The Rev. Johnson of Annapolis served 4 Methodist churches

Funeral services for the Rev. James Edward Johnson of 1900 Lincoln Drive, Annapolis, will be held tomorrow, Saturday at Cecil Memorial Church where he pastored for 18 years.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson died of heart failure on Tuesday at Anne Arundel General Hospital. He was 81.

Born and reared in Baltimore, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley (Jennie Frances) Johnson. He attended the Baltimore public schools and moved to Annapolis at an early age.

For five years he was pastor of Mt. Washington United Methodist Church in Baltimore County and for a year served as pastor at Carter's United Methodist, Friendship, Md.

In addition, the Rev. Mr. Johnson was associate pastor at Macedonia United Methodist Church in Odenton, Md., for [illegible] and was the Methodist chaplin at the Maryland Correction in Jessup, Md.

He was a member of the Hiram Consistory No. 2, Royal Arch Chapter No. 1, Prince Hall Affiliate, past-master of Trinity Lodge No. 75 and state ruler of Grand Order of Galilean Fishermen of Baltimore.

LOVE FEAST There was love and happiness all over Emerald Gardens on Thursday evening when members of Baltimore's Providence Baptist Church honored their minister the Rev. Marcus G. Wood. It was his 20th anniversary. In top panel, Photographer Wallace Baden caught these scenes as the minister, center, leaned over to accept congratulations. Mrs. Wood, right, also greets well-wishers. In lower panel, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wood and church treasurer, Nello Hamiel member who presented them with $3,000 check to enable the pastor to fulfill a childhood dream to visit Africa. The Woods expect to take the trip this summer.

State inmates to wear Afros

State prison regulations on permissible styles for inmate hair particularly Afro hair, mustaches, sideburns and beards are likely to be liberalized by next month.

Prison Commissioner James Jordan told the AFRO: "70 per cent of all our inmates are black, and their cultural trend is toward a bush haircut and beards.

"We want to keep abreast of all current cultural trends. It helps in the resocialization of the inmates."

The commissioner first mentioned a relaxing of hair rules soon after a state personnel hearing on Monday dismissed charges against three Hagerstown correction officers charged with forcible shearing an inmate's sideburns in January.

The hearing officer dropped charges because there was an "unexplained" delay between the incident and their suspension on April 4. Their suspension had resulted in other Hagerstown officers reporting sick one day in protest.

Many state correction officers are reported to wear mustaches, side burns and even beards.

Prison officials told the AFRO the hair rule for correction officers is to wear their hair anyway they want "provided it is neat."

Officials said this means judgement on what is neat is left with the various wardens. Some allow a greater range of hair styles than others.

Baltimore gets HEW grants

(NBNS) — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare has allocated $38,706,459 for special services program grants to assist low-income students in their quest for continuation of their education in higher institutions.

The special services programs include three distinct projects — Upward Bound, Talent Search, and Services for Disadvantaged Students.

The Baltimore area was allocated three Upward Bound grants, one of $65,000 to Morgan State College (Baltimore), another to Community College of Baltimore for $100,000 and the third to Gilman School, Incorporated (Baltimore) for $63,200.

Upward Bound provides financial assistance to qualified low-income students to attend institutions of higher learning.

A Talent Search grant for $35,000 was given to Coppin State College (Baltimore) to help prepare high school students for further education.

AME's favor school busing, Home Rule

The Washington Annual Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church adopted resolutions assailing the Nixon administration's domestic policies in the final day of the five-day conference which met at Metropolitan Church, 1518 M St., NW, last week.

The 90 AME churches represented at the twenty-first annual conference called for welfare and prison reforms and endorsed support for D.C. Home Rule.

The group voted to support and encourage busing of children to achieve racial balance in public schools. The busing resolution stressed the need for equal opportunity for every child in America to get quality education.

The group also called for an end to the Vietnam war, the group observed that the President has not carried out his campaign to end the war.

Bishop Henry W. Murph, prelate of the Washington Conference, preached at the closing services last Sunday at which time he read the ministerial appointments.

The Conference is comprised of AME churches in Baltimore, Virginia, North Carolina, Western N.C. and Washington. The General Conference which convenes every four years will open in Dallas, Texas in late June.

More than 500 delegates attended the conference, according to Rev. Frank Madison Reid Jr., pastor of Metropolitan.

ON LOTTERY COUNT:

'Whitetop' gets guilty verdict

WASHINGTON

Roger W. Simpkins, 73, of 1702 Shepard St., NW, has been found guilty of maintaining a gambling residence and operating a lottery. This verdict was handed down by a District Court jury after they deliberated more than eight hours.

Mr. Simpkins, also known as "White Top," was indicted on charges of operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips, maintaining a gambling residence and the possession of unlawful pistols on March 26, 1970.

• • •

Stephen Grafman, prosecutor, said in his opening statements to members of the jury that he intended to show, without a shadow of a doubt, that Mr. Simpkins had not only carried out the illegal operation of a lottery, but that he also was found with evidence of such operation in his hands at the time of arrest.

Sgt. Raymond James Mckernon, formerly of the metropolitan police department's gambling division, testified for the state that he and four other plain-clothes detectives arrived at Mr. Simpkins home on March 26, 1970 armed with a search warrant, having probable reason to believe illegal gambling paraphernalia to be present in the house.

Sgt. Mckernon said the rambler type home of Mr. Simpkins had a small, glass window located in the center of the door which allowed those inside to see outside extremely well, but whoever was standing outside the door had difficulty seeing in.

As he approached the door, the sergeant said, putting his eyes on the glass he could observe someone running away from the door with something that resembled a piece of paper in his hand. The sergeant said he couldn't be positive, but the figure seemed to be that of Mr. Simpkins.

When Mr. Simpkins refused to open the door after Sgt. Mckernon identified himself and the others as police officers, the sergeant said he had one of the other officers to force the door in with a sledgehammer.

He testified that as soon as he entered the house he saw Mr. Simpkins running toward the bathroom with paper in his hand. Sgt. Mckernon said he gave chase, but before he could confiscate the paper and whatever was written on it, Mr. Simpkins threw it into the toilet bowl causing the water to dissolve. Testimony revealed that paper was water soluble, which means that whatever is written on it, dissolves immediately upon contacting water. Several reams of the paper found at Mr. Simpkins home were submitted in court as evidence.

Among other items confiscated from the Simpkins home were several sheets of paper with names of individuals written on them and amounts of money owed to Mr. Simpkins, an adding machine, numbers slips, and five pistols.

H. Clifford Allder, Mr. Simpkins' attorney, asked members of the jury in his summation where the evidence was that showed his client had ever at any time operated a lottery.

He said his client did not deny having in his possession numbers slips, but his possession of an adding machine did not justify the assumption that he was operating a lottery. "No phone calls were made to Mr. Simpkins home while the officers were present, no person came by to play a number, so where is all this evidence the prosecutor says he has?"

A handwriting expert, M. Harry Spittle, who is with the police department, said he believed some of the handwriting on several of the sheets which listed figures of money owed to someone was that of Mr. Simpkins. Mr. Spittle said, "I have made positive identification with no reservation on my part."

Mr. Alder called Roger Simpkins, Jr. to the stand to testify as to the ownership of the guns found in the home of his father. The son testified that each of the guns found in his father's house belonged to him. He exhibited stacks of papers he said were forms he had filled out in hopes of getting the guns licensed, but was unsuccessful.

The prosecutor asked him if he had made any attempts to license the five guns found in his father's house and he said "no."

It is unlawful for anyone convicted of a felony to own or possess a gun.

Mr. Allder said he has begun making plans to appeal the conviction of "Whitetop" who did not take the witness stand. The attorney said the officers that entered Mr. Simpkins home did so illegally. He contends that the search warrant was not granted through proper procedure.

Dem race tightens; Rep. Nix wins

PHILADELPHIA — Rep. Robert N. C. Nix Sr. easily won renomination in Tuesday's Democratic primary while black wards contributed strongly to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's presidential preference victory.

Former City Chairman William Green Jr. defeated Rep. Joseph Byrne to return to his seat in Congress. The result was seen as a setback for Mayor Frank L. Rizzo.

The results here and in Massachusetts, where Sen. George S. McGovern won a popular majority and all the delegates, brought Sen. Edmund S. Muskie's withdrawal Thursday from the remaining primaries.

The Maine senator said he will concentrate on wooing delegates in convention states.

His startling second-place finish in Pennsylvania prompted Gov. George C. Wallace to claim he will win the Indiana primary Tuesday. The Alabama game cock has reduced his Tennessee commitments to concentrate on the Hoosier state.

The other major contest in Ohio will pit neighbor against neighbor, Humphrey of Minnesota and McGovern of South Dakota. The Muskie withdrawal will tighten that race.

Among the also-rans in Massachusetts, Rep. Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn garnered about 18,000 votes to roughly 15,000 for Rep. Wilbur Mills of Little Rock.

FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE — Henry D. Felton was presented an award for outstanding service by the Mayor on behalf of the Voluntary Council on Equal Opportunity for his directorship of the National Alliance of Businessmen. Ceremonies took place at a recent luncheon where seven other former NAB chairmen and directors were honored. NAB is a volunteer organization of businesses and government working to find employment for Vietnam vets.

Rev. Rollins left estate to wife

WASHINGTON

The will of the Rev. Robert L. Rollins, late pastor of the Florida Avenue Baptist Church provided that the home, at 720 Quebec Pl. NW, go to his wife, Geveva C., along with the rest of his personal property (other than his books).

The Rev. Rollins died suddenly on March 14 — the day following his involvement in an automobile accident. His grief-stricken wife was hospitalized for about three weeks afterward, but now is "Coming along nicely" at home, associates said. The clergyman died at the age of 65, having pastored the church for 34 years.

The minister's will was dated November 13, 1957.

The will also bequeathed the books in his church study to the church. These in his home study were bequeath to the Washington Baptist Seminary, from which he graduated in 1929.

Cash on deposit at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association was to go to Mrs. Rollins, who was named executrix of the will.

In addition, other cash assets were bequeathed to the Rev. Rollins sister, Mrs. Flora Molton; his niece, Esther M. Molton; his nephew, Henry Bruce; his aunt, Mattie Hackney; his cousin, Ethel Minor, also Willie Grooms and Fannie Grooms and the Florida Avenue Baptist Church.

Any remaining cash was to go towards the education of the Rev. Rollins' daughter, Bernice; his granddaughters, Francine and Cheryll and his grandson, Gregory. Once this is done, remaining cash is to go to the Stoddard Baptist Home, Polio Foundation and the Cancer Research Society. Court papers to date do not say what the estate is worth.

The Rev. Rollins, survivors include his wife; his daughter, Mrs. Eloise V. Gibson; a sister Mrs. Flora Molton; three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren, all of this city.

MUCH REAL ESTATE

No will found for Fred Evans

WASHINGTON

The late Frederick H. Evans of the law firm Evans, Dolphin, Stafford and Webster, is believed to have died without having a will, according to legal papers filed at the U.S. District Court. Among the papers was the appointment of his wife Dorothy as administratrix of the estate.

Evans left numerous real estate holdings, including property at 1624 V St., NW; 507 U St., NW; and the home, located at 1610 Tamarack St., NW. All of these were owned by Evans as tenant. He died last May.

In addition he owned as tenant-in-common with Willie L. Johnson two lots in Lanham, Md. He also owned a lot in Lucaya, Grand Bahamas Island. These properties had a total value of $131,045 and had claims against them totalling $109,551.

Evans also owned the premises at 1042 35th Pl., NE. The property was valued at $9,000, having a claim of $3,000 against it.

According to the legal papers, Evans had ten promissory notes totalling $35,617.42, and had $5,811.32 in cash on deposit at the First National Bank of Washington.
