

farm of 1,238 acres is done by the boys under a head farmer and an assistant. The other industries in which the boys are trained are tailoring, shoemaking, painting, laundering, baking; others are taught to be waiters. All the clothing worn by the boys is made by them in the tailoring department.

The boys are committed by the courts and magistrates of the State and City of Baltimore. Those coming from Baltimore are committed mostly by the Juvenile Court. All commitments are during minority, but are really indeterminate, as, by an honor system, a boy may earn his parole in one year after he enters the institution.

Chapter 366—acts 1935 authorizes the transfer by the House of Reformation to the Board of Public Works of the State of Maryland, all its property, rights, franchises, privileges and immunities provided the State of Maryland assume all mortgage liens and encumbrances against the same.
