Decentralization a fact for Juvenile Services

The Department of Juvenile Services today announced that decentralization of its Baltimore City offices is complete.

These offices which provide for central administration, intake, probation, and aftercare services have been decentralized into four District Offices geographically located within the communities served. Formerly, all services were located in the Court House Annex.

The Central District Office is at 212 N. Calvert St. in close proximity to the Juvenile Court.

Central administration, intake, and special services are administered from this office under the leadership of Robert Bagley, Regional Supervisor for all of the City operations, and Edward Lang, Assistant Regional Supervisor.

The first office to be decentralized was the Western District Office at 2500 N. Eutaw Place. This serves the western and northwestern areas of the city and is under the supervision of Arnold Hayes, District Supervisor.

The Southern District Office, the supervision of Jerome Todd, is located at 242 S. Hilton St. and serves the southern and southwestern portions.

Most recently opened is the Eastern District Office at 2404 Greenmount Ave. which serves the entire eastern section of Baltimore. The Office is under the supervision of Mr. Donald M. Richardson.

Decentralization of juvenile court services and staff wfil enable the Department of Juvenile Services to become better aware of local community problems and resources, as well as make these services more conveniently available to those served.

In addition to these four District Offices, a number of smaller satellite offices are operated within neighborhoods of these Districts as the workloads indicate a need for such services.
