little sprinklers and cups to match gave the effect of a shower garden as the guests arrived.

Margaret was upstairs greeting each one as they came and escorting them to the club room where Flo presided over the cocktail period — the gay festive mood for the evening ensued from that point on.

Mary Thompson, chic in a red and white knit, came dashing into the clubroom, smiling broadly and proudly displaying that diamond baguette band on that special left hand finger.

Champagne toasts that signalled the end of a cocktail part of the party.

Mary was a picture to behold as s e proceeded to open her lovely gifts — there were many oohs and ahs as she held up many of the miscellaneous items received that ranged from lingerie to bed linens. It was obvious that she was visibly moved and very happy and informed the gals that Charles would come and help her fetch her gifts home.

The guests were dressed beautifully, in a warm and caring mood and the whole affair was reflective of this as these friends shared an intimate evening with Mary — Edna Davis Driver's grandson quite handsome and dressed in yellow came in for a moment to greet everyone.

About were Mesdames, Florence Bailey, Kataryn Frisby, Janice M. Carney, Janet Woolridge, Charlotte Watkins, Margarite Wilkins, Mary Lewis, Mattie Gardner, Anethia Williams, Helen Whittaker, James Laforest, Vera Flint and Maude Brown.
