Slain grocer was kind to the poor

"We miss him badly. He was like a neighbor to us. Everyone who knew him misses his friendly smile."

Mrs. Burma Lyds, 2500 block W. Fayette St., was talking to the AFRO about Benjamin Rubin slain during a hold-up of his store at W. Fayette and Shipley Sts. April 19.

Homicide police state the 50-year-old grocer was gunned to death April 19 when two youths, both armed, came into the store in the 2600 block W. Fayette and ordered the grocer and his wife, Mrs. Shirley Rubin, to hand over the money in the cash register.

The report states as the bandits were leaving Mr. Rubin reached for his revolver and he was shot. The two also fired at Mrs. Rubin, hitting her in the left arm and hip.

Police said Mr. Rubin died on arrival at the Bon Secour Hospital but the wife has been there since.

Hospital authorities state she is doing well.

The wake for Mr. Rubin was held Saturday at the Sol Levinson and Brothers Funeral Home.

He is survived by his wife and two children, Rochelle M. Rubin, 19 and Joseph L. Rubin, 22, both students at the University of Maryland.

Homicide police state two 17-year-olds, Tyrone Steve Henry, 3400 block Reisterstown Rd., and Herbert McDonald, 300 block Oakford Ave., are charged with homicide and assault with intent to murder in the incident.

Mrs. Byds told the Afro Mrs. Lyds told the Rubin and his wife for the past two years. His wife adores my children and always recommends the way I raise them.

"They gave my kids candy and stuff like that. But most of all we miss the sight of his car. The car was there every Sunday until 2 a.m."

Mrs. Annie Rogers of the 2500 block told the AFRO Mr. Rubin was a good, friendly man who was ready to help everybody.

She stated Mr. Rubin allowed people to buy from his shop on credit.

"He was terribly good and friendly to the poor. I can't tell you how much we miss him."

Narrating the shooting incident to fas reporter Mrs. Rogers said:

"It was around four in the afternoon. The kids came saying Mr. Rubin had been shot.

'My God, I rushed into the store and found Mr. Rubin lying on the floor in a pool of blood. The wife was slumped behind the counter.'

She stated the wife pleaded with her "Annie, please stay with me, stay with me," adding "she was shocked."

Martin Simms, 2600 block W. Fayette who was with Mrs. Rogers agreed Mr. Rubin was "the best of men I have ever known. He got along pretty well with everybody."

Some four 12-year-olds this reporter met playing around the corner of the closed shop all agreed Mr. Rubin and his wife were "friendly," kind and gave them candies."

When one said Mrs. Rubin was "a little bit fussy," another agreed and pointed out that "she was fussy because she wanted people to behave right."

One of the children, Gregory Blount stated: "He was kind. He was our friend. We loved to go to his shop. It is best in the area."

Miss Shelly Anderson: 'He liked everybody. But if you went in and misbehaved he turned you out. But he was kind.."

Terry Ford observed: "The wife fussed a little but she was a good woman. I like them because they never forget to give you candy."

Odell Taylor: "He often told you to read the sign. That is when you do something wrong the sign warns you about."

Little Important People, Inc., a non-profit organization, got its name seven years ago from the late AFRO publisher, Dr. Carl J. Murphy.

15 per cent water bill hike in June

Two hundred citizens crowded the Board of Estimates meeting on Wednesday to bring complaints to the City Fathers, but the meeting's biggest news was not their frequent heckling but the approval of a 15 per cent increase in water and sewage charges beginning June 1.

For an average Baltimore family, a 15 per cent increase means paying $98 a year for water-sewage instead of the current $85. That is a $13 increase.

Those 55,000 city residents who are lucky to still be on the non-metered "flat rate" average of $31 a year should expect to lose their cheaper rates. They can expect a rate increase as much as 30 per cent.

The exact rate increase will be worked out by the Department of Public Works and presented to the Estimates Board next week.

Baltimore County residents living near Baltimore can expect a hike in their water bill too.

The city is supposed to supply water to them without loss or profit, but last year, said City Finance Director Charles Benton, the county owed the city $180,000.

He said the county will either have to increase their water rates or pay the city through some other funds.

Director Benton said the rate hike is needed to pay for water plant expansion and sewage treatment improvements required to meet federal pollution regulations.

The Finance Department estimated the rate increase will bring in close to $3 million a year.

Among the overflow crowd of Estimates spectators were three classes of Coppin State College students who brought a petition as well as letters to Board members urging them to reconsider the school budget in an open hearing.

Student William Stokes told the AFRO the petition had over 1,000 signatures from various civic groups and citizens citywide.

Their form letter to City Solicitor George Russell read: "Dear Brother Russell, your platform states you are concerned about ending the war in Vietnam but your greatest concern was the people of Baltimore City.

"Because of this concern,

SPRING FORWARD

Set your clock up one hour

Daylight saving time arrives Sunday, so turn the clock ahead one hour Saturday night, "Spring forward. Fall back."

The time change is effective officially at 2 a.m. Sunday and will stay in effect until the last Sunday in October.

Three states, Arizona, Hawaii and Michigan and a portion of Indiana will remain on regular time.

Until this year, a state could be exempt from daylight time only by vote of its legislature and the exemption must cover the entire state. Arizona, Hawaii, and Michigan decided to stay with regular time.

Indiana's problem was not so easily solved. Several Indiana counties are tied economically to Chicago, and objected to any uniform time zone in the state which would not coincide with the city's.

The federal government solved the problem recently by approving an amendment to the uniform time act which will allow any state which is divided by a

Clifton Park student crowned 'Miss Refined'

The male students at Clifton Park Junior High School held a contest recently to set standards for the selection of "Miss Refined."

Questions asked were "What makes a girl refined? Is it her posture, her language, her personality? Do self-control, good grooming, self-respect, and consideration for others contribute to the image of a refined girl?"

Under the direction of Robert Russell, drama and art instructor, and Miss Eileen Dizell, counselor, the youths decided that a refined girl should be a refined girl should refrain from smoking, chewing gum and she should be congenial and have an interest in school.

Three candidates from each class were selected. The boys participated in the contest and were judged by how well they enhanced the girl whom they escorted.

When the final voting took place during the fourth week, participants were reduced to three from each grade level.

Each student was allowed to cast one vote for a candidate in their class and a vote for two other candidates at their grade level.

Miss Francine Talley, received 203 votes and was crowned "Miss Refined." She was awarded a portable TV and her escort, Franklin Blackman received a radio.

Prizes for winners were decided upon by the students and provided by the faculty. Principal Saul Genedlis said the contest was an attempt on the part of the faculty and students to improve the female student image.

DIGNITY AND PRIDE are displayed as Miss Francine Talley of Clifton High and her escort, Franklin Blackman set the standard for today's youth.

Townfolks' May dates presage galloping summer social pace

with Lula Mackay

You could call it May Madness . . . this grand rush of parties that will keep town folk on the go from the dawn of the fifth month 'till its close. The We Wives will put a period to May doings on the 27th, with their dinner dance at Martin's West. Provident Auxiliary will lead off with that annual dinner dance on the fifth.

Between the two dates, all sorts of parties have been plotted.

The Pivots will be holding forth on the 19th: The Baltimore Club of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will makr Founder's Day with Councilwoman Ruth L. Charity of Danville, Va. as speaker. This will take place at the Baltimore Hilton on the 20th.

You'll find the Philomatheans at Holiday Inn on the sixth for their closing meeting. The Silhouettes are having their "International Affair" at North Point Gardens on the 26th, and the Provident Hospital Auxiliary has scheduled its luncheon and fashion show at Martins West on the 21st.

The Algernon Jacksons extended their hospitality in the same gracious fashion that has made the pretty Heights a popular spot.

It's almost automatic ow that their Retaad ance guests continue the weekend with buffet, fun and fellowship there the next day.

'Twas a horrid night, weatherwise . . . but who would miss the luscious buffet which incuded Carrie's specialty, Portuguese Pinto Bean Linguica dish (never a bean is eft), crab imperial casserole, sirloin with beautiful pink sliced Virginia ham. There were also Italian style string beans, sliced turkey and two delicious salad, one, chef with red cabbage base, and the other, molded fruit. And there was a great variety of sippables.

About were:

Peggie and William Washington, Lillian and Wilbert James, Natalie and Cornelius Woodson, Alma Walker, Ethel and Henry Hall, Margaret Waddell;

Queenie and Hubert Lane, Rowena and Bill Lewis, Ruth and Arnold Bailey, Julia and Ernest Gambrill, Ruth and Cephas Brooks, Muriel and Paul Johnson,

Reception, gift of home spark Dixons' anniversary

Her husband, Isaac, was having a little birthday party for her, and she would like for them to be there, Mrs. Delores Watson told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dixon, last week.

She would pick them up about four, she said.

Pick them up, she did, but the party was neither a rental one nor a little one. The affair was a gala reception which marked the 50th anniversary of the parents, and which was being given, not be Mr. Watson, but by the 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Dixon.

Sunday, when the couple reached the Wakefield Apartment Club House, setting for the affair, they were confronted by the scores of friends from South Baltimore, where they had lived for many years; friends from the Hilton St. section, where they now live; and from other parts of the city. In addition there were numbers of relatives from other cities, all of their children, 40 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon were surprised beyond words.

But petite and pretty Mrs. Dixon was not too surprised to not be concerned because she and Mr. Dixon had not dressed properly for the black tie event.

She need not have worried. Two of their daughters, Mrs. Bernice Epps and Mrs. Mildred Turner had designed and had ready a beautiful gown of gold metallic, matching slippers, gold jewelry and corsage of yellow orchids ..... as well a dinner clothes for their Dad. Chided Mr. Dixon "This is the third time I've dressed. Anna (Mrs. Dixon) was not satisfied with what I put on the first time and made me change. Now the girls are making me change again." He shouldn't have complained, for he was a very handsome "bridegroom."

In addition to the beautiful guests, tables were beautifully decorated with flowers, silver candelabras, candles and colorful clothes. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres preceded the seated dinner. Pink champagne and punch flowed throughout the evening, and music has provided by the couple's grandson, Andre Watson and his band.

The children who hosted the anniversary party were:

Mrs. Cyanithia Sanders, Ronald Dixon, Mrs. Gertrude Sherman of Boston, Mass., Mrs. Ellen Gonzales, Arthur Dixon of San Jose, Calif., Nathaniel Dixon, Mrs. Delores Watson, Mrs. Nerrissa Savory, Charles Dixon of San Francisco, Calif., Mrs. Mildred Turner and Mrs. Bernice Epps.

Their gift to their parents was the deed to a home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are parents of a dozen children, the 12th being the late Mrs. Ruth Dennis.

Among out-of-town guests, other than the children, here for the affair were:

Mrs. Gertrude Sanders of Chicago, Mrs. Dixon's sister; Mrs. Ida Craig of Philadelphia, a cousin; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brooks of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Robert George of Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Taft Green and daughter, Sagon, of Washington, Mrs. Anna Queen of Washington.
